$2,000 Taken; Suspect Held

By PETE LOUDON and DESMOND BILL

A masked, armed bandit escaped on foot today after robbing a bank at Fort and Richmond of an estimated $2,000.

City police reported at 2 p.m. today that a suspect in the bank robbery had been arrested at 2211 Ida Street.

A platoon of police was searching the Ida-Coronation-Denman area for the robber at press time.

He escaped after a foot race with the bank manager, a teller and a customer, which covered about three blocks.

He is described by police as about 20 to 25 years old, wearing a fawn colored belted raincoat, brown Oxfords and is armed.

WORE TOQUE

He was also wearing a ski toque, pulled down over his face, with eyeholes, when he entered the Bank of Montreal branch at about 10:13 or 10:15 a.m.

He handed a bag to teller Don Renfrew, 19, and said, "Fill it."

The teller put about $2,000 in the bag and handed it to him.

He said a gun barrel was protruding about six inches through the robber's coat.

Then the robber ran out followed closely by manager Dunfield, a customer, Ken Morrison, 23, of the Coast Guard ship Estevan and teller Renfrew.

The four, with the robber leading by 100 yards, went across Fort and north on Ashgrove, across Begbie, on Pembroke and on to Ida.

REFUGE IN HOUSE

At that point, due to his extended lead the bandit was lost to the view of his pursuers. They believe he may have taken refuge in a house in that neighborhood.

It was the second robbery of the bank branch in a year and a half. Three masked men made off with $18,157 Feb. 18, 1966.

Here is how eye-witnesses reconstruct today's robbery.

Teller Renfrew (who started at the bank in July) said he couldn't believe his eyes when the bandit appeared.

Then the teller saw the gun barrel.

"I was sure it was a gun. I could see what looked like the front sight."

SHOPPING BAG

He filled the bag—later described as a small paper shopping bag similar to those used for potatoes. He put in small bills. Then the man fled.

'He didn't say anything about staying where we were standing, or standing still, so when he took off, I gave chase."

GUN BARREL protruding from a trench coat opening threatened bank teller Don Renfrew, 19, when bandit approached and demanded money. He escaped with $2,000 in small bills which he forced the teller to place in a shopping bag.

FIRST PLACE to be searched as police combed Jubilee area for bank bandit was 2211 Ida, former home for wayward girls. Pursuers, who followed the bandit for three blocks from the bank, said they lost him in that area and said that he might have entered the building.

Bride's Kiss Real Cool

LONDON (Reuters) — The best man at Bruce Lacey's wedding performed his duties with mechanical precision—he was a robot.

Operated by the bridegroom, a 40-year-old actor and inventor, the robot handed over the ring, threw confetti and even kissed the bride, actress Jill Bruce, with foam rubber lips.

Hong Kong Violence Flares Up

HONG KONG (CP) — Terrorist bombers killed a policeman, wounded five police and at least seven civilians and planted or hurled bombs throughout Hong Kong today as a new wave of Communist violence ripped through this British colony.

The terrorist attacks followed Hong Kong Communist newspaper calls for increased violence against the colony's "British Fascist authorities."

Operating mainly from rooftops, terrorists threw bombs at police and military squad cars, streetcars, and police and army demolition teams baited into position by false bombs planted on street curbs and pedestrian crossings.

At one bomb trap, Communist agitators gathered a crowd of more than 100 Chinese by passing out anti-British leaflets and then, when police arrived, hurled two bombs into the middle of the crowd. One police inspector and six civilians were wounded.

A suspected terrorist, captured in a running fight after the crowd bombing incident, was arrested and charged with attempted murder. He threw a third bomb at pursuing police but it failed to explode.

Market Gang-Up Warned

BONN (Reuters)—West German Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger told the West German Bundestag (lower house) today Britain will never get into the Common Market if her five market supporters gang up on France.

He said: "If we behaved in a way which gave the French partner the impression that we, the five, want this goal and are not interested in what you say . . . then the British application will again fail."

Kiesinger spoke after Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said: "We make no bones to anybody that the entry of Britain and other EFTA (European Free Trade Association) countries is in the German interest, both economically and politically."

ANSWERS OPPOSITION

Kiesinger responded during a major foreign policy debate after a speaker from the opposition Free Democratic Party charged that Bonn was not being tough enough toward French President de Gaulle in pressing Britain's case.

"What is needed is a patient and cautious policy," the chancellor said.

Kiesinger added West Germany would do everything—everything—in our power to bring about this unity."

Brandt said in reference to French reservations: "We have not shrugged off the arguments of the French government but are ready with our good offices to contribute to reconciling viewpoints which still diverge strongly."

BRANDT APPLAUDED

There was applause when Brandt said the West German government wanted talks on Britain's entry "to start soon."

The speech came little more than a week before a crucial meeting of the Common Market ministerial council on applications by Britain, Denmark, Norway and Ireland to join the market.

It was carefullly watched as an indication of West Germany's determination to back the British bid in face of French opposition.

The French position will be discussed by President de Gaulle and his top ministers in Paris Monday, it was reported Thursday night. That position will be put to other market members when they meet in Luxembourg Oct. 23-24.

'Dump Levesque' Move Among Quebec Grits

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP)— Quebec's opposition Liberal party may be asked this weekend to reject former welfare minister Rene Levesque along with his personal brand of separatism.

Several leading Liberals say privately that anti-Levesque forces want the party to dump their outspoken member at the annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation.

In Montreal Thursday night, Libera' Leader Jean Lesage gave force to their contention by saying publicly that the prospect of losing Mr. Levesque threatens a loss "which is gradually becoming less and less significant."

About 2,000 delegates are expected at the federation's meeting, which is expected to endorse Saturday a resolution rejecting "separatism in all its forms."

Mr. Levesque is backing an opposing resolution calling on the Liberals to endorse as party policy a sovereign, independent Quebec state within an economic association.

Thursday, Mr. Lesage said in a television interview that if the convertion votes against Mr. Levesque's resolution the former minister will "have to commit or dismiss himself" from the party.

"His conscience will dictate to him what course he must follow."

Mr. Lesage added that Mr. Levesque's departure would not hurt the party.

The resolution the Liberal leader expects his party to endorse originated in the Liberals' 100-man constitutional committee and urges a new federal constitution with greatly increased powers for Quebec.

With the conference opening tonight, talk in Liberal circles centres on the political future of Mr. Levesque, with defeat of his resolution as worded taken for granted.

Mr. Levesque, 45-year-old former minister of natural resources and welfare, has indicated he will remain in the party to fight for his ideas even if the resolution is defeated.

But several Liberals, including some former cabinet colleagues from the 1960-66 Liberal government, have apparently decided that Mr. Levesque must go.

Some Liberals are said to be considering introduction of a resolution demanding resignation of Mr. Levesque and others in the party who advocate separatism.

Among those who want Mr. Levesque to leave is Eric Kierans, president of the federation, who said in an interview the Liberals will become "clear-cut anti-separatists."

Mr. Kierans said he cannot see how the party can keep Mr. Levesque if it adopts a strong anti-separatist stand.

SOME DISAGREE

But others within the party disagree. Among those who think Mr. Levesque can stay is former education minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie, who says wide differences of opinion are commonplace in politics.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said he would not like to see a resolution asking Mr. Levesque to leave the party, if in fact Mr. Levesque chooses to stay on.

He said such a resolution would amount to a personal attack, but some sources say this is exactly what some Liberals want.

LET HANOI GIVE PROOF OF PEACE AIMS—AUSSIE

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Australia said today that United States bombing of North Vietnam should be stopped only when Hanoi gives "convincing proof" that such a step would lead toward a peaceful settlement of the war.

"The one authority that can say with certainty what would happen when bombing stopped is the government of North Vietnam," Australia's External Affairs Minister Paul M. C. Hasluck told the 122-nation UN General Assembly.

Hasluck noted that the United States has already offered to halt the bombing as a first step toward negotiations.

"The regrettable fact is that every effort to start negotiations has been rejected with scorn by Hanoi."

LAST BID SATURDAY

Bus Snarl Forces Special Session

BUT HE GOT MUCH MORE THAN $13

At 10:13 this morning, Friday the 13th there were 13 people serving customers in the Bank of Montreal at Fort and Richmond.

And that, according to manager T. B. Dunfield, is when the bank robber appeared and made off with an estimated $2,000.

After the fruitless chase of the robber, Mr. Dunfield returned to the bank and locked the door until everything was sorted out.

After an interval — it may have been 13 minutes — the manager decided to re-open. But the door lock was stuck. On top of everything else he had to call for a locksmith.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government announced today it plans to call a special session of the legislature to deal with the strike of 6,000 Montreal bus and subway workers, now in its 23rd day.

The action was announced in Quebec City following a cabinet meeting.

The cabinet scheduled another session Saturday and if strikers had not returned to work by then arrangements would be made to convene the legislature.

Court injunctions ordering the men back to work for at least 80 days have been rejected by the unions involved.

The Montreal Transportation Commission had expected to have the city's buses and subways operating on a full schedule by early Saturday if the workers had obeyed the court injunction.

However, only about 350 maintenance employees and mechanics reported for work today. No drivers showed up.

Now there is a threat that Expo Express, the free surface train linking Expo's islands, may be shut down by Saturday. Expo management met Thursday night, but no statement was issued.

The government's back-to-work ultimatum was issued by Acting Premier Paul Dozois, but it was solidly turned down by the strikers at a mass meeting Thursday night.

Accord Hopes Dim

BONN (Reuters) — West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt today put a damper on hopes that an improvement in relations between Bonn and Moscow is at last under way.

He told the Bundestag (parliament) during a foreign policy debate that a dialogue with Russia has started on certain topics.

But he added, "unfortunately there are no indications yet that we are approaching basic improvement in relations."

16 Planes Lost

SAIGON (UPI) — A U.S. military communique today said 16 American planes have been lost over North and South Vietnam in the past eight days. Only four of the aircraft losses had previously been announced.

DON'T BE A TRISKAIDEKAPHOBE

If You Can't Avoid It, Wear Low-Heeled Shoes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Avoid walking under cats" is the tongue-in-cheek advice of one man but triskaidekaphobes are sometimes reduced to shy stay-at-homes on Friday the 13th.

Today is the 13th and triskaidekaphobia—fear of the number 13—combines with other traditional bad luck signs to make life truly miserable for the superstitious.

"I always stay home," says Phil Edwards, a reporter for radio station KTYM in Inglewood, Calif. "I'd stay in bed but there's always the chance that I'll fall out so I usually go to sleep on the floor."

Helen Matusiak, a Chicago cleaning woman, says she was once told that if the first person you see on opening your window drapes in the morning on the 13th is a woman you'll have bad luck all day.

It happened to her once and she went to the store and lost $10, she said. Today, "I'm not going to open the curtains all day."

Marcia Ashley, 23, a high school teacher from Lynnfield, Mass., takes every precaution to avoid black cats. And with some reason.

"One night I was driving home when I saw a black cat walking across the road. Thinking quickly I pulled into a driveway to avoid it. I did —but I also hit the car that was parked there."

"I have no superstitions and take no precautions because I always know exactly what I'm doing,' said Dr. Jack Harper, a Helena, Mont., surgeon.

Donald R. Dehon, researcher for a Boulder, Colo., engineering firm, said a company engineer once gave him the terse advice: "Avoid walking under cats."

Allen (Black Cat) LaJombe, self-styled "unluckiest man in New Orleans," holds the grand opening of a new bar today on the theory tha "maybe Friday the 13th will give me luck for a change."

In New York City a group calling itself "The 13 Against Triskaidekaphobia" holds forth at the 13th minute of the 13th hour—1:13 p.m.—outside a Manhattan restaurant.

Any passerby brave enough to break a mirror, pass under a ladder or pitch his good luck charm into a trash can gets a free movie pass, the group said.

OTTAWA (CP)—All aspects of the United States' new anti-ballistic missile system were discussed with Canada in advance, Prime Minister Pearson said today. He was replying in the Commons to New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas.

Nigerian Battle

LAGOS (AP)—Nigerian federal forces hold most of the river town of Onitsha after a five-day fight starting with the after-dark crossing of the Niger River by nearly 1,000 troops, army sources here said today.

Doubts Growing Che Dead As Body Quickly Cremated

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Conflicting reports, rumor and the skepticism of Ernesto (Che) Guevara's family cast doubt today on the Bolivian army's claim that it had killed the Latin American revolutionary.

Government and army accounts clashed on whether the guerrilla said to be Guevara was buried or cremated, how he met his death and whether he identified himself before dying.

Guevara's brother, Roberto, arrived from Argentina Thursday to claim the body, but after conferring with Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia, commander of the army, he said Ovando told him the body had been cremated.

Wednesday the army said Gueiara's body had been buried in a secret place, and coincident with Roberto Guevara's arrival a government source said President Rene Barrientos was "of the opinion that the body should be turned over to the Guevara family."

RÉPORTS CREMATION

After Roberto Guevara told reporters about the cremation, a government spokesman said he knew nothing of it.

"It would surprise us a lot," he said. "It would have been something done at the last minute by the armed forces which the president wasn't informed about, which is difficult to believe."

Roberto refused to say if he believed the man shot in Bolivia's jungles was his brother, but cousins and nephews in Buenos Aires said they doubt he was Che.

Radiophotos of the dead man showed a likeness, they said, but not enough to convince them of Guevara's death. One cousin said Che had written his father from Paris.

Further skepticism involved a military communique that said Guevara was wounded in a battle with government troops Sunday and died Monday.

ROBERTO GUEVARA
. . . came to claim body

Death Tale Challenged

MADRID, Spain (Reuters)—Rosendo Canto Hernandez, a former Cuban diplomat, Thursday challenged Bolivian reports of the death of Ernesto (Che) Guevara.

He doubted whether the body shown to correspondents was that of the famed revolutionary.

Canto, a former Cuban ambassador to Costa Rica and Formosa, who now lives in exile here, said when he visited Havana in May, 1966, he heard discreet talk that Guevara was executed by Premier Fidel Castro.

SANDOWN PARK

Analyst's Comments — Saturday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE—Davianna does a lot of running on heart; she has a big one and if Frazier can get her clear this could be the day. Mercilynn has fair early speed but from the outside they can get shuffled out of it at the first turn. Seven L is the main danger from behind. Sam should save ground early; he finishes well. Bally Bounce was in a little trouble Wednesday and seems to be improving. Rondocal is better than shown. Sentimentally Sir Lea would be a popular choice; it's his last race and he might lower the boom with that late, late charge. Souzem and Malheur Kitten would be ineligible if they won Friday; either has a shot here . . . DAVIANNA, Seven L, Sir Lea.

SECOND RACE — Can Hola Fire make it five in a row at Sandown? If so he will be the second horse to do it (Hrynfaxe was the first). He has speed inside and outside in Spree's Fancy and Who's Haydn. The way Hola Fire is going their roles might be reduced to "spoilers." If a speed duel materializes Pidge's Pride and Hasty Hug will benefit. Both come on well; the former drops two pounds and gets Frazier. The latter hits hard and goes well for the boy. In a race where ground saved might make the marginal difference . . . PIDGE'S PRIDE, Hola Fire, Hasty Hug.

THIRD RACE—This one will make the handicappers lose a few tufts of haid. Most of these like to "gung-ho." Whiskers can fly and drops two pounds; Star Pal can hum and sheds seven; Murrayville likes the front end and drops 10. Basket Carrier can also hum but seems a shade below her best. Keno Kid ran Friday (as did Murrayville) but he relishes mud (as do most of these in varying degrees). If they take Wild Bruce just off the pace as they did Sept. 29 he could have a royal chance. Punters Joy didn't take to the route; with her style she's a danger too. In a sizzler . . . WILD BRUCE, Whiskers, Keno Kid.

FOURTH RACE—Frazier goes back to Heather W; they formed a winning combination coming off the lead and could be the pair to beat. Jayle has shown she can stay close and come on; she goes to the outside here and will need Arnold's most skillful navigating. Ready Freddy has considerable speed; if he isn't pushed early they could have trouble collaring him. Fleet Brother switches to Andrews and has been all around the money. Bo Jester and Chase are late possibilities . . . HEATHER W., Jayle, Fleet Brother.

FIFTH RACE — We look for Easy Joe to lead them away. He's looked sharp in sprints; whether he can handle the trip depends on his chance to get a breather along the way. Pils Friday likes to ramble early and Hi-Ma-Dan is never far away from the first flight although he didn't have much pace with him in his last. Shadows Sake, Jayleen (who drops six and is obviously a superior mudder) and Easy Duchess all move resolutely and certainly would be no surprise. Bucs Brother hits hard but these may be a little rough for him. We've always thought of Arigato as being primarily a sprinter but he's at his peak and his style suggests he might be running when a lot of others aren't. In a cluster . . . ARIGATO, Jayleen, Dainty Duchess.

SIXTH RACE — This is the day Seemingly may show how seemingly good he appeared to be. Never Charge will ask the question early; if the former can go head-and-head with the latter and then draw clear the rest could be in for a battle. Bouncy Belle is no slouch but in an early dogfight she may have to use up a lot of petrol. Uncle Roddy gets Frazier and was running hard in the stretch. He tends to give the rider trouble and would need clear sailing. In Solid is a tough tiger; he doesn't believe horses can whip him and he could be right. Woody Nite hasn't beaten this kind and loses Phillips but it's hard to rap her record. Short Circuit is better than shown and with a pull in weights is an interesting possibility at a price. Speed Command picks up five pounds off his brilliant win, is in good hands and should benefit from a pace duel. . . SEEMINGLY, Speed Command, Uncle Roddy.

SEVENTH RACE — Without the likes of This Is True and Princess Vega to contend with Big Cheese might roll out from the pole and dare the others to catch him. He can come off the lead too. He may not be overwhelmingly in favor of a holding track but he's a powerful runner. War Top is a tough horse who runs on anything and well. Sefton Park can stay close to the pace and under a well-timed move looms as one to fear. Gladys Ann is perhaps the key. She will be much tighter today and the youngster hustles hard. Kenos Boy is hard to figure; his style suggests he should appreciate the route but these don't give up easily. Handsome Chief could knock them for a loop. His mud credentials are impressive and he looked like he had something left in both recent victories. . . . BIG CHEESE, Handsome Chief, Gladys Ann.

EIGHTH RACE — Picalad could lead these home. He came to life under the rider and was narrowly whipped on the money. My Imagination is about ready to put up an argument. At the weights Miss Electric might barrel out but she hasn't been sticking. If Famous Bayboy gets rolling in time he's a danger. . . . PICALAD, My Imagination, Famous Bayboy.

"O Tony! Isn't it exciting, we almost had to line up!"

Blast Destroys Terminal As Voting Held on Pact

PITTSBURGH (AP)—An explosion and fire destroyed a terminal owned by the head of the National Steel Carriers Association today, and rocks, bullets and firebombs showered trucks in three states.

The renewed violence reinforced a view that hopes for a quick settlement of the two-month-old strike by thousands of steel haulers were sputtering out.

The trucking company executives have split into two groups. A spokesman for one said it was opposed to a peace plan drawn in Pittsburgh. The strikers are voting on it anyway.

Spokesmen for the second group said they also are opposed to the original recommendations and have offered a compromise. The strikers said they will not vote on the substitute.

The explosion rocked a small terminal of B and P Motor Express Inc. at Fallston north of Pittsburgh just before dawn. Firemen said the building was a total loss. B and P is headed by Howard Miller, president of the National Steel Carriers Association.

At Greensburg, east of Pittsburgh, state police reported that windshields on 10 trucks were smashed by rocks. No one was hurt. A bullet ripped open a tire on a truck near Gibsonia on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Snipers fired on two strike-breaking trucks and a car near Middletown, Ohio. Three firebombs were thrown at a parked truck near Youngstown. Two of the bombs did not explode. No one was hurt.

Plenty of Advice During Money Debate

By TOM MITCHELL

OTTAWA (CP)—The Commons ended debate on Finance Minister Sharp's budget Thursday without a formal vote.

But Mr. Sharp and the rest of the cabinet got plenty of advice on a host of subjects before the six-day debate terminated.

Talk in the House Thursday ranged from whether Canadians have been brainwashed on communism to wage parity for Canadian auto workers with their union brethren in the United States.

Along the way, it covered opinions on just who was responsible for bringing Expo 67 to Canada, what to do about pollution in the Ottawa River and the Vietnam war, and who should be paying for a new bridge across Vancouver's Burrard Inlet.

The budget debate, which brought two tests of confidence in the minority Liberal government, ended quietly without a formal vote. MPs merely called "on division" to record their opposition to the budget Mr. Sharp brought down last June.

WON BOTH VOTES

The government won both votes without trouble.

With the budget out of the way, the Commons today turns to a government bill to create a new department to handle consumer and corporate affairs.

Jack Bigg (PC—Athabasca) said Canadians are being "systematically brainwashed" by anti-American propaganda over the Vietnam war. The public was not getting the true picture from the government or the news media.

Mr. Bigg suggested Canada should shoulder 10 per cent of the cost of the Vietnam war; should be prepared to send troops to help the Americans; and should be thankful that President Johnson of the United States was Canada's neighbor.

Mr. Sherman said he was shocked to hear Mr. Reuther demand, on a recent Canadian television program, wage parity for Canada auto workers with their American counterparts.

Mr. Reuther probably did not realize that his demands would "blow our economic system out of existence."

When Canadian productivity matched that of the United States, then it would be time to talk about Canadian wage parity," Mr. Sherman said.

David MacDonald (PC—Prince) blistered the government for its attitude towards the civilians suffering in the Vietnam war. Canada had acted in a "shoddy way" when it could have seized an opportunity that was "grand and glorious."

NOT GIVEN AID

Canada had not supplied the food and medical aid that it should have. It had sent $60,000 where people did not use it and more than $700,000 worth of flour to a country where rice was the staple.

Mr. MacDonald, a United Church minister, said he is glad External Affairs Minister Martin has finally abandoned "quiet diplomacy" and called for a unilateral halt by the U.S. of bombing North Vietnam.

Gaston Clermont (L—Labelle) said Ontario and Quebec should join Ottawa in a concerted drive to clean up pollution in the Ottawa River, for many miles the boundary between the two provinces.

Municipalities along the river, particularly between Pembroke and Hawkesbury on the Ontario side, would be hard hit unless the provinces could provide financial and technical aid, Mr. Clermont said.

Paul Beaulieu (PC—St. Jean - Iberville - Napierville), a former cabinet minister in the Union Nationale government of Quebec, said he is tired of Quebec MPs trying to saddle his provincial government with the blame for many Quebec problems.

It was the provincial Union Nationale government in power when negotiations were opened that led to Canada getting Expo 67, he claimed.

The Union Nationale government had also built up the University of Montreal, Laval University at Quebec City and the University of Sherbrooke without subjecting the people to crushing taxes.

Mr. Beaulieu said the federal government has so overtaxed Canadians the revenues needed by the provinces for their own development are not available.

Robert Prittie (NDP—Burnaby-Richmond) said Ottawa should think twice about volunteering $100,000,000, most of it in loans, to help British Columbia build a new crossing for Burrard Inlet, at Vancouver. Responsibility for a new crossing rests with the provincial government and it is trying to evade it, Mr. Prittie said.

'More Liberal Lottery Laws'

OTTAWA (CP) — Justice Minister Trudeau indicated Thursday the government plans to make lottery laws more liberal.

In response to a question in the Commons, Mr. Trudeau said changes are planned.

Outside the House, he told reporters:

"If there are going to be amendments, it would seem to me they can only be in one direction."

He said amendments to the Criminal Code on lotteries would be introduced in the current parliamentary session.

Under the present law, gambling including lotteries is illegal with certain exceptions. Most prominent exception is pari-mutuel betting at race tracks.

CLUBS GAMBLE

But gambling is also permitted at bona fide social clubs, by organizations which turn the proceeds over for charitable or religious purposes and at agricultural fairs.

Mr. Trudeau said he has not considered changes to permit off-track betting. At the same time he declined to give details on lottery changes. They had to be given to the Commons first.

Money raised through lotteries is relatively small compared with other revenue producers, but there may be something to be said for keeping lottery money in Canada rather than allowing it to go to outside lotteries, he said.

He did not feel strongly one way or the other about lotteries.

He did not think the Criminal Code should make lotteries a "great crime."

The planned changes are permissive only, he indicated. He gave no indication the government planned to get into the lottery field.

Mr. Turdeau said he had received a number of representations seeking lottery changes. One came from Mary English, a longtime campaigner for lottery liberalization.

Mrs. English, 55, praised Mr. Trudeau's statement in an interview as the first step in government action. She credited pressure from the Canadian people with having brought the lottery topic to the notice of politicians.

Police Still Under Investigation

QUEBEC (CP)—Mayor Gilles Lamontagne said Thursday no promotions or transfers will be given municipal police until provincial police finish their investigation into allegations that some city officers have been taking bribes from garage owners.

Mr. Lamontagne said complaints against the municipal police were received about three months ago.

He said the allegations are that some members of the municipal police traffic section have received money from garage owners after giving them instructions to tow cars away from no parking areas.

One More Channel to Cross...

THE GENERAL BRITISH ATTITUDE on the country's entry into the European Common Market exhibits a not un-British paradox: The country seems to be increasingly united on the desirability of becoming a member of the European Community, but at the same time the likelihood of an early admittance is seen as becoming more remote. How these conflicting trends will be reconciled may depend on forthcoming talks, but the situation has not been demonstrably improved by the recent report of the European Commission.

This report notes Britain's economic problems and the weakness of the pound sterling and it is apparent that these conditions will have to be rectified before the British application will receive support. As the Economist of London says: "the Commission is worried that the (Market) would be absorbing a Britain that has had an awful lot of balance of payments crises within the past few years, and which the Commission believes . . . has not done anything sufficiently fundamental since 1964 to remove the probability that it is going to have more balance of payments crises in future".

One thing Britain can now claim is that all its political segments are in agreement on the matter of the application. Last week's endorsement by the Labor Party prompted the Daily Telegraph to observe that "President de Gaulle will not be able to say that any representative section of British public opinion is now opposed to a sincere and determined effort to join Europe".

But that, of course, is far from enough. Prime Minister Wilson has frequently emphasized that Britain "must enter the Common Market on a wave of prosperity, not as a hunted debtor seeking any port in a storm". And a wave of prosperity is something Britain cannot confidently predict at the moment.

The position of the British pound, not only as a reserve currency for the sterling bloc, but also as a future component of the continental financial structure is one of the main causes of European delay. Even West Germany is now reported to be reluctant to lead a parade for Britain's early entry, particularly in view of General de Gaulle's continuing opposition.

The best that can be said for the present situation is that the door has not been banged shut. It is still ajar, inviting further negotiations. The deepening of Britain's economic predicament spurs London's desire to join the Market, but it also cools Europe's desire to accept the new partner. That is a precarious balance, and at the moment it is not tipping in the direction of Britain's membership of the group. Mr. Wilson is in somewhat the position of a man who needs a suit to wear to the tailor's. His Party's recorded support is gratifying but not decisive.

Inner Turmoil

AN IDEA OF THE EXTENT TO which opposition to President Johnson's Vietnam policy has grown in his own Democratic Party can be gained from a defensive move now contemplated by the Democratic National Committee. A "loyalty oath" has been proposed which would have to be signed by all delegates to the party nominating convention in Chicago next August before they would be recognized and allowed to vote.

Such a move would be unprecedented in American political party history and could bar delegates from such key states as New York and California where "Dump Johnson" groups threaten to dominate the Democratic slates. It is a reflection, however, of the low standing of the President in the political popularity polls.

By no means all (or perhaps even most) of the opposition to the Johnson candidacy from the professional politicians is on high moral grounds. A number of the pros are simply worried that with the President's Vietnam policy under strong attack from all sides, his continued leadership of the party will almost guarantee a Republican majority in Congress even if Mr. Johnson can retain his position. The stronger-than-expected showing of Republicans in the off-year Congressional race last year, when the President's personal popularity was still high, has a lot of Democratic leaders worried.

Mr. Johnson's chief weapon against the dissidents is that he controls the party at the national level and with this goes control of the bulk of party funds. Given the heavy expense of winning a nomination and the even greater expense of campaigning, a threat from the national committee to withhold election funds is potent.

With almost a year to go before campaigning begins in earnest, a lot could happen to change the present American political picture. But if Mr. Johnson is unable to bring the Vietnam war to a satisfactory conclusion, or to win wider public support for his war policy, and if it is necessary to raise taxes and to cut even more deeply into federal welfare and other programs, the Democratic Party may be badly split by election time.

Mr. Thatcher Moves Ahead

RECOUNTS MAY SLIGHTLY alter the 11-seat margin of victory for Premier Ross Thatcher in Saskatchewan, but his Liberal government clearly has retained office with increased strength. Mr. Thatcher may take full satisfaction from that, although the percentage increase in the Liberals' popular vote was paralleled by the CCF, which is only one percentage point behind.

On the basis of the arithmetic of the polls, 46 per cent of the electors approved the administration's record and Mr. Thatcher's attack on the "stagnation of socialism," 45 per cent supported the CCF promise to include drugs under medicare and the attack on the Liberals as the friends of "big business."

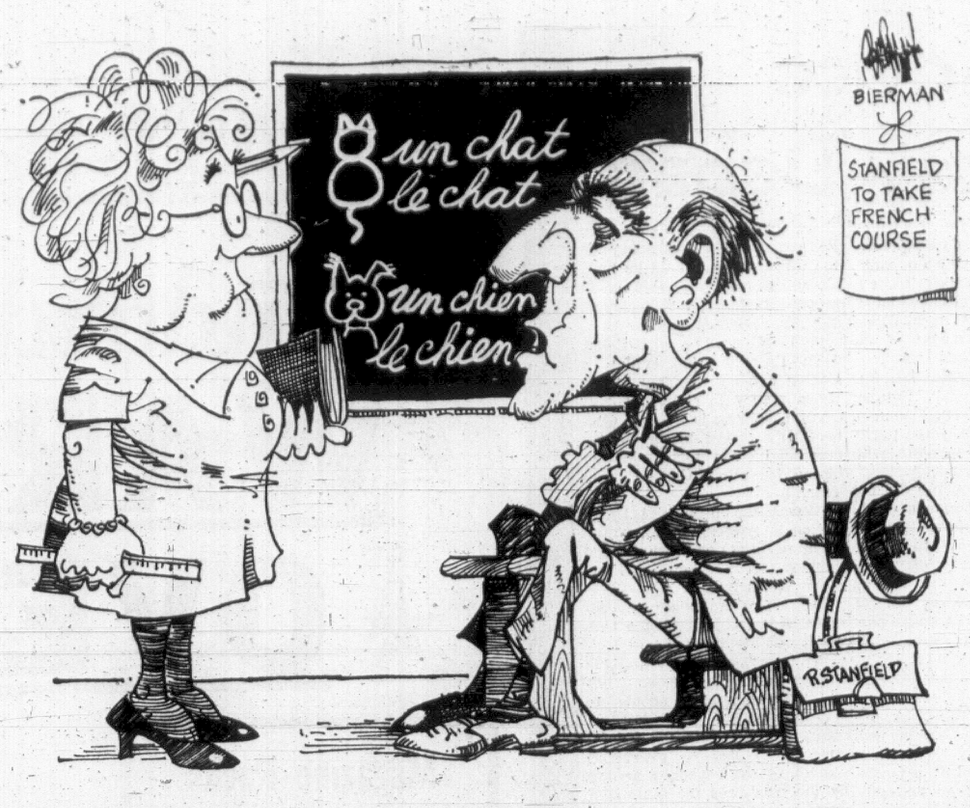
Social Credit candidates came nowhere and the Conservatives lost their lone member in a slide that cut their total vote to one-third of the figure in the 1964 provincial election.

The latter result is surprising in view of the Conservative sweep in the last federal election, when Saskatchewan sent a solid 17 Tory members to Ottawa. The separation of provincial and federal political loyalties, observable in most of the provinces, is particularly striking in this instance.

Mr. Thatcher's victory, therefore, can carry no implications for the federal scene. But it does indicate that the long popularity of socialism in Saskatchewan is definitely on the wane. The emergence there of a straight two-party political situation, however, might be the precursor of a trend in federal politics which was recently urged by Alberta's Premier Manning and approved—in principle—by many other politicians.

Question and Answer

THE VICTORIA YOUTH COUNcil requests that voters be asked at the next election if they favor placing two youth representatives on city council and five on the school board. That question requires no referendum. The answer to it should be clear: "Certainly, provided they meet the requirements of any candidate for those offices and are elected in accordance with the regulations laid down for anyone else."



BIERMAN

"... the first phrases I want to learn are 'No, definitely not, but . . .', 'Absolutely out of the question, however . . .', 'Preposterous, although . . .', 'Never, but on the other hand . . .', 'Impossible, with reservations . . .' and so on . . ."

Realism In Quebec

Toronto Telegram

Editor Claude Ryan of Le Devoir (Montreal), pointing out the need for outside investment funds, comments, "These investments will . . . only come if we know how to attract them by a combination of conditions, among which economic competence of the Quebec government and political stability figure prominently, whether we like it or not."

Mr. Ryan goes on to warn that unless the provincial government clearly defines its economic and political goals, and accepts the fact that the two are indissolubly linked, the result will be stagnation or collapse.

The Levesques and Tremblays are becoming more and more isolated. But responsible Canadians everywhere must support the Johnsons and Kierans for this is a matter that cuts across party lines.

Mr. Johnson himself holds great hopes for Premier Robarts' Confederation for Tomorrow conference to be held next month in Toronto. He is also heartened by the increasing awareness in other provinces of French Canada's aspirations, as indicated by recent school legislation in Ontario and Manitoba.

Moderate Quebeckers will be heartened by the knowledge that the rest of Canada wants to keep Quebec in Confederation too.

Protection for Juvenile Delinquents—or Otherwise?

A DECISION of the Supreme Court of Canada has cleared the way for the government to proceed with revised legislation on the subject of juvenile delinquency. Mr. Pennell, the solicitor-general, intends to consult first with the provinces on the substance of the new proposals since the enforcement responsibility rests with them.

Western

The British Columbia case in question arose in 1964 when David Smith, a juvenile accused of driving beyond the speed limit, was tried in the ordinary courts and fined $400 by a Prince George magistrate. In proceeding in this fashion, the magistrate held that he was exercising a power under the Summary Convictions Act to deal with an offence against a provincial statute, the Motor Vehicle Act. He also took into consideration a record of prior convictions.

Smith appealed to the Supreme Court of British Columbia, seeking an order to quash the conviction on the ground that the magistrate had exceeded his jurisdiction by dealing with the case in this manner. He was successful. The Attorney-General then intervened but the Appeal Court upheld the order on a split decision.

Joint Attack

The case then went to the Supreme Court of Canada, with Quebec and Ontario joining British Columbia in the attack on the Juvenile Delinquents' Act and the federal government defending its validity.

While the case was, of course, decided on legal grounds, the controversy in British Columbia seems also to have involved a moral argument. The Federal act sets out an offence, namely juvenile delinquency, of an umbrella character. While it may involve some minor infraction, such as riding a bicycle on the sidewalk, it may equally apply to any punishable breach of the public law, whether defined by parliament or the legislatures.

Thus it is alleged to carry a stigma; perhaps conveying to outsiders a notion that the offender may have committed theft or rape when in fact he was disciplined for nothing more than an unimportant misdemeanor.

As applied to the actual case, the argument is a little curious since British Columbia was allegedly attempting to protect a youth who evidently wanted none of the protection. Eminent lawyers on both sides of politics also note that the argument is two-edged. Since the offence is not specified, the boy who falls into serious trouble is obviously far less handicapped in after life than he would otherwise be.

In any case the B.C. contention is considered to be greatly exaggerated. These matters are dealt with in comparative secrecy and the question which may afterwards arise is generally: have there been any convictions under the Criminal Code? — to which the answer in the case of a juvenile is no.

It is assumed in Ottawa that the true motivation of the three provinces is the usual sensitivity about jurisdiction, particularly where provincial statutes are involved. There is, however, sympathy with the view that the age limit for juveniles, which now varies across the country, ought to be made uniform by agreement among the governments concerned.

Validity Questioned

There were two questions before the Supreme Court. The first and basic one was whether the Juvenile Delinquents Act, originally passed in 1908, is valid legislation in relation to the criminal law . . . including the procedure in criminal matters (article 91, head 27 of the BNA Act). It was the provincial contention that it was instead legislation relating to the welfare of children, as clarified by the Adoption Act case of 1938 or, generally, an infringement of the right of the province to impose fines or penalties to enforce provincial laws. (Section 92, head 15).

Manifestly, if this argument had been upheld the Act would fall to the ground and there would be no special protection for juveniles anywhere in Canada until, presumably, remedial action had been taken by the various legislatures. Thus the whole business of revision by the federal authority was at a standstill until the B.C. case had been settled in one fashion or another.

There was a second line of attack. British Columbia maintained that the Act, even if valid, should not operate to prevent a juvenile from being prosecuted for an offence under the B.C. Motor Vehicles Act in accordance with provisions of the Summary Convictions Act.

The Supreme Court found unanimously that criminal law, as used in our Constitutional Act, means criminal law in its widest sense. The power assigned to parliament includes the power to make new crimes as well as power to enact legislation designed for the prevention of crimes. It is the function of parliament, not of the courts, to decide what legislation is necessary to the efficient exercise of this plenary jurisdiction.

Even if such legislation does indirectly affect provincial jurisdiction, the question is whether, in its true nature and character, it is legislation genuinely enacted in relation to criminal law and not legislation which used this guise to encroach on provincial fields.

Intent Sought

To ascertain the true intent of the act, the court looked at the preamble, the interpretation section and the operative provisions.

The preamble declares, in somewhat old-fashioned language: "Whereas it is inexpedient that youthful offenders should be classed or dealt with as ordinary criminals, the welfare of the community demanding that they should on the contrary be guarded against association with crime and criminals, and should be subjected to such wise care, treatment and control as will tend to check their evil tendencies and to strengthen their better instincts . . ."

The interpretation section states that care and discipline is to approximate as nearly as possible that which should be given by parents and that the juvenile should be treated not as criminal but as a misdirected and misguided child.

To this end various sections provide for complete separation from adults at any stage during the enforcement process, prohibit confinement at gaols in which adults may be imprisoned, require trials without publicity, in privacy and, if possible, in the judge's private office, and prohibit the publication of a report likely to disclose the identity of the juvenile.

Preventive

The court had no doubt that such provisions were essentially intended to prevent juveniles from becoming criminals and that the objectives fell clearly within the field of criminal law. It was for this reason that parliament had created the offence of delinquency. While the legislation, by granting a special sort of protection, should enhance welfare, the interest of the child was not the sole question since there was also involved the interest of the community in the administration of justices.

As to the fall-back position of the provincial lawyers, it was based on an argument of grammatical construction which the judges threw out because it would have defeated the whole purpose of the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

The decision, by no means unexpected in Ottawa, is welcomed here because the general effect is to strengthen the federal jurisdiction in matters pertaining to criminal law and procedure.

FROM SAIGON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Manpower Costs Change Hanoi War Plans

UNLESS the most expert analysts are sadly mistaken, the end of the present phase of the Vietnamese war is announced, and the opening of a quite different phase is described, in a leviathan article by Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the North Vietnamese commander-in-chief and a leading politburo member.

Alsop

Correctly interpreted — and careful interpretation is needed, as usual — the Giap article means that the Hanoi leaders have been forced to abandon the immensely costly effort to sustain the kind of big unit war that has gone on in South Vietnam ever since the major U.S. intervention in July, 1965.

Seen against the background of the Giap article, the siege of Con Thien was the coda, as it were, of this long and bloody phase of the fighting. Thus this phase actually ended when the siege was broken off under the heavy pressure applied by Gen. William C. Westmoreland to relieve the Con Thien garrison.

In the new phase that the Giap article blueprints, there will still be some enemy big units. But they will be both fewer and smaller — battalions at most, probably, instead of regiments and divisions. For "quality" is now the watchword rather than "quantity." Giap stresses this point strongly.

The blueprint calls, in other words, for a halfway or even three-quarters of the way retreat into Phase II of the Chinese and North Vietnamese rulebooks. But complete retreat into classical, small unit guerrilla war in early Phase II style is not called for, almost certainly because the Viet Cong military and political infrastructure could not withstand the shock of total deprivation of support from the "big brothers," as the enemy's big units are sometimes called in the captured documents.

Nonetheless, the change in the war's pattern should be very great indeed. And the failure that the Giap article admits by implication, is again very great indeed.

Hysterical Exaggeration

Failure, it must be stressed, is admitted by implication only. For thousands upon thousands of words, with almost hysterical exaggeration, the Giap article claims all sorts of "surging successes" but no general whose every move has been "a surging success" radically changes the orders to the troops. And that is what Gen. Giap has basically done.

This change is indicated by a revision in the old formula for the big unit war. This formula was "preparing for protracted war while seeking victory in the shortest possible time." Victory in the shortest possible time" was defined as a Dienbienphu-like success, resulting from the "annihilation of an entire American brigade or even an American battalion."

As can be seen, military common sense has long called for a change in this over-ambitious troop structure which North Vietnam could no longer support. The troop structure was put in place to "seek victory in the shortest possible time." But that phrase, so endlessly repeated in the past, is conspicuously absent from the Giap articles. Instead, the article, while claiming all sorts of victories except the one kind of victory the old formla demanded, speaks only and often of "protracted war" lasting "up to 20 years." A virtue is made of this grim necessity, as follows:

"The longer the fight, the more mature our forces."

The key role of the manpower difficulty is indicated again and again by the repeated remark that "our country is small and not very populous." The theme is stressed again and again that "to defeat the enemy, the armed forces must have a certain number of troops and at the same time be of high quality. (But) of these two aspects, special emphasis must be laid upon quality."

Significant

Other solid points of great significance can be extracted from the vast morass of verbiage in the Giap article. For example, besides laying far more emphasis than the earlier documents on classical guerrilla fighting and the "political struggle," the article places very special emphasis on the kind of operations conducted by the small but troublesome enemy sapper units. This means, in effect, much more strenuous efforts to put rockets and mortars on Danang and other vulnerable points.

But the essence of the article, nonetheless, is the message that the big unit war can no longer be continued on the former scale. There is speculation that Gen. Giap began to take this view rather early, but was only able to carry the day in the central committee when the terrible increase in the manpower bill converged with the death of the chief proponent of the big war, the former North Vietnamese commander in the South, Gen. Nguyen Chi Thanh.

As Gen. Westmoreland's strategy has always been aimed at the enemy's big units, he must now be credited with a major, perhaps decisive success. But the question remains: What will be the effect of the war's new pause?

Looking Back

From The Times, Oct. 13, 1907.

Paris — Dr. Keating Hart of Marseilles, gave a practical demonstration here today of the new electro-surgical cure for cancer, which up to the present time has secured most wonderful results.

The system consists of applying high tension intermittent sparks to the cancer growths. These are softened by the electricity and their cutting is made much easier.

At the same time the electricity causes the wound to heal.

In a happier time Che Guevara is shown with his parents in Havana in 1959 when he was the hero with Fidel Castro of the successful revolution against the Batista regime. He was killed by Bolivian troops this week while engaged in an ill-fated attempt to foment revolt among unresponsive Bolivian peasants.

Che Ignored Own Rules In Bolivian Adventure

By LEWIS H. DIUGUID
The Washington Post

Che Guevara, dead at 39 in the Bolivian jungle, was in this age of the guerrilla the true revolutionary of the Western world.

More than his fellow guerrilla fighter Fidel Castro, whom he helped win the Cuban war, Guevara believed in violent revolution as the only path to redemption of Latin America, and even the world.

Guevara was more brilliant as a tactician than as a theortician but his hyper-Marxist philosophy had great impact on youth frustrated with the continent's stagnation. Che said simply that U.S. domination of Latin America corrupted and thwarted it; that North American domination could end only in violence.

"Let the flag under which we fight be the sacred cause of redeeming humanity," he said, and with that he would quit the wordage and commence to fight.

After the startling Cuban victory in 1959, Che tried to settle down as Castro's central banker, then as industries minister. But by all the evidence, Guevara was too revolutionary either for Castro or his Soviet creditors. Soon Guevara returned to guerrilla warfare.

Africa, Vietnam

From March 21, 1965 until last Monday, no one could prove even that Che was alive or dead, but in retrospect it seems that he dabbled in Africa and perhaps Vietnam before taking up his proclaimed ambition of inflaming the Andes.

In January of this year Regis Debray, disciple of Guevara and Castro, wrote in "Revolution in the Revolution?":

"When Comrade Che Guevara once again took up insurrectional work, he accepted on an international level the consequences of the line of action which Fidel Castro . . . is the incarnation.

"When Che Guevara reappears, it is hardly risky to assert that it will be as the head of a guerrilla movement, as its unquestioned political and military leader."

Guevara's own copy of the Debray book was captured in a Bolivian jungle cave last August, along with his forged passports. In red ink, Guevara underlined Debray's phrase about Che as the unquestioned leader and added in the margin: "As the inexorable condition."

But perhaps because Guevara had his eye on a continental revolution this time, he seems to have ignored some of the axioms in his own bible "Guerrilla Warfare" and in Debray's book as well.

Battle Guide

Guevara's handbook has been carried into battle by leftwing plotters in Venezuela, Columbia, Peru and Guatemala since he wrote it in 1960, transcribing the experiences of the Cuban Sierra Maestra.

"The guerrilla preferably should be an inhabitant of the area," he said, but Guevara brought half a dozen high-ranking Cubans down to domineer the Bolivian peasant recruits.

"The guerrilla fighter must risk his life . . . . but he must be cautious and never expose himself unnecessarily. . . . He must be silent," said Guevara. But he published a letter in Havana that all but pinpointed him in Bolivia.

"The guerrilla fighter must have a health of iron which allows him to resist . . . . adversities without falling ill," said Guevara. But his life-long asthma slowed him so in the jungle steam that he reportedly had to be carried in the flight from pursuing troops.

Debray quotes Guevara as an authority in warning against establishment of a defence perimeter by the guerrillas, yet Guevara's force launched its Bolivian operation by buying a farm.

However the basic question that insurrectionist will ask around the hemisphere will be whether or not Bolivia was the right place to launch a revolution.

In the end it may turn out that Guevara misinterpreted the revolutionary temper of the people he was trying to lead. Reports indicated that Che was genuinely astonished at the lack of dedication on the part of the Bolivian peasants. The future of the guerrilla movements in Bolivia and Venezuela will provide clues to this question.

Guevara was born in Argentina on June 14, 1928. He took a medical degree in his native Argentina in 1953 but never took up practice, preferring the itinerant life of a conspirator in search of a revolution.

While the Castro brothers and Guevara prepared the invasion of Cuba, Che married the Peruvian conspirator Hilda Gadea, with Raul Castro as best man, in Mexico City.

She bore him a daughter but later the couple was divorced and Guevara married a Cuban school teacher. The two wives and daughter still live in Cuba.

While Che was there he formally adopted Cuban citizenship and incorporated the Argentine-slang Che — "Mac" — as part of his name.

Left Desk

Soon after his return to Havana Guevara disappeared. Nine months later Castro read a letter from Che in which he renounced his citizenship and said he had departed for other revolutionary calls. The letter seemed to imply criticism of Castro.

Castro is trying to build Cuba's farm potential in domestic peace, but Che was for industrialization — and not at all for peace.

Debray, in his book, at one point criticizes an audacious tactic of Guevara in the Cuban war as premature. Che seemed a little hurt by that, adding in the margin: "To climb Mt. Everest is premature aspiration also, until you learn the way — the learning, that is the action."

Che was a romantic guerrilla who died fighting. One of his axioms covered that also. "Never take prisoners," he said.

High School Farewell!

By RICHARD J. NEEDHAM
The Globe and Mail

Needham

In this corner yesterday, I printed a letter from Frustrated Frances, a young lady who is trying — against awful handicaps — to teach French to Grades 9, 10 and 11 at a commercial and technical school. F.F.'s chief trouble is that her students don't want to learn French but are compelled to take it as part of their course.

After reading F.F.'s letter, it's my personal prediction that her first year of teaching will also be her last. This is what happened with Nancy Beckett of Toronto, who's been helping me out around the office for the last few weeks. Nancy lasted one year teaching French at a high school; now she's out of the school system, and she doen't think she'll ever go back. Let's have a conversation with Nancy.

Q. What drove you out of teaching?

A. The exact situation Frances describes in her letter. A whole year of trying to force students to learn something they hated and could see no meaning in—just so they could pass a set of memory-work exercises they call examinations.

Q. I'm sad to hear students "hate" French; it's a beautiful language. which opens the door to some of the world's greatest literature. But if they do in fact hate it, they shouldn't be forced to learn it, can't be forced to learn it; people can't be forced to learn anything. Would you agree?

A. Certainly. Learning for an examination, and only for an examination, is worse than useless. The students not only forget what they crammed as soon as they've written the paper; they also aquire a lifelong hatred for whatever it was they were forced to study. Besides, I wouldn't blame them in the slightest for hating French the way it is presently taught.

It's not a spoken language or a literature to our students; it's a lot of picky grammar rules to memorize and apply, it's hundreds of pages of "vocabulary" to sit down and memorize, it's involved constructions to translate, translate, translate into a French that was stilted and archaic a hundred years ago. The methods and courses of study seem to have been invented with a view to taking as much joy as possible out of learning another language.

Q. There are students who really do want to learn French. What' the best way to teach them? My feeling is that for this and other academic subjects, the school should be abolished completely. Let the students who want to learn French go to the teacher's house, and let him or her do the teaching there. Would that work?

A. That's good. But if a student really wants to learn French, does he need a teacher at all? He certainly shouldn't be going to one whose native tongue is English. The only way to learn a language is by spending some time—at least a year—in a country or district where that language is spoken. It wouldn't be too difficult for Ontario students to go to, let us say, Quebec City. Of course, the ideal thing would be to go to France itself, and be surrounded by people who can't or won't speak a word of English. They'd have to use their French or starve. In six months they'd be talking quite confidently.

Q. What's wrong with the high schools generally? I think they're horrible places, with all the rules and the regimentation and the paperwork and the terribly sullen, depressing atmosphere — force, force, force; fear, fear, fear. Does it hit teachers that way?

A. I think most would say yes. There's not a teacher who comes into the building happy and eager to begin the day, or who is sorry to see the end of the last class. We are pitifully glad when Friday afternoon comes and we have a whole two days before the battle begins again. But I feel there is something tragically wrong with a system that pits human beings against each other and requires one (the teacher) to "control" the other 35, by persuasion, threats, or outright force.

What does controlling students have to do with education? That's not a teacher's job. A teacher's job is to give instruction in his field of specialization to those who want to learn. He's not a nursemaid or a jailer or a clerk; but under our present system he wastes 90 per cent of his time and energy filling those and other equally demeaning roles.

Q. Do you see any way to change this? How can we make schools into places where students can really learn, and teachers can really teach?

A. If I knew the answer to that, I'd still be teaching. But I think, first and foremost, that the students should be made free—free to choose their subjects (and their teachers), free to attend or not, as they wish. Why should they practically be shot if they skip a class? And secondly, I'd like to see the whole emphasis on examinations and achievement done away with. The school should be a place of learning, where the students are exposed to the whole body of Western culture, to absorb as much of it as they can or want to—not to spout back on a piece of paper, but to benefit themselves as individuals.

Meditation

LONDON — According to the highest meditation sources, everyone has missed the point about The Beatles' visit to India later this month. They are not going in order to meditate: Their purpose is to become teachers of meditation.

Their teachers' training course, which does not commit them to anything, is run by His Holiness, Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, and goes through three phases. Phase one is the get-ready phase, featuring talks and lectures by Maharishi.

In phase two, you meditate for longer periods ("increasing the clarity of the experience so that explanation can be precise"), and Maharishi explains the nature of the experiences you have had. In this phase everything becomes very quiet and gentle.

In phase three, as in the last stage of a Turkish bath, you are brought gradually back into active life; meditation is reduced, you are sent for drives into the country, or shopping, or bathing in the Ganges (along with 800 photographers, if you're a Beatle).

Two Specialized Kinds Of Bottom-Living Fishes

By DR. CLIFFORD CARL
Director, Provincial Museum

Carl

While most bottom-loving fishes have tended to develop along certain broad lines which have fitted them for living in this particular habitat some have become rather highly specialized with a unique and distinctive body form. Two such groups are the skates and the flounders; both have a much flattened body but each has attained this shape by two quite distinct routes.

The skates, and their close relatives the rays, are offshoots of the shark group and like these early fishes they have a skeleton of cartilage instead of bone, tooth-like scales in a tough skin, and gill slits on either side of the head. In habit, however, they differ in living very close to or actually on the bottom. This has resulted in a number of modifications to fit them for this particular mode of life.

The most obvious adaptation is the greatly flattened body. A skate or ray is shaped as if it were squeezed from the top down causing the body to be spread out sideways into a shape resembling a guitar or banjo. In fact one species is actually called guitar fish because of its striking outline. The eyes are now upon the upper surface, often elevated to improve the field of vision, and the mouth and gill slits open on the under surface.

This overall body plan has necessitated a few rather drastic changes in fin placement and development. The two side fins or pectorals now form lateral extensions of the body and are therefore much broadened and lengthened to suit their new position. They, and the muscles that operate them, are the so-called "wings" in the fish trade. The pelvics also add to the general outline by being broadly developed. The dorsal fins, when present, are small and placed far back on the narrow tail. The tail fin is lacking.

Thanks to their peculiar shape the skates and rays can lead a comparatively sluggish life by resting directly upon the bottom. They project very little above the mud or sand and their drab color causes them to merge into their background. The ventrally placed mouth equipped with crushing teeth enables them to feed directly on animals living on the bottom and a pair of breathing pores or spiracles opening on the upper surface allows water to enter the gill chambers without carrying in silt and sand.

The flounder group, including the sanddabs, soles and the halibut have originated from much more modern bony fishes. They are greatly modified for bottom life but they have become flattened as if compressed from the sides. As a consequence these fishes spend most of their life resting on either the right or left side. To allow for this some rather extensive modifications have also taken place in their body plan, particularly in relation to the head.

When young of the flounder group are first hatched they resemble the young of most other fishes and swim in the upright position. Soon, however, certain changes take place which cause the young fish to settle on the bottom and to rest on one or other of its sides. The changes include a shifting of one eye to the new upper surface, a move which is accomplished by twisting skull bones, and an overdevelopment of the dorsal and anal fins to form a border to the edges of the now flattened body. A change in pigmentation also occurs; the new undersurface becomes pale, the new uppersurface darkens.

The two unrelated groups of fishes represented by the skates and the flounders resemble each other superficially in body form and in habits since they are fitted to occupy the same habitat but they differ widely in their origin, fin development and other major structural details.

FRENCH-ENGLISH

The Main Problem Is Communication

By FRED EDGE

(Author, playwright and reporter, Mr. Edge moved his family to Quebec two years ago. From the outset they tried to live as Quebecois, initially among French-Canadians in Laurentian villages and later in Montreal. In a series of three articles he reports on his experiences.)

There is one big people problem today in Canada.

It is not French. It is not English.

It is the problem of communication between the two.

For the past two years I have lived with my family in the sophisticated backwoods of the Laurentian Mountains and in the swinging city of Expo Montreal as one of the new "Quebecois" — a non-French, non-English resident of "La Belle Province."

This is the "new wave" sort of person who today is slowly but surely becoming the mainstream of the Quebec community. His background may be French, it may be English, but his present and his future are Canadian.

He is not a separatist. But when it comes to dealing with the political boys in Ottawa, he is a bully.

He will use any means at his disposal — including the spectre of separatism—to bluff and browbeat the politicians into giving him what he feels is his right.

Before anyone heaves a sigh of relief at what appears to be the simplicity of the problem — after all, they already speak two languages in Quebec — the full implications of this must be understood.

Mixed Group

My French-speaking friend, a young Montreal lawyer, was sitting with our mixed French-English group in a French tavern in Ville Marie, the picturesque old city of Montreal. Out of deference to my small command of conversational French, as a courtesy to me, he was making his point in English.

"Let us say I am motoring through Brandon, Man., or Lethbridge, Alberta," he said, "and I am stopped for speeding. The arresting officer speaks to me in English and I answer him in French. From that point on he must speak French to me.

"I must be arrested, charged and tried in French. Until I am guaranteed this right throughout the country, until Canada is truly and completely bilingual, I will be a Quebecer first and a Canadian second."

This young lawyer was not speaking as a radical. His attitude was typical of almost every French-Canadian I met and spoke with during my two years in Quebec. There is a time for change, they say, and the time is now.

A Comparison

The comparison may seem odd, but what is being thought and said by French-Canadians today is not that much different from what is being thought and said by the American Negro, by the African in Africa, by the West Indian in the West Indies and by the Indian and the Metis in northern Canada.

It is a simple matter of rights — human, economic, and political — and in many ways the French-Canadian feels that for too long he has been no better off than many other of the world's second class citizens, wedged into Quebec and isolated by language from the rest of the country.

Unless he speaks English, he must be born, live out his life and die in the French "ghetto" of Quebec. If he wishes to move to any other part of Canada, he must give up the birthright of his language in order to make a living, to order a meal or a gallon of gas.

The immediate reaction of the English Canadian is that traditional one — so what? This is an English-speaking country — so speak English.

To this, the Quebecer replies that Canada is not, in fact, an English-speaking country. It is a bilingual and a bicultural country, made up primarily of two peoples with two widely divergent backgrounds that history — for better or for worse — has welded into one.

This, at least, is the idea. It is the basis for the battle cry of the new Quebecer, of both English and French extraction: one flag, one people, two languages.

So far, Quebecers feel that only lip service has been paid to that concept — to their mind, that absolute essential — of a truly united Canada.

Even in their own province, they were forced to speak English to make a living under a ruling English Canadian minority. Today, the winds of change are chill for the remnants of that minority.

In the vast majority of cases applicants for jobs from simple clerks to high-priced executives must be completely bilingual. Far-sighted executives are taking crash and total immersion courses in French conversation.

The more militant French progressivists frequently refuse to speak anything but French to English-speaking Quebecers. Except in isolated instances, this is not an act of malice. It is simple a pointed way of saying:

Give and Take

"Speak to me in French and I will speak to you in English. Honor my background and my right as a Canadian and I will honor yours. Without this give and take, we cannot communicate."

This is the general attitude today in the new Quebec. I am not prepared to say whether it is right or wrong. This is a question that each Canadian, in every part of Canada, must answer for himself. The point is that it must be answered.

It is not a passing fancy — a paper rebellion, as it were — among a small group of upstart French Canadians. This is how it has been written off for some 100 years, to the continuing detriment of Canadian unity and solidarity.

Hydrofoil Ship May Be Scrapped

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence planners said Thursday they expect the government will eventually kill the 13-year-old project for a high-speed anti-submarine hydrofoil boat.

Between May, 1963, and November, 1969, when the 200-ton ship is scheduled to be fully operational, the defence production department will have spent an estimated $50,000,000 on the project.

The defence research board and the navy had the project in hand for nine years before 1963. No official figures are available on what they spent on it but sources said the amount runs close to $20,000,000.

The boat is designed to carry a crew of 21 and travel at about 60 miles an hour in 20-foot seas. It rides out of the water on stilt-like foils at high speed.

It was originally estimated that five or six production hydrofoils could be purchased for the price of a single destroyer—that is, about $50,000,000.

But sources said the cost of the prototype has run so high that the government is unlikely to order the ship into production even if its sea trials are successful next year.

One informant who has been in close touch with the project said it should not have cost more than $20,000,000 at a maximum.

The defence research board, which initiated the project in 1954, turned it over to the navy in 1958 with the recommendation that it run sea trials with a hull and engine before going into expenditures for a weapons system and the like.

NUCLEAR superiority of the U.S. will be maintained by increasing the number of land-based intercontinental ballistic missiles, says U.S. Senator Henry Jackson (Dem.—Wash). He said at Stanford, Calif., the present ceiling of 1,000 missiles is not enough.

RC Bishops Told to Watch Lay Conference 'Straying'

ROME (AP)—The Vatican tried to put the brakes today to the third world congress of Roman Catholic laymen, warning bishops at the congress to guard against the lay delegates straying from church doctrine.

Maurice Cardinal Roy of Quebec, head of two Vatican agencies dealing with laymen, issued the warning but told the bishops not to intervene during debates.

He said this would spoil the spontaneity of the discussions and "might deter the laity from speaking freely."

Instead, the cardinal told the bishops they should feel free to comment at the end of the sessions on any doctrinal errors made by any of the 2,500 laymen representing more than 100 countries.

Cardinal Roy's caution came as the eight congress workshops plunged into their second day of debate on controversial subjects ranging from birth control to race relations.

Delegates from developing countries have launched a drive for resolutions on such subjects as contraception and church involvement in local politics.

ALTER MAKEUP

The new nations have radically altered the makeup of the lay movement. The last congress 10 years ago included only a timid minority of missionaries and Catholic youth leaders from the world's emerging nations. This congress has become a forum for the African and Asian delegates to vent their frustrations and appeal to richer nations for help and understanding.

A group of West European, American and African laymen have already drafted a strong condemnation of racism in all its forms. They hope to spur Pope Paul to speak out in an encyclical against racial discrimination around the world.

GIVE 14-YEAR-OLDS 'THE PILL'—DOCTOR

VANCOUVER (CP)—A Seattle obstetrician Thursday advocated giving birth control pills to 14-year-old girls.

Dr. R. J. Pion told a nursing conference he would give contraceptive material and information to any person of any age who asked him for it.

"When 14-year-old girls ask us about sex, we shouldn't hold pregnancy and venereal disease over their heads," he said.

Pion, associate professor in the department of obstetrics and gynecology, University of Washington, was addressing a two-day seminar into nursing management of obstetrical patients.

Pion said the threat of pregnancy or venereal disease has not been successful in stopping sexual experiments by young people.

STARVES TO DEATH

Officials Quarrel While Child Dies

OTTAWA (CP)—A 14-month-old Indian girl died of malnutrition while officials in Alberta and Ottawa squabbled over who should pay 10 per cent of her welfare costs.

This aspect of the death May 12 of Romana Mae Crowshoe on the Peigan Indian reserve in Alberta was brought to light in the Commons Thursday by Indian Affairs Minister Laing.

He said that because there is no federal legislation on child welfare, Ottawa asked Alberta last November "to take steps to protect" the children in the Crowshoe family.

"At that time, and in the light of circumstances then prevailing, the provincial authorities decided that no steps should be taken by them," Laing said.

He told NDP Leader T. C. Douglas Ottawa has been trying to get the provinces to extend child welfare benefits to Indians and has offered to pay 90 per cent of the cost. However, Alberta wanted the federal government to pay the full cost.

The subject came up when Laing replied to a Commons question Oct. 5 by Walter Dinsdale (PC—Brandon-Souris), who noted that a coroner's jury report on the death had been "highly critical" and asked what Laing is doing about it.

MEG, TONY END VISIT

MONTREAL (CP)—Princess Margaret left chilly Montreal for London Thursday night while her husband, Lord Snowdon, departed for New York.

The Queen's sister and her husband finished a seven-day visit to Canada that included several well-publicized, but formally private, tours of Expo 67.

Prior to their five-day visit to Montreal, the couple spent two days in Toronto, where they attended a $50-a-ticket charity ball in support of the Princess Margaret Hospital.

ISRAELIS CALL FOR REVENGE

Occupation Force Hit By Phantom Terrorists

By ED BLANCHEV

TEL AVIV (AP) — The "old war" has erupted again in Israel-sabotage and terrorism. But this time the Arab raiders are packing a harder punch.

El Fatah—phantom—terrorists are again working behind Israeli lines in the occupied west bank. They are better armed and more efficient than the Egyptian and Syrian raiders who terrorized Israeli border settlements for 19 years.

The campaign of sabotage, in which eight Israelis including a three-year-old boy have been killed and 33 wounded since the June 5-10 war, has dampened the flush of victory here. The Israelis are clamoring for revenge.

Although authorities say they have broken the back of the El Fatah campaign by rounding up 200 Arabs and seizing large arms caches, the raiders are far from crushed.

TERRORISTS RETALIATE

They answered the Israelis by striking into Jerusalem, dynamiting a United Nations ceasefire supervision mission radio and planting a bomb in a movie house packed with 800 people. It was found 20 minutes before it was timed to explode.

In Jerusalem, police said Thursday they smashed an Arab sabotage group they believe was behind five terrorist incidents in the city in the last month. Twenty Arabs and four prostitutes were arrested.

El Fatah groups are still hiding in the craggy Judean hills and more are sneaking across the low-water Jordan River by night.

Soviet machine-guns, Syrian army bazookas and Chinese mortars have been found.

Defence Minister Moishe Dayan has warned in effect that Israel may make a retaliatory strike against Syria if saboteurs continue to infiltrate into Israeli-held territory.

The leftist Baath regime in Damascus denies it is behind the raids, but captured terrorists say Syrian intelligence recruits, trains and directs El Fatah.

Hundreds of saboteurs are believed to have swarmed across the Jordan since June with orders to organize a "popular resistance" and to intimidate collaborators.

Refugees, unemployed Syrians and young Algerians have been recruited and trained in three Syrian camps by Syrian officers and Algerian instructors, informants here believe.

El Assifa Hurricane — El Fatah's strike arm, says it has set up its operational headquarters in west-bank territory and has carried out nearly every major sabotage operation reported in that region and Israel.

El Fatah, formed as an independent organization in late 1964 by Arab extremists dissatisfied with the Palestine line taken at an Arab summit conference, made 76 raids between January, 1965, and last May, killing 11 Israelis and wounding 59.

These attacks, later directed by the Syrian army, were an underlying cause of the June war. Now El Fatah is under the direct comand of the Syrian general staff, prisoners report.

Israeli intelligence reports indicate El Fatah and its one-time rival, the Palestine Liberation Army, have patched up differences and are working together.

Most El Fatah men caught so far have not been hard-core raiders. They appear to have been recruits fresh out of hurried training, half-starved from hiding in the mountains, dressed in ill-fitting combat fatigues. Most gave up without a fight.

Several terrorists have been jailed for life, but military authorities are reluctant to execute raiders and run the risk of making martyrs out of them.

Japanese Films At Art Gallery

"Arts of Japan" will be shown Tuesday at 8:30 p.m. at the Gallery. Films will include "Treasures of Japan," "Living Arts of Japan," a short film on Japanese architecture and ceramic arts.

LEGAL AGE for drinking should be lowered, according to Ted McRae, executive director of the Alcoholism Foundation of B.C., who said in Vancouver the 21 age limit is 30 or 40 years out of date.

TEMPERATURES SOAR

Daytime temperatures rise to 115 degrees in Saudi Arabia, a mountain-flanked desert that stores 10-per-cent of the world's oil.

If Pure Beer, Why Not Clean Water?

Is pure beer more important than clean water?

The law suggests it is, doctors attending the annual meeting of the B.C. Medical Association here Thursday were told.

"It does seem odd that we have a uniform standard for cleanliness enforced for beer glasses in our beer parlors but not for public drinking water."

Municipalities should receive financial assistance in building sewage treatment facilities, say the doctors on the committee.

Water, both salt and fresh, should be carefully monitored to ensure there is no pollution buildup.

Around Our Shores

Newcomers to Add Zest to Sunday Races

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Much of the recent activity around Oak Bay Marina involved readying boats for Sunday's opening races of the Turkey Head Sailing Association.

Some 60 sailing boats of over 13 feet are registered with the association, along with over 20 non-boat - owning members.

Hewett

Racing for the first time out of Oak Bay will be Rod McBride's 'Lemolo,' Gerry Carter's 'Caprice,' Russell Potter's 'Sunbeam,' Peter Clark's 'Halcyion' Sharon Taylor's 'El Frijolito Salton,' Tony Rose's 'Rabble Rouser,' and Dr. Ross Henry's 'Heidi.'

The will be joined by most of last year's enthusiasts which include Ken Low's 'Bris,' Dr. Ron Scott-Moncrief's 'Tsonoqua,' Charle Pash's 'Chasmoy' Peter Chesshire's 'Calomine' and Peter Ferguson's 'Rebel.'

Rick modified the lines of a new design by New Zealand's John Spencer, adapting her for local conditions. The hard chine 24 footer is built of heavily glassed plywood, and was completed in only five months by her industrious owner.

She carries 300 square feet of sail in mast head rig, but can also be converted to a cutter rig.

First Sunday race starts at 10 a.m.

SHORT TACKS: Sunshine and very light winds launched the Frostbite opener last Sunday at R.C.N.S.A. Ed and Frank Cushing shared top honors in the three-race O.K. dinghy event . . . Four races were completed by 12 El Toros. Elizabeth 'Bis' Whitby, with only one year of racing, captured three firsts, with Greg Hemphill taking the other race. Versatile Bis is one of those athletic naturals who does well in any sport. She plays a championship game of grass hockey, and last year was on the executive of the Victoria Grass Hockey Association.

TROPHIES PRESENTED AT ROYAL VICTORIA

CANOEISTS ORGANIZED

Canoe and kayak enthusiasts Thursday agreed to form a canoe club.

About 30 persons — men and women— attended the meeting chaired by Anthony Wilkins.

Pending the drafting of a constitution, canoeists will meet at Thetis Lake on Sunday, Oct. 22, at 11 a.m. for a "get-acquainted" day's outing.

The main object of the club will be to plan canoe trips on Vancouver Island and the mainland. Canoe races will also be held in Victoria next year.

The meeting elected a pro-tem executive composed of Mr. Wilkins, Pat Townsend, David Thompson, Arthur Kemis and Bill Chapman. It will prepare a constitution.

Firms Must Wait For Cabinet To Set Rules

By AB KENT
Business Editor

Serious inquiries have been made about British Columbia offshore mineral claims, but it will be some time yet before the government issues regulations and withdraws a Crown reservation.

Less than a year has passed since an order-in-council put a freeze on the floor of the B.C. continental shelf, and only in the last few months has consideration been given to forming a set of regulations.

A senior government official said Thursday the body of the rules is still being drawn up and only the cabinet would be able to say when a new cabinet order would be proclaimed.

Meanwhile, some large and responsible mining companies have expressed themselves on the subject to help the mines and petroleum resources department set requirements that will be both fair to companies and look after the public interest.

Kent

Since last year's dramatic discovery of manganese nodules 1,000 feet deep in Jervis Inlet, general interest in offshore mining development rose sharply then dwindled.

It has been about three months since a serious inquiry was made, the mines department said.

The government reservation on all offshore mineral holdings does not prevent exploration from taking place, but while the reserve is effective any such exploration is done at the risk of the explorer. Until he can file a claim he has no protection for any particular segment of the sea bed.

Even though public discussion may be at an ebb, the importance of offshore mineral regulation can not be overlooked.

In some parts of the world, "mining the ocean" is well established at profitable pace. So far, the one very interesting B.C. discovery falls short of commercial possibilities, and whatever remains to be found is anybody's guess.

★ ★ ★

In the development of underwater technology there are great physical barriers to be overcome, particularly where deep water is involved.

In this respect the petroleum industry has been and continues to be a pioneer with its rapidly expanding offshore oil and gas exploration programs in various parts of the world under a variety of conditions.

More than any other industry, this one has contributed technological and oceanographic knowledge to the world that might otherwise be undiscovered for many more years.

Some of the areas of development could be applied quite directly to mining techniques, according to engineers studying the submarine problems to be solved.

★ ★ ★

Deep water access might be achieved through the use of small, man-carrying submarine craft, it has been suggested, especially where diving by conventional or scuba methods would be limited and hazardous.

Another proposal has been to use diving bells or variations of the bell principle to permit lengthier, safer access to the ocean floor.

Another major problem is the source of power to operate machinery in deep water, which by current methods is both cumbersome and costly.

Last week the annual meeting of the Society of Petroleum Engineers of the American Institute of Mining, Metallurgical and Petroleum Engineers was told nuclear energy and offshore drilling technology could be combined.

Nuclear plants are available now but in the wrong size for such a purpose, said F. C. Johnson, a senior engineer with Cameron Iron Works, Inc., formerly with the U.S. navy nuclear program.

A pressurized water reactor might be built in a package 10 feet wide and eight feet high, including lead shielding, having a life of five to ten years. It could be available in three years' time, he said.

A rig so powered might be allowed to sink to the ocean floor and conduct its drilling from there, perhaps in the initial form of a submarine capable of operating at 400 feet depth.

But the first step toward this might take the form of separate nuclear power to provide the tremendous force needed to operate blowout preventers that control the great pressures exerted through drilling deep formations.

Later, nuclear energy could power both ocean floor equipment and all other machinery used in the drilling of wells, Mr. Johnson said.

Salada Food President Resigns

TORONTO (CP)—Arthur E. G. Beeby, 52, is resigning as president of Salada Foods Ltd. Oct. 31 for personal reasons, it was announced Thursday. Mr. Beeby was president of the $45,000,000 food company since 1962.

Salada now is engaged in a takeover bid of Laura Secord Candy Shops Ltd. Its bid of $18.12 a share is opposed by Fanny Farmer Candy Shops Inc. of Rochester, N.Y.

Auto Workers Reject Ford Company Proposals

DETROIT (AP) — The United Auto Workers has rejected a new proposal, in contract bargaining with the strikebound Ford Motor Co., but a high union source says "progress is being made that could lead to impending action."

Rejection of the proposal was reported by a well-placed company source who said "it was a generous offer.

"They — the talks — aren't going anywhere right now," he said.

But while a union spokesman said there had been progress toward ending the strike, now in its 37th day, he added that there have been no face-to-face meetings of the top bargaining teams since a news blackout was clamped on talks Tuesday night.

President Walter P. Reuther heads the union team while Vice-President Malcolm L. Denise bargains for Ford.

Mindful of the blackout, which sometimes in past contract years has meant settlement is near, both sources were reluctant to elaborate on the separate positions of the two sides.

The union objected to the term "offer." A union spokesman said an offer in national bargaining can only be made to the national bargaining committees and the opportunity for this has not existed this week. But the union did not deny rejectiong a company proposal of some sort.

SEEKS PARITY

The union is seeking what it calls its broadest list of demands ever, including parity for Canadian workers, a big wage increase with something on top of it for skilled workers, a guaranteed annual income, pension improvements and othjer contract adjsustments.

In its only previous offer the company proposed an immediate 13-cent-an-hour wage increase for all, plus 2.8 per cent a year in the second and third years of a three-year pact. It said an added increase for skilled workers was negotiable, but it ignored Canadian parity and the guaranteed annual income.

Reuther has put no dollar value on the union demands, but has said a settlement increasing wages and benefits by 80 cents an hour over three years would not be enough.

The average straight-time pay industry-wide is $3.41 an hour. It is $4.70 with fringes included.

Ownership Study Near Completed

OTTAWA (CP)—Privy Council president Gordon hopes the special study of foreign ownership of Canadian industry will be finished this month or early in November.

He told the Commons he expects the report will be studied by the cabinet and he hopes it will lead to a white paper on the question.

Replying to quesitons by NDP leader T. C. Douglas, Mr. Gordon said he does not expect any legislation based on the report would be ready for the current Commons session.

Government Deposits Down

OTTAWA (CP)—Government of Canada deposits in the chartered banks dropped early this month to their lowest level since early 1963, a Bank of Canada statement revealed Thursday.

Total government deposits on Oct. 4 were $179,000,000, down $205,000,000 from a week earlier, and $457,000,000 from two weeks previously.

Consumer Credit Up 10 Per Cent

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumer credit outstanding at mid-year amounted to more than $6,358,000,000, almost 10 per cent higher than a year earlier, the Dominion Bureau of Statistics reported Thursday.

The figure covers only those lines of consumer credit for which statistics are collected monthly. In addition, there was probably another $1,500,000,000 or more credit extended to consumers which won't be reported until the year-end.

The $6,358,000,000 represented an increase of 2.3 per cent in the month of June, and an increase of 9.6 per cent since June, 1967.

Slick Ramblers To Show Talent

The closest thing to perfection in the Western Division of the Continental Football League arrives in Victoria Saturday.

Coming to town for a scheduled clash with Victoria Steelers are the Orange County Ramblers from Anaheim, who are claimed by some to be the equal of weaker clubs in more glamorous professional gridiron circuits.

Just how well they would do against, for instance, the British Columbia Lions, is something Victoria fans will have to guess for themselves after Saturday's hostilities start at 8.

However, there is no doubt the Ramblers are formidable foes for other squads in the Continental League.

Victims of one surprising upset, when they were tripped by Eugene Bombers, the Ramblers roared back into first place last weekend by handing San Jose Apaches their first defeat, 24-17.

Proof of Orange County power is demonsfrated by statistics, which show the Ramblers leading the division in almost every department.

They have scored an average of about 35 points per game and yielded only 11. They have gained 1,298 yards passing and rushed for another 1,007 yards while winning five of six games. Their average total offence is 384 yards per game.

13 TD PASSES

Big man for the Ramblers has to be quarterback Jerry Otterson, a slick and poised signal-caller who is compiling a remarkable record.

Otterson has completed 67 out of 122 passes for an average gain of 8.4 yards and a total yardage of 1,024. He has tossed 13 touchdown passes.

Jerry's pet receivers are Bruce Smith and Rhome Nixon. The tall and swift Smith has grabbed 32 passes for 454 yards and scored five TDs. Nixon, only slightly less dangerous, has collected six touchdowns in 19 receptions, on which he has averaged 19.8 yards.

Otterson also gives his running backs plenty of work and Bob Jackson, Charlie Shaw and Bob Gaiters have more than enough talent to keep any defence honest.

Jackson is the main running threat. He has galloped for 438 yards in 89 carries and has gone over for five touchdowns. Gaiters and Shaw have each averaged about five yards per carry.

And if it comes down to a kicking duel, the Ramblers have John Seedborg, who leads the division in scoring with 53 points. Seedborg has converted 23 of 25 touchdowns and has booted 10 field goals in 15 attempts.

This adds up to a mighty tough chore for the Steelers, who will be trying for their second win.

ROLL-OUT PATTERN

It was Durham who guided the Steelers to an upset win over Seattle Ramblers and McKeta plans to have him working in a roll-out pattern with the option of either running or passing.

McKeta believes his defensive line can handle the Rambler runners but he admits his pass-defence crew may have to come up with a superb effort to hold Otterson's receivers under control.

With six new men due to pull on Victoria uniforms, McKeta is hopeful the Steelers can collect their second upset triumph.

He expects to have his club in a fighting mood and promises the Ramblers will neither outhit or outhustle the Steelers.

CHAMPAGNE . . . AND SAUSAGES

NEWMARKET, England (Reuters)—Sally Hall, riding 10-year-old Sagely, Thursday won the Newmarket Town Plate—the only horse race in which British Jockey Club rules permit women.

The race was the 298th contest since it was instituted in 1665.

McKeta Expects Expanded League

Vicoria Steelers may be performing in an expanded gridiron circuit next season.

Officials of the Continental Football League's western division expect to have at least four new clubs in the fold next year, Victoria owner-coach Don McKeta told this week's meeting of the Steeler Booster Club.

It is probable that Portland, Spokane, Fresno and Pomona, Calif., will be granted franchises next season, and a berth for Phoenix is a possibility, McKeta said.

He believes an expanded circuit would result in the formation of northern and southern sections with a reduction in travel costs.

★ ★ ★

McKeta believes Victoria can support a pro football club and has plans for a more compact and more economical operation next year. However, for the Steelers, next season is far away.

McKeta, who acquired control of the club two weeks ago and is operating on a pay-as-you-go basis, is struggling desperately for financial survival.

In a message to Victoria fans in an attempt to explain the present situation, McKeta says that since his appointment as head coach in July he has "found many situations to exist that were very unbelievable."

He is operating the club under the name of Athletic Enterprises, Ltd., and plans that Athletic Enterprises will have seven to nine men on a board of directors, comprised mainly of Victoria businessmen.

★ ★ ★

He plans to sell shares of voting and non-voting stock. The non-voting stock will sell for $1 per share, he says, to give Vancouver Island residents "the opportunity to own their own football team."

His message concludes:

"Why have I purchased the franchise? I believe in Victoria as a football town, the enthusiasm of the fans, and a CFL franchise.

"This franchise will exist only if fans support their team.

"For us to exist we must have 5,000 fans for the remaining games."

Gibson Was Trump Man For Aces-Laden Cards

Brock, Javier and Maris Provided Strong Support

BOSTON (AP) — The sign outside Fenway Park said: "The Red Sox Are Incredibly Beautiful People."

If they are incredibly beautiful, St. Louis' Bob Gibson is incredibly amazing.

In the World Series the Cardinals won Thursday by beating Boston 7-2 in the seventh and deciding game, Gibson had help —from base-hitting and base-stealing Lou Brock and from surprisingly potent Julian Javier and Roger Maris.

But no one over-all did the job Gibson accomplished.

The right-handed pitcher, who was out with a broken ankle from July 15 to Sept. 6, allowed the Red Sox six hits in beating them 2-1 in the series opener last week. Then he reduced that to five hits when he stopped them 6-0 Sunday.

Somehow the Red Sox overcame the 3-1 hole Gibson's second victory put them in, and it was up to Gibson again in the seventh game Thursday. Except this time he had to face Jim Lonborg, also a two-game winner who had given up only four hits in his two starts.

The dream duel, however, was no contest. The Cardinals battered Lonborg, working on just two days rest, for seven runs—including a homer by Gibson—and 10 hits in six innings while Gibson set down the Red Sox on three hits.

The performance, his fifth straight complete game triumph in series play, put Gibson in the class of Christy Mathewson and Red Ruffing and in another sports car.

He won the car for the second time—the first was in the 1964 series—as the outstanding player in the seven-game affair.

Hear the Praise of Boston's Boss

"You can do it all . . . you can do it all," Orlando Cepeda, St. Louis' exuberant first baseman, yelled at Gibson after grabbing him around the neck and kissing him four times on the right cheek in the noisy Cardinal clubhouse that dripped with champagne.

Over in the subdued Sox quarters, manager Dick Williams had similar praise for the 31-year-old righthander who pitched the second and third times on three days rest, the first time this year he has worked that frequently.

"Give all the credit in the world to Gibson," said Williams, who himself deserved credit for bringing the Red Sox so far—from ninth to first in one season.

In beating the Red Sox three times and extending his series streak to five consecutive complete game victories, Gibson equaled the mark set by Red Ruffing of the New York Yankees. But it took Ruffing four series—1937-38-39-41—to compile five straight.

And no one ever has limited a team to fewer hits in three complete games than Gibson did.

Many Cardinals had something to cherish.

Brock had his record-breaking seven stolen bases—also a record-tying two in one inning —plus 12 hits, one short of the series high.

Javier had his nine hits in 25 at-bats, including a three-run homer in the sixth inning that sealed Lonborg's doom, and Maris, a series veteran from the New York Yankees, had his 10 hits in 27 at-bats plus seven runs batted in. No one had more.

Red Sox Will All Be Back Next Year

If Lonborg had had a third day of rest, perhaps the teams would still be playing. Lonborg, however, wasn't using that as an alibi.

"Maybe I wasn't so sharp because I had only two days rest," said the 24-year-old righthander who was 22-9 during the season.

"However, I made some bad pitches. Dick wanted to take me out in the sixth, but I wanted to stay in there. As long as my arm feels good, I want to stay in the game."

The pounding started in the third inning when Dal Maxvill tripled and scored on Curt Flood's two-out single. Flood then went to third as Maris singled and raced home on Lonborg's wild pitch.

Gibson supplied St. Louis' next run, a 380-foot homer that sailed into the centre field seats in the fifth inning.

Javier's three-run blast in the sixth finished Lonborg and the rest of the Red Sox.

"We have nothing to be ashamed of," Williams said. "Give them credit. They deserve it. But I still like our club. This is a young club, and we had to work one game harder all season. I'm proud of them all. And we'll be back next year."

Carl Yastrzemski, Boston slugger who was 10-for-25 in the series, looked toward 1968, too.

"In a way this is a big disappointment," Yaz said, "but in another way it gives us something to work for next year."

. . . blizzard in St. Louis

News of Cardinal victory triggered paper blizzard in downtown St. Louis. Computer cards, insurance application forms, toilet tissue and anything else that could safely be thrown from buildings cluttered air and piled foot deep on some strets. (AP Wirephotos.)

Two-Day Rest Wasn't Enough

BOSTON (AP)—The clock finally struck midnight for Boston's Cinderella Red Sox, but who would have thought they'd ever get to the ball?

Even a paper horseshoe in pitcher Jim Lonborg's hip pocket lost its charm Thursday as the Red Sox bowed to St. Louis Cardinals 7-2 in the seventh and deciding game of the 64th World Series.

Picked for another second division berth last spring after a ninth-place finish in 1966, the Red Sox laughed at 100 to 1 odds in winning the American League pennant on the final day of the regular season.

SOX REBOUND

After dropping three of the first four games to the Cardinals, they rebounded in season-long fashion to win the next two. Then, facing St. Louis ace Bob Gibson, their luck ran out in the final game of the series.

The Red Sox were stunned with disappointment, but they did their best to accept defeat gracefully in a gloom-filled clubhouse. They barely were able to smile during visits by owner Tom Yawkey, U.S. Sen. Edward Kennedy and Massachusetts Gov. John Volpe.

Lonborg and slugger Carl Yastrzemski hid for a while in a closed training room. Yaz finally came out—with head high. Lonborg followed a short time later and was more relaxed after a shower.

"St. Louis is a great ball club —and so are we," Yastrzemski said. "I think if we had another seven-game Series it would go down to who had the most rest, Gibson or Lonborg. I'm sorry that Lonborg didn't have another day's rest."

NEEDED MORE REST

Lonborg, who threw a one-hitter and a three-hitter in his first two starts against the Cardinals, failed in a bid to come back with only two days of rest. He was bombed for 10 hits and seven runs in six innings.

"I didn't have my usually good fast ball," Lonborg said. "Maybe I wasn't so sharp because I had only two days' rest."

Yawkey, enjoying his second pennant in 34 years as club owner, slapped backs and tried to cheer downcast players.

"This has been a great season," he said. "I have a lot of happy memories."

O'KEEFES 'SCRATCHED'

It's Curtain Time For Hockey Clubs

Hockey leagues all move to the starting gate, the horses will hit the finish line and Victoria O'Keefes are "scratch" victims. That's the brief and sporting outlook for the weekend.

The main events for city sports fans will be horse racing and football.

Saturday afternoon marks the final day of thoroughbred racing at Sandown Park and the evening offer will be the Continental Football League game between Victoria Steelers and the Orange County Ramblers from Anaheim.

But there will be no action for O'Keefes. Their scheduled Pacific Coast Soccer League date with North Shore at Vancouver has been postponed because of the unfit condition of Callister Park.

SUNDAY FOR SOCCER

All soccer activity will be confined to Sunday with a full schedule of games in both the first and second divisions of the District League.

Local rugby's cupboard also is bare because of Saturday's international match between New Zealand All-Blacks and the B.C. Reps at Vancouver's Empire Stadium.

But hockey begs to differ. It's "full speed ahead" for city teams.

The hockey campaign gets under way tonight with the opening doubleheader of the Esquimalt District League at the Sports Centre. Victoria Cougars, in the meantime, will launch the B.C. Junior League in Kamloops.

Vancouver Island's midget and juvenile leagues also open their seasonal doors—on Saturday. Victoria and Esquimalt teams will visit Port Alberni and Nanaimo, respectively, in juvenile action.

The midgets open Saturday afternoon, at 4:30, with Victoria Morrisons entertaining Port Alberni at Memorial Arena. Esquimalt faces Nanaimo at 6 p.m. Sunday.

Purse Lures Seven

British Columbia's 110-day racing season heads for the wire Saturday and several horsemen intend to take a crack at Sandown Park's biggest purse — in the $2,200 Vancouver Island championship.

Although Evergood Stables of Vancouver, trained by B.C.'s leading conditioner, Jim Halket, has decided against entering either This is True, Frannie or three-year-old Uncle Roddy, it will still be a strong field for feature.

Peter Baumgartner has entered Big Cheese, the crack Prairie three-year-old who passed up the Sandown Derby because of the weight (125 pounds) and the slosh.

HANDSOME CHIEF

Gus Munroe has nominated Handsome Chief, galloping winner of the second division of the Derby. Older horses named are Gladys Ann, who won the race last year and made her first appearance last week in a sprint; Keno's Boy, Enchalade, Sefton Park and War Top.

The race is at a mile and 70 yards.

The possibility of clear skies encouraged horsemen to flock to the wickets Friday for Saturday's finale.

First post will be at 1:15 p.m.

Durelle Defends Easily

MONCTON, N.B. (CP)—Joey Durelle of Trois Rivieres, Que., hammered out a unamimous decision Thursday to easily defend his Canadian welterweight boxing title against Fernand Simard of Quebec City.

Durelle, who said later he was "out of gas," pounded Simard almost at will in the 12-round bout, opening a cut over the challenger's left eye in the fourth round.

There were no knockdowns, but Simard slipped to the canvas early in the fight.

Durelle was stripped of the title three years ago for refusing to fight Toronto's Peter Schmidt on a contracted date but regained it Aug. 14 from Lennie Sparks of Winnipeg.

Esquimalt Posts Volleyball Sweep

Esquimalt swatters swept two matches Thursday at Esquimalt in the Inter-High School Girls' Volleyball League. The Esquimalt "A" squad downed Mount View 7-4, 15-13 and the "B" club tripped the Views 15-9, 15-11.

Victoria High collected two victories Wednesday at Oak Bay. The Vics downed the Oaks 13-8, 8-6 in a "A" division match and posted a 15-8, 13-8 win in a "B" contest.

OPEN IN KAMLOOPS

Juniors Ready To Say Hello

Victoria Cougars start shaking hands tonight with British Columbia Junior Hockey League rivals. The six-team loop will be inaugurated in Kamloops when the Kraft Kings entertain Doug Anderson's Cougars.

Among those who will greet Anderson and company are:

● Ken Stewart, the "canny Ken" who coached Kamloops Rockets to the provincial junior title four years ago;

● Jack Taggart, coach of the Penticton Broncos, who will be relying on his son, Jack Taggart Jr., to give the Broncos the spark needed to carry them to a championship. Young Taggart is now on tour with the Canadian National team in Europe and once he returns Penticton's defensive strength should be among the best in the new league.

● Don Culley, Kelowna's coach who hopes to blend youth and experience into a championship team. The story in Kelowna the past few years has been "always a bridesmaid but never the bride." Twice in the past three years the Buckaroos have fielded powerful teams only to lose out in the Okanagan finals.

Westminster Loaded With Rookies

● Coach Odie Lowe of Vernon Essos, who has gone into the Cariboo country for many players and says he is expecting added help from clubs on the Prairies. But the majority of the Vernon players will come out of the Vernon Minor Hockey Association.

● New Westminster Royals' coach Bob Fenton is entering the 1967-68 season with 11 rookies on his team. One of the biggest holes Fenton will have to plug is in goal where Don Wallis held court last year. Wallis has graduated out of junior ranks and currently is trying out with the Vancouver Canucks of the Western League.

Following tonight's game, the Cougars will swing to Penticton (Saturday) and Kelowna (Sunday).

For opening introductions, Anderson will present: goalie Murray Finlay; defencemen Bill Mainland, Al McIvor, Greg Evans, Bob Webb and Bill Giddon; forwards Dennis Ferrill, Barry Clarke, Neil Saunders, Gary Hales, Dave Williams, Terry Mitchell, Greg Wedderburn, Garth Greig and Greg Gow.

Those are the 16 players chosen to start.

FIGHT RESULTS

PORTLAND, Me.—Jimmy McDermott, 166, Holyoke, Mass., outpointed Pete Riccitelli, 170, Portland, 10.

Amateur Greenskeeper Couldn't Help Gay One

VIRGINIA WATER, England (AP)—Gary Player and Arnold Palmer overcame umbrellas, helicopters, pen-knives and some putting lapses to shape up today as the primary threats to win the 1967 Piccadilly World Match Play golf championship.

Palmer went into the semi-final of the select eight-man tournament by beating George Knudson of Toronto, 5 and 4.

Their routes over the 6,997-yard, par-74 Wentworth West Course were dotted with oddities.

The other two semi-finalists had it much simpler Thursday. Peter Thomson of Australia defeated British Open champion Roberto de Vicenzo of Argentina, one up. Bill Casper overwhelmed Bruce Devlin of Australia 9 and 8.

PLAY FOR $14,000

All matches are at 36 holes for a first prize of $14,000.

Palmer won even though he took 33 putts in his first 18 holes. Winner of $182,000 this year, the 37-year-old Latrobe, Pa., king of golf still complained he doesn't seem able to putt any longer—and yet the rest of his game is better than ever.

The bookies made Palmer a 5-to-2 favorite to win the Piccadilly crown he first took in 1964.

DUNKS 80-FOOT PUTT

Player went ahead for the first time at the 35th hole, where he knocked in an 80-foot putt from off the green for an eagle three. Brewer stayed alive with a birdie which set the match for the 36th green into extra holes.

They halved the 37th and the 38th.

At the 39th hole, after their tee shots, Brewer noticed that the flag was in a different spot. He demanded that it be returned to its earlier location.

Inquiries showed that Brewer was right, and that groundsmen had cut a new hole for Friday's play.

Referee Michael Bonallack moved the flag to the old hole, borrowed a pen-knife from a spectator and chipped out the turf to make it puttable.

Player hit a great shot to the green. Brewer was bunkered. He came out 20 feet past the hole and three-putted for a six. Player got a cool four and that was the match.

Vaughan Collects Angling Trophy

G. Vaughan weighed in a 20-pound, 10-ounce spring (chinook) salmon to win the September award in the monthly trophy competition of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association.

Mrs. F. Southern took the women's trophy with a 19-pounder and John Gordon paced the juniors with an 8:06-pound catch.

Canadians Edge Young Czechs 3-2

GRENOBLE (AP)—Canada edged Czechoslovakia 3-2 Thursday in the opening game of the four-day, four-nation invitational hockel tournament in this French resort town.

The game, played in a new stadium built for the 1968 Winter Olympics, matched Canadian national team members against a squad of young Czechs backed up by several veterans. It is not rated the strongest possible Czech combination.

Dynamo of Moscow, the Soviet team, meets the U.S. team tonight. They had been scheduled to play Thursday night, but the Soviet team was late arriving.

Late applications for visas was blamed.

Canada is scheduled to meet the Americans Saturday.

Canada scored all its goals in the second period, when Czech Miroslav Vlach also scored. Jaromir Sosna counted for Czechoslovakia in the third period.

PISTOL MEET SET SUNDAY

Trigger experts from the Mainland will match skills with Island aces Sunday in the centennial edition of the Vancouver Island pistol shooting championships.

Sponsored by the Vancouver Island Shooting League, the meet will start at 10 a.m. at the police pistol range near Thetis Lake.

Shooters interested in entering the registered match may obtain information from Chris Barman at 385-0797.

New Badminton Club

An organizational meeting for a proposed new badminton club will be held Sunday at 7:30 p.m. in Jubilee Hall, Fraser Street. Additional information may be obtained from Fred Jenkins at 383-7693.

Calgary Coach Fearful Of 'Nightmare Review'

By The Canadian Press

Joe Zaleski, Winnipeg Blue Bombers head coach, re-ran a nightmare for his players this week.

Zaleski called a special players' briefing Wednesday and started it with a film repeat of Bombers' 53-0 loss to Toronto Argonauts last Sunday.

The coach estimated his club made an average of three mistakes on every play in the Toronto game; mistakes that were reviewed individually at the briefing.

Bombers play their next game in Calgary this weekend, and Calgary Stampeders general manager Roger Lehew is worried Zaleski's shock treatment may work.

"They'll be mad," Lehew said. "And don't forget, they beat us once before this year . . . and good."

For the Stamps, locked in a tight race for first place in the Western conference with the Grey Cup champion Saskatchewan Roughriders, Sunday's game and their three other remaining regular-season contests are "must-win" affairs.

NEED 'EM ALL

Lehew says no less than a perfect record in the four remaining games will probably be needed for a first-place finish.

Roughriders, who meet third-place Edmonton Eskimos in Edmonton Sunday, currently are two points ahead of Stampeders atop the WFC standings. Saskatchewan, like Calgary, has four games remaining, and the two clubs have one more regular-season meeting Oct. 22.

If Stampeders win their remaining games and Roughriders win all but the Oct. 22 contest, the teams will finish the season tied in the standings. However, Calgary would be given the first-place playoff bye by virtue of having defeated Roughriders twice in the clubs' three meetings this season.

LIONS STILL CHANGING

When Lions meet Hamilton Tiger-Cats at Hamilton Sunday, Champion will start Buddy Owens, a new 235-pound import, at left defensive end in place of Rudy Reschke. Halfback Craig Murray, who injured a knee in Lions' last game, is expected to go on the 30-day injured list to make way for Owens on the roster.

The B.C.-Hamilton game will be televised Sunday on the CTV national network. The Winnipeg-Calgary and Saskatchewan-Edmonton contests will not be televised.

BLUES NOT BLUE

Turnouts Short Of Expectation

By The Associated Press

Attendance fell short of expectations as major league hockey made its debut in California and returned to Pittsburgh after a 37-year absence.

But St. Louis' sports-happy enthusiasts gave their new Blues a gala sendoff while the California Seals and Pittsburgh Penguins flashed a surprising power in their National Hockey League openers Wednesday night.

Although interest in St. Louis focused on the baseball Cardinals' World Series battle against Boston Red Sox, a crowd of 11,399 poured into the 14,200-seat Arena to watch the Blues earn a 2-2 come-from-behind tie with Minnesota. It was the first NHL game in St. Louis in 33 years.

California Seals whipped Philadelphia Flyers 5-1 in another opening tilt between NHL expansion clubs, but the game drew only 6,886 to the spanking new Oakland Arena, which seats 12,500.

And at Pittsburgh, where the infant Penguins fought Montreal's powerful Canadiens to a virtual standoff before bowing 2-1, the turnout of 9,307 was short of the 12,500-seat capacity at the Civic Arena. A crowd of 10,000 had been expected to see the first NHL game in the Steel City since 1930.

St. Louis owner Sid Solomon Jr., was pleased with the reception given the Blues in The Arena, recently remodeled at a cost of $1,500,000. The start of the game was delayed 1½ hours by colorful opening ceremonies, with band leader Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians among the entertainers.

The sports pages of St. Louis newspapers gave the Blues-North Stars inaugural banner headlines—although the World Series, of course, got the top play.

California sports writers called the attendance at the Seals-Flyers game "disappointing" and Philadelphia general manager Bud Poile said:

"We had more fans than that at the San Francisco Cow Palace." Poile is a former coach of the old San Francisco Seals in the Western Hockey League.

An exposition at the Pittsburgh arena's exhibit hall created a parking problem that possibly curtailed attendance at the hockey game. Those who did come out to see the expansion club tangle with Montreal seemed pleased with the Penguins' effort.

Cole Still Leads Qualifying Trial

PALM BEACH GARDENS, Fla. (AP)—Alvie Thompson of Toronto shot a par 72 Thursday and held down ninth place going into the final 36 holes of the PGA qualifying tournament.

His 72 gave him a 108-hole total of 436, 13 strokes behind leader Bobby Cole of South Africa, who shot a two-over-par 74 Thursday.

The top 30 golfers at the finish of the 144-hole qualifying match will be permitted to join the rich PGA tour next season.

Lawrence (Butch) O'Hearn of Halifax shot a 75 Thursday, bringing his total to 449.

Ronald Folk of Regina was well down the list after shooting a 78 for a 456 total. Phil Giroux had a 76 for a 457 total and Ken Fulton stood at 458.

Hitchens Rates In Beauty Poll

NORWALK, Conn. (AP) — Margo Fletcher Brinkley of Raleigh, N.C., was named by Golf Digest Magazine as the most beautiful golfer of 1967.

Selection is made on a nation-wide poll of golf writers.

The five-foot-six-inch North Carolina brunette, who plays to a six handicap, won over Marion Peterson of Germany, Susan Lance of Woodland Hills, Calif.; Lida Fee Matthews of Portsmouth, Ohio, and Gayle Hitchens of Vancouver.

Claremont Runners Triumph

Bruce Beaveridge romped home the winner to lead Claremont to a 23-35 victory over Mt. Douglas in a dual cross-country meet Thursday at Claremont.

Beaveridge, ahead most of the way, beat out Wayne Morrison of Mt. Doug by covering the three-mile course in 15 minutes, 53 seconds. Bruce Fryer, also of Mt. Douglas, finished third.

Defending Victoria-area champion Claremont won team honors on the strength of fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh-place finishes by Bob Irving, Steve Parkes, Doug Yearwood and Ray Thornber.

Thursday's run served as a warmup for an invitational meet next Friday at Claremont.

Canuck Trio Seeks Richest Harness Pot

WESTBURY, N.Y. (CP)—Three Canadian-owned trotters will run Saturday night in the richest trotting race in the sport's history, the $183,463 Dexter Cup here at Roosevelt Raceway.

Armbro Harold, owned by Max J. Webster of Brantford, Ont., and Hamilton, will start out of the third post position in the field of eight. Robert Silliphant of Rapid City, Man., will drive the colt.

Last year, Webster's Armbro Gazelle finished in second place in the event which pays $91,731 to the winner.

Halifax Hanover, owned by the Armstrong brothers of Brampton, Ont., will be in the seventh post position while Keystone Pride, shared in ownership by Charles L. Biggio of Montreal, will be in the extreme outside position.

Good Fruit And Sweet Memories

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It's the golden season in the south Okanagan, around Penticton, Summerland and Naramata.

The Apples are ripe. They hang heavy in the trees. Windfalls carpet the ground. And pickers are busy from the first morning light until the sun goes down behind the tawny-brown hills.

Forbes

Nearly every orchard has its own roadside stand. Last weekend they were all busy. People had motored long distances to load their cars with fruit and vegetables. And especially with apples—the misty red-skinned Macs, golden and red Delicious, winter Bananas and the newer, long-keeping Spartans.

Not only were they buying apples, they were eating them. Crunching loudly and with obvious enjoyment into the crisp skins and down into the juicy pulp.

"There's nothing like an apple picked fresh from a tree," one man said to me as he took the side out of one with a hefty bite.

"Takes me back to my childhood when every home in our block had an apple tree in the back garden and we were never without fruit to eat."

He took another hefty bite and added that "in cities today very few people have fruit trees in their gardens."

★ ★ ★

When he had gone his way and we were back in the car and headed for the Naramata orchards, his words set us to reminiscing.

We remembered that in our childhood, there were gnarled and climb-inviting apple trees in most city gardens. That the fruit was carefully picked in the golden season and stored in attics. And that these same attics were warm and sweet with the apple smell.

We thought of the bowls of apples that stood on most dining room sideboards within easy reach of young hands whenever there was an urge to crunch and to eat.

And we remembered how day after day our mothers sent us off to school with an apple in our hands or in our coat pockets. This, they would say, "in case you get hungry."

We recalled how children, in those days, were never without one apple a day and we chanted the singsong formula about an apple keeping the doctor away.

From this it was easy to make the jump to those occasions when families went en masse to autumn fairs. "Toffee apples!" drooled the one in the back seat of the car. "The glorious, all-pervading stickiness of them and the tang of juicy fruit under the goo."

There were apples at Christmas, polished until they shone deep red under candlelight and piled high in baskets and bowls with walnuts and ferns for anyone to take as they passed.

And at Halloween! We remembered ducking for the elusive fruit, which bobbed away just when we were sure we had it. We giggled and splashed and our long braids and curls got soaked every year until at last we grew too old for braids and curls.

Then we had a new game. We peeled our apples round and round, trying to get the longest possible piece of skin. This we threw over a shoulder and the initial it formed on the floor was that of the man we would someday marry. The event seemed remote but the prophecy was very important.

Small wonder that we were willing to give apples such magic power for throughout our school years the ones we found in legend and story were far from ordinary.

We did remember starting with a nice sensible statement, chanted in unison—"A is for Apple." But from that jumping-off place we also remembered moving on to William Tell, Johnny Appleseed, the treacherous fruit that poisoned Show White, the apple that tempted Eve, the golden apples of the Hesperides and the apple of discord given by Paris to a beautiful goddess and that brought the wrath of the jealous down on Troy.

At this stage in our reminiscing we discovered it was time to return to Penticton. Which we did fully believing that there could be nothing more rewarding in the golden season than to take an apple in hand and savor the good fruit and good memories together.

ULTRA-MODERN replacement for small, old, wooden ship is the new $2,500,000 Vector built by Yarrow's for the department of energy, mines and resources. Vector will be used for research in oceanography in British Columbia waters. It replaces the Ehkoli, which is being returned to the navy after being on loan to the federal government.

Coroner Rules Football Death An Accident

A coroner's inquiry has ruled the death of a young football player here Tuesday was an accident.

The games in which he played were properly supervised and no blame was attached to anyone in the findings of coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

RESULT OF BLOW

In releasing his findings, based on a city police and post mortem investigation, the coroner noted that the fatal head injuries were the result of a blow or blows to the head.

These might have occurred in a fall after the youth was tackled in a practice football game Sept. 22 or as a result of a tackle in the Oct. 1 game.

If the injury happened at the practice the game might have increased the effect of the brain swelling. The boy was taken out of the game by coach Frank Hindle when he appeared tired and collapsed on the players' bench.

Admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital immediately, the boy died nine days after surgery. Funeral services were held today.

NAMING CEREMONY for new oceanographic research vessel Vector was carried out Thursday by Mrs. Cameron, wife of Dr. William Cameron, director of marine services for the federal department of energy, mines and resources. The ship, with a complement of 26, including seven scientists, will go into operation November 1 after shakedown tests.

QUADRA-TOPAZ APARTMENT

'Eyesore' Decision Soon by Courts?

The courts of British Columbia could decide the fate of the Quadra-Topaz Garden Apartments within the next three months.

Lawyer Jack Cowan told city council Thursday that as the spokesman for a group of businesses with registered judgments totalling $42,000 against the property they would shortly be seeking settlement via a court-ordered property sale.

Mr. Cowan made the statement during a public hearing called to provide the owners of the partially finished apartment block to show cause why a demolition order should not be issued.

'PREMATURE'

Cecil Branson, representing Island Construction, said he felt the call for demolition premature and asked for more time to permit his clients to find a purchaser for what he termed a property valued at $300,000.

He said his clients were prepared to negotiate for a sale price of $200,000 even though such a price would lose them $100,000.

Construction of the block started in December, 1964, but ceased in August, 1965, when mortgage companies refused to advance further monies.

Since then it has been the target of bitter complaints from neighbors and city aldermen who at various times have termed it an eyesore and a fire hazard.

Mr. Branson told council there are a number of alternative solutions to the problem of finishing the building.

He suggested it could be purchased by the municipality and converted into low-rental housing units or that it could be completed as a privately-owned apartment project.

"My client should not be subject to a sword of Damocles over his head," Mr. Branson said.

He felt newspaper publicity in recent months had caused potential purchasers of the property to shy away from completing a deal.

'A DISGRACE'

"The building is a disgrace to the city," said Ald. Cecil Parrott. "And it has been for the past two years."

He asked how much longer the owners wanted before doing something positive about the situation.

Mr. Branson answered, "As much time as possible."

Mayor Hugh Stephen said he felt Mr. Branson was asking for "an extension of the extreme tolerance extended to the owners these past two years."

Mr. Cowan, specifically representing Ocean Cement Ltd. but speaking for other companies with registered judgments against the owners, backed the plea for more time but for a different purpose.

"We have been instructed to proceed with court action which will probably see the next step a court directive ordering the sale of the property by the sheriff," he said.

"I cannot be sure just how long the formal procedures will take but I would think between two and three months."

Council agreed to table the demolition decision for three months during which time the owners may find a purchaser or the courts will order the property sold to the highest bidder offering more than $42,000 required to satisfy already established court judgments.

Companies with registered judgments against the property are Ocean Cement, over $11,000; Imperial Bank of Commerce, over $16,000, and the wholesale plumbing and heating firm Alcock Downing and Wright, over $15,000.

FRAMPTON PUT ON HOT SEAT OVER CONVENTION CENTRE OPINIONS

'How Can You Continue as Chairman?'

By JIM HUME
City Hall Reporter

A Victoria alderman was told to resign a committee chairmanship Thursday if he felt he could no longer approach the convention centre problem with an open mind.

Ald. Percy Frampton drew the quiet advice from Mayor Hugh Stephen during city council meeting after making another plea for the city to approve the building of a convention centre opposite city hall.

"We cannot afford to pass this valuable proposition up," he read from a prepared statement. "I am fully convinced that the Douglas, Cormorant, Blanshard and Pandora site is an ideal location for a complete integrated development."

The proposed $15 million development includes a hotel, convention centre, office tower and stores.

'SAY SO'

"If you have made up your mind on the site when you do not have full information on the other two proposed sites, then I think you should say so," Mayor Stephen rebuked Ald. Frampton.

"If you feel that as chairman of the convention centre committee you can no longer be validly unbiased because your mind is made up on one site, I think you should say so and ask me to remove you from the committee."

"Are you asking me to resign?" asked Ald. Frampton.

"No, I am not saying that," replied the mayor. "But if your mind is made up on one site to the exclusion of the other two, then I don't see how you can continue as chairman."

NO DOUBT

When the special convention centre committee was struck some months ago it was instructed to study the proposed site opposite city hall, the possibility of a convention centre near Crystal Garden and the feasibility of a centre on the property now owned by Ocean Cement on Wharf Street.

Ald. Frampton, in his prepared statement to council expressing his personal views but not the views of his committee, left no doubt that he had rejected the Crystal and Wharf Street sites.

He stated that a convention centre-hotel complex built opposite city hall would be a logical extension of the city hall precincts and of Centennial Square.

It would, he said, provide "immediate development of the entire city block within two years providing a fully integrated commercial complex, benefiting the city not only in tax revenue but in the avoidance of piecemeal and unsatisfactory block development."

Ald. Frampton asked that council approach Oxford Leaseholds Ltd., and Bedwell Holdings, prime movers of the commercial development, and ask for costs for a 20-year lease of convention centre, the cost of outright purchase of a centre built by the two companies and the cost of a lease purchase plan.

He made the suggestion in the form of a resolution but was reminded that his committee had already instructed the city manager to assemble the information.

WITHDRAWN

He and Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow withdrew the resolution on being reminded the information would be gathered by the city manager.

Mayor Stephen urged council members to stop associating convention centre proposals with the urban renewal proposal for the Wharf Street area.

"They are two distinct projects," he said. "If we should not go ahead with the urban renewal plan we shall, I hope, still go ahead with the convention centre.

"At present we are faced with deciding which of the three sites is the best for the convention centre.

"All we are saying is that the Wharf Street site, after investigation, could prove to be very attractive to subsequent private capital.

"But we shall not have the answers until the economic survey is completed."

$13,900 SURVEY

The survey, to be conducted by the firm of Akers Western Limited, Vancouver, is expected to take several months. The $13,900 survey will be the first stage of a federal-municipal $80,000 study of the entire 16-block area roughly bounded by Wharf, Government, Johnson and the Causeway.

Ald. Edgelow urged that city officials stay in close touch with private developers including the Canadian Pacific Railway which is believed to have proposals of its own should the centre be located near the Empress.

"I just want to see the lines of communication kept open," Ald. Edgelow said.

'THEIR JOB'

"Surely they should already be open," replied Ald. Ian Stewart. "Wasn't Ald. Frampton's committee appointed for this reason? I don't want to interfere with Ald. Frampton's committee work, but it seems to me that this is their job—to talk to all interested parties, to interview officials, study all sites and bring us back a recommendation."

Before Aldermen Frampton and Edgelow withdrew their resolution, Ald. Cecil Parrott issued the final rebuke to Ald. Frampton.

"I think," he said, "that as chairman of the committee you should report for the committee, not for yourself."

'Despicable' Tactics Stewart Tells Frampton

A call for Victoria aldermen to declare their private interests in the Wharf Street urban-renewal area touched off an angry denunciation in city council Thursday.

Ald. Percy Frampton said that in view of the rumors circulating in the city he thought it would be wise if council members owning property in the area, or having shares in companies owning property, declared their interests.

"I am a little shaken by the position taken by Ald. Frampton," said Ald. Ian Stewart. "He knows, and so do all other members of council, that I have owned property in that area for some time.

"He might, I think, have let me know what his intentions were prior to this meeting so that I could declare myself.

"I am shocked by the method he has chosen.

"Mayor Stephen and this council have known of my property interests in this area and in other areas of this city since the day I was elected.

"I own property in Victoria because I believe in this city."

Ald. Frampton said he had only introduced the matter because he thought it wise for a public declaration to be made.

"I don't think any subsequent explanation will detract from the despicable way in which he (Ald. Frampton) brought this up, your worship," replied Ald. Stewart.

At the start of 1967, before the urban renewal scheme for the Wharf Street area was considered, Ald. Stewart listed his property holdings in writing at city hall and also informed the press of his business interests.

Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow, a shareholder in a company owning property on Wharf Street, said following the meeting that he didn't think it necessary to comment on his private interests at this stage.

"All that is being conducted there is a feasibility study," he said. "There are no negotiations going on."

BRIBERY DENIED

Later in the meeting Ald. Frampton denied he had been bribed to be the chief advocate for a convention centre-hotel complex opposite city hall.

"I have been asked on more than one occasion how many shares I have in this company (Oxford Leaseholds and Bedwell Holdings).

"I feel sure that members of this council do not feel that I would stoop so low as to accept bribes, benefit or whatever you call it. But if they do they are entitled to their own opinion but I wish to declare to the citizens of Victoria that at no time have I ever been approached by anyone in this regard and if I had you would surely know about it."

"Are you suggesting that members of this council have accused you of accepting bribes?" asked Mayor Stephen.

"No, no," replied Ald. Frampton. "This has just been suggested outside."

HOME GARDEN

Plant Broad Beans Now to Pick in June

By HILDA BEASTALL

With any kind of gardener's luck in weather, we should be picking broad beans by early June if we sow the seeds before the end of October.

Hilda

These beans are quite unlike any others, for they grow direct on the main stem of stiffly upright plants which may be 24 to 48 inches high according to variety.

The broad bean has been known and grown for human and animal food for thousands of years. Various common names are attached to it, such as Horse Bean, Windsor, Fava Bean, and English Bean.

Because it is a member of the pea family rather than the Phaseolus group to which the other beans belong, this Broad Bean likes to grow in cool weather and will not succeed where weather is hot and dry.

The beans are broad and flat, larger than limas, and of a greyish color and distinct flavor. You like them, or you don't, but to give them a fair trial for taste they must be picked and eaten while young and tender.

It is the beans from within the pods which are eaten. Shell like you do peas, and boil the beans in a small amount of water briskly for about 15 minutes.

Serve with ham or bacon, sprinkling the beans with chopped parsely and a dash of fresh sweet marjoram leaves. Leftovers add a special taste to green salads.

To have a spring feed of these really delicious beans, sow the seed now in a prepared trench where the small plants will have a little protection from winter wind.

Fill in the trench as growth progresses. The more dwarf varieties are best in this area because of early spring gales toppling tall varieties.

Black aphis infestations can be avoided in spring by pinching off the young tips of the plants as soon as first pods are seen to be formed.

Woman Pleads Guilty To False Pretences

An Esquimalt woman pleaded guilty in magistrate's court Thursday to three counts of obtaining cash by false pretences.

Court was told Dorothy Skillen, 45, of 1040 Lyall Street, cashed three worthless cheques in September of 1966.

Two, worth $30 and $40, were cashed at Woodwards. The third, worth $50, was cashed at Safeway's Douglas Street store.

Magistrate Ostler remanded the case until Oct. 24 for pre-sentence report.

Uvic Social Work School Expected

At school of social work at University of Victoria is expected to be approved by the board of governors.

It was recommended to the board by the university senate Wednesday, Dean Ronald Jeffels, Uvic registrar and senate secretary has announced.

"The senate was very impressed with the evidence showing the lack of social workers.

"I think the board of governors will be very receptive to the recommendation," said the dean.

A social work school was urged in a brief to the university a year ago by Victoria social workers. They said the step was urgently necessary.

A senate committee headed by Prof. George Brand studied the proposal for almost a year. The committee recommended that a director be employed to begin assembling staff.

"When it will start is not settled," said Dean Jeffels.

At present there is only one school of social work in the province, at University of British Columbia. The last class enrolled 65 students.

Local social work authorities were pleased.

"There are well-paying jobs but no takers," said Garth Homer, executive director of Community Welfare Council. He noted that Saanich has been seeking an assistant director of welfare for months.

He was a member of the B.C. Association of Social Workers committee which drew the brief in the South Island Branch.

Mrs. Jean Bain, an executive member of the association, said, "Case loads are too heavy for workers now." More preventive and remedial work could be done, she said, if there were more workers.

Another university committee, headed by Prof. Ronald Cheffins, is studying the need for a law school at Uvic but no decision on the Victoria Bar Association request has yet been reached.

Outstanding U.K. Historian Dies at 78

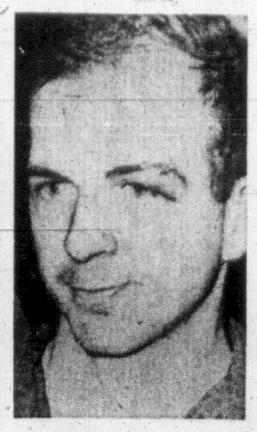
LONDON (AP) — Stanley Morison, outstanding typographer, scholar and historian of The Times, died Wednesday. He was 78.

Morison was the designer of The Times New Roman type face which revolutionized the appearance of the paper in 1932 and was adopted by many other publications.

He was already an international authority on print when he joined The Times as typographical adviser in 1929. Fascinated with the history of journalism, he wrote a massive folio on The English Newspaper, 1622-1932.

That led directly to his work on the history of The Times. Although no author's name appears in the five volumes published between 1935 and 1952, it was an open secret Morison wrote most of it.

He became editor of The Times literary supplement in 1945 and used to tell contributors: "I'm not interested in literature. I want information."



VENGEFUL Lee Harvey Oswald was incapable of taking part in a conspiracy to kill President Kennedy, medical and psychiatric expert Dr. David Abrahamson reported in New York. He said Oswald felt rejected on every side and that the assassination was a lonely act of vengeance against the world.

S.F. SUBWAY BURROWS ON

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Two mechanical moles are burrowing quietly under Mission Street for San Francisco's first subway.

From the days of horse-drawn street cars, San Franciscans have travelled on the surface — except for tunnels through Twin Peaks. It's been by cable car, street car, trackless trolley or bus, linking with ferry boats or bridges.

Subway tubes, scheduled for completion in 1969, will be part of the 75 miles of the $1,000,000,000 San Francisco Bay Area Rapid Transit District.

SUCCESS ASSURED, SAYS CAMPBELL

Ideas Flow in for Adoption Conference

Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell said Thursday public response has been so good that success is assured for a December conference here aimed at finding ways to "humanize and streamline" adoption procedures.

Mr. Campbell said "many letters from individuals" have flowed in to his department since he appealed for adoptive parents to write their views of the present procedures in order to provide solid material for the Dec. 8-10 conference in Victoria bringing departmental officials face to face with the people it processes.

Mr. Campbell said interest in investigating and improving the bureaucratic attitudes towards adoption red tape is so great that "spontaneous discussion groups" have been formed in Victoria, Courtenay, New Westminster and Trail to prepare submissions at the conference.

He said he wants to see the letters with individual opinions keep on coming.

"We want to find out from the people who have gone through the procedures what their experience has been like and whether they would go through it again," he said.

COURT SAYS SHE'S WHITE BUT OTHERS HAVE DOUBTS

JOHANNESBURG (AP) — Sandra Laing is the dark-skinned girl who no South African school wants.

Her parents won an 18-month-long struggle to have her officially declared white, only to discover they can't find a school that wants her.

Angry parents of Sheepmoor, a tiny town in eastern Transvaal province, have threatened to remove their children from the local white primary school if 11-year-old Sandra is sent there as directed by the education department.

Sandra was going to boarding school in the country town of Pier Retief 18 months ago. Parents of other pupils objected to her presence, children taunted her and eventually she was sent home by the school authorities.

Subsequently she was declared colored—that is, mulatto—by a government-appointed board, even though her parents are white. Then a change in the law provided that descent and not appearance is to be the deciding factor in borderline cases. She was reclassified white.

Sandra's storekeeper father, Abraham Laing, decided not to send her back to the same boarding school because of the scorn he felt she would meet.

He approached a number of convents, but they turned him down. Some said they had no vacancies, others said the Afrikaans-speaking girl would find the English-speaking situation in the convents difficult.

Then the education department notified Laing he must apply for Sandra to be admitted to the Sheepmoor school, the nearest their home.

Principal L. Dreyre said:

"This is a terrible situation. I have my instructions from the education department to admit Sandra Laing. My hands are tied.

"However, I have reason to believe that, if this happens, most of the parents of the 53 other children at the school will remove their children."

Mrs. E. Van Tonder, mother of two pupils at the school and a member of the school committee, commented:

"The day Sandra Laing sets foot in the school, my children will be taken home. And they will stay home."

It's a one-shot deal and should be kept that way.

The idea is valid but how much will it cost and who will pay for it?

These are three of the strongest reactions to a proposal by Montreal Mayor Jean Drapeau that Expo 67 be turned into a permanent exhibition.

Mr. Drapeau said Monday negotiations are under way with federal and Quebec government officials to operate Expo six months of the year.

Expo officially closes Oct. 29. Swiftest and most violent reaction came from Mayor William Dennison of Toronto, home of the annual Canadian National Exhibition which attracted more than 3,000,000 persons this year—31,000 more than in 1966.

Mr. Dennison said he would demand $180,000,000 — the money he claims was spent on Expo—from the federal government if Expo is retained. "If Mayor Drapeau is able to get federal financial assistance then we are entitled to the same and I will have no fears about our future.

OPPOSE SCHEME

Prime Minister Pearson received more than 100 telegrams, most opposing Mr. Drapeau's scheme. A spokesman for the prime minister's office said most of the telegrams came from the Toronto area, and apparently were prompted by an open-line Toronto radio program in which listeners' opinions on the subject were aired.

Premier John Robarts of Ontario said he did not object to the plan if Expo is sponsored by Montreal and not by Ottawa.

Robert E. Stewart of Winnipeg, president of the Canadian Association of Exhibitions, said continuation of Expo would have a detrimental affect on other exhibitions across Canada.

Mr. Stewart said there is room in Montreal for an annual exhibition of some kind—but not for an extension of Expo.

Al Anderson, general manager of the Edmonton Exhibition Association, said that large federal grants to the Pacific National Exhibition and the CNE discriminate against Edmonton and other district fairs.

Mr. Anderson said the CNE is justified in complaining it should get the same federal support as Expo.

Acting Mayor Cec Purves of Edmonton dismissed the proposal as "big competition between those two cities Toronto and Montreal." He called it "a tempest in a teapot."

JUST TALK NOW

Don Oland, president of the Atlantic Winter Fair in Halifax, said the extension of Expo would not hurt his fair and might be generally healthy for the Canadian tourist industry.

Gerald Redmond, director of the Nova Scotia Travel Bureau, said an extended Expo couldn't be classed as a world exhibition.

"There would no longer be national exhibitions representing the various nations, so this would have to be a city of Montreal Fair."

Robert Stanfield, national Conservative party leader, said discussions should continue between the various governments on the fair's future. There is a "lot of interest" in the proposal.

NEED ELEPHANT HERD? JUST CALL SOUND MAN

By GENE HANDSAKER

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Kathryn Grayson had a head cold that silenced her voice on the climactic high note of her big musical number. So? Another soprano sang the note and sound men blended the two voices together so expertly no one noticed.

Sound men are electronic wizards who have been working their magic with dials, meters, grunts, groans, thumps and recorded rackets since the advent of talking pictures 40 years ago last week.

By re-recording they extend a singer's faltering high note or bring an off-key sound into tune. With a new machine they can retard or accelerate a singing passage and keep the same pitch.

Three of them were at work this week on an MGM stage where they manufacture a galaxy of outdoor sounds from hoofbeats and elephant steps to fist-fight thuds and chain rattles for television series and feature films.

ACTORS WATCH

On another stage, actors watched themselves on a screen as they re-recorded much of their dialogue.

Why not record the sounds live when the scene is shot?

"Airplanes. Traffic. Wind. The director may be talking. Maybe they can't get a microphone close to the actors or the effects don't come off right."

On a screen a horseman rode into a scene of the Hondo television series. Kneeling near a microphone, Perry thumped two pairs of hard rubber cups on handles against rocky earth in time with the horse's steps. In the recording booth the clip-clops sounded completely authentic.

Perry, 55, is an animal-sound specialist. Wearing cotton gloves with paper clips taped to the fingertips, he can simulate a dog trotting along a sidewalk. With wadded Turkish towels over his fists, he provides the elephant's plodding footfalls in television's Maya, filed in India.

'Near Insanity' of Loneliness Australian Immigrant Problem

By VINCENT MATTHEWS
Canadian Press Correspondent

MELBOURNE (CP) — Loneliness has become such a problem among Australia's immigrants that it is driving some of them to near-insanity.

Some of the saddest victims are Italian women, and much of this has to do with the difficulties Italians face when trying to settle in Australia.

Rev. David Cox, director of the European-Australian Christian Fellowship, told a gathering of Melbourne university leaders that more than 300 Italian women had been admitted to the city's mental hospital in the last year. They were suffering "neurotic reaction to the common immigrant problem of isolation."

Cox, who has done much work among immigrant communities, said most of the women were middle-aged and had been in Australia about five years. Their husbands made friends and contacts with Australians at work; their children, because of a different environment, soon became more Australian than Italian.

But the mother, staying at home and meeting no one, retained all the values and attitudes of her home country. So not only did she feel a stranger in Australia, she became estranged from her family, too.

CAN'T HANDLE FLOW

Cox said the Australian community could not handle these immigrant problems because it was not prepared for the large intake of immigrants, which now totalled 145,000 a year.

Cox's disclosure came on the eve of the visit to Australia of President Saragat of Italy.

During the visit a new immigration agreement was signed between the Australian and Italian governments—much to the relief of the immigration department in Canberra which has become worried at the fall in the number of immigrants coming to Australia and the rise in the number going back home for good.

Under the new agreement, Italians will have to pay only $25 for their fares to Australia.

After the British, Italians are the biggest immigrant group in Australia. There are 500,000 of them in the country.

While he was here, President Saragat made it clear in a speech to 50,000 Italians at a football stadium that the Italian government would pay the fares home for any Italians who would rather leave Australia than be called up for army service in Vietnam.

Newspaper editor Nino Randazzo, unofficial spokesman for Italians in Victoria, said political differences could seriously affect Italian migration to Australia, despite the new agreement.

Certainly the lavish attention and high-level treatment given to the visiting Italian president and the anxiety the Australian government showed over the migration agreement has made the local Italians feel that much more important.

And it has brought a new sense of urgency to the problem of the lonely immigrants. Because if mamma isn't happy she could so easily talk the whole family into going back home.

Haida Opens Happily

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

Victoria's newest movie theatre, The Haida, opened its doors to the public Thursday night with a premiere showing of The Family Way, a piquant British comedy that is largely concerned with sexual impotence.

Only a clever writer could make a diverting yet thoughtful story out of such a theme without being distasteful. English playwright Bill Naughton has done it in a script based on his own play, All In Good Time.

An ultra-sensitive Lancashire lad (Hywel Bennett) takes a winsome Lancashire lass (Hayley Mills) for his bride and, because of an acute housing shortage, has to live with her at his parents' home.

Alley cats scream beneath the bridal window and a perfume from the local gas works comes through it. Neighbors watch with telephoto eyes and dear old dad (John Mills) lets off a stentorian snore from the other side of the wall.

WORD SPREADS

In these circumstances the fastidious young bridegroom finds himself impotent and word soon spreads through the drab, working-class town that the marriage "hasn't taken on yet."

What could have been a very vulgar film has been handled with such delicacy that it does not offend those who regard marital privacy as sacred. The camera, like a senistive visitor, does not overstay its welcome, and the script never sniggers in a nasty way.

Hayley Mills is delightful in her first grown-up role, and her real-life father, John Mills, comes alive as her beery, bleary screen father-in-law—a parent who tries to reach his children but cannot do so without giving hurt.

Ald. Cecil Parrott, representing Mayor Hugh Stephen, gave the new theatre an official blessing, recalling that its four walls originally enclosed the Victoria Playhouse.

He congratulated the architects and contractors on transforming an old building into "a warm and elegant modern theatre."

The Haida, owned by Odeon Theatres, has an orange and black decor; two lounges hung with copies of famous paintings; new projector equipment and a new screen.

Must Understand Quebec-Stanfield

By DON ANGUS

TRURO (CP)—Dissatisfaction is widespread in Quebec and Canadians must try to understand why, Robert Stanfield, national Progressive Conservative leader, said Thursday night at a party convention that named him PC candidate in the Nov. 6 Colchester-Hants federal byelection.

"Basically the dissatisfaction is based on a conviction that a French-speaking Canadian does not have the same opportunity to develop his culture and his way of life that an English-speaking Canadian does; and that this is the fault of our constitutional arrangements."

Mr. Stanfield, 53-year-old former Nova Scotia premier, said English-speaking Canadians have a tendency to feel Quebec is creating problems by being unreasonable. "But the dissatisfaction is real and we should consider what measures we can adopt which can be helpful."

Davie Fulton, former Conservative justice minister who lost to Mr. Stanfield in the leadership race last month, delivered the nominating address. He lauded party changes under the new leader and attacked political packaging and imagery.

ATTACKS IMAGERY

"In this time when change and challenge crowd around us, the political parties of Canada consistently emphasize packaging over policy and imagery over issues," he said.

"The most damning indictment of all the Canadian parties, in this age of momentous technical and social change, is to compare our budgets for research and our budgets for advertising."

However the Conservative party under Mr. Stanfield had already begun to change, Mr. Fulton said, and the caucus agrees fully with Mr. Stanfield's approach—the development of a positive, constructive, fighting opposition which will earn a chance to form the government.

"We are at the beginning of a great new era in the Conservative party and in Canada—and it will be known as the Stanfield Era."

Premier G. I. (Ike) Smith also had words of praise for Mr. Stanfield—his running mate since 1949 in the two-member provincial riding of Colchester.

GREETED WITH CHEERS

Mr. Stanfield, a native of this central Nova Scotia town in the heart of the riding where he seeks election to the Commons, was greeted with thunderous applause by the 600 persons at the convention.

Delegates also gave a standing ovation to Cyril F. Kennedy, the 10-year PC veteran who resigned his Colchester-Hants seat to give Mr. Stanfield a route to the Commons.

Official nomination day for the federal byelection is Oct. 23, but both the Liberal and New Democratic parties have said they will not oppose Mr. Stanfield. Only Ross Dowson of Toronto, a member of the League for Socialist Action, has announced his intention to run.

Mr. Dowson said in an interview in Toronto Thursday that he plans to arrive here Monday to begin his campaign.

Seaman Runs Amok

LONG BEACH, Calif. (AP)—A sailor stabbed 11 men—none severely—Wednesday aboard the U.S. destroyer Mullany 10 miles off Long Beach and jumped the ship, the navy said. A spokesman said he doubted the body of Machinist Mate Roya Sattiewhite of San Diego would be found.

SIR KENNETH BAILEY
. . . no chance

Viet Cong Can't Win —Australian

VANCOUVER (CP)— An Australian diplomat said Thursday it is not possible for the Viet Cong to win the war in Vietnam.

Sir Kenneth Hamilton Bailey, Australian high commissioner to Canada, said in an interview that three years ago a military victory by the North Vietnamese seemed inevitable but now it seems impossible.

"The only way this war is ever going to be settled is by political negotiation," he said.

Sir Kenneth said Australia's view to collective security in Southeast Asia is about the same as Canada's was when NATO was formed 20 years ago.

"Canada is lucky that the issue of Western Europe was settled without conflict. We haven't been so lucky."

Picket Halts Work

TERRACE, B.C. (CP) — A single picket Wednesday halted work at a construction site on a $2,000,000 building project on the Northern Transprovincial Highway. Dave Chesney of Terrace was protesting his dismissal for what he termed his support of Teamster Union members who refused to work with non-union employees. He is a member of the Teamsters.

'REDUCE ALCOHOLISM'

Church Backs Stand On Family Drinking

NEW YORK (AP) — A U.S. government-financed study on alcoholism and other alcoholism problems says it should be national policy to promote drinking in a family setting to help prevent the development of problem drinkers.

The report, entitled Alcohol Problems — a Report to the Nation, also recommends that the legal age for buying and drinking alcoholic beverages be lowered to 18 throughout the country.

The National Council of Churches has strongly endorsed the proposals which are part of a "total alcohol program" aimed at inducing deliberate "changes in American drinking patterns."

Financed by a $1,000,000 grant from the National Institute of Mental Health, the study was made by a 21-member Cooperative Commission on the Study of Alcoholism during the last five years.

Their findings are contained in the 224-page report published today. The commission urged a reduction in "the social pressure to drink."

In this regard the report suggested that liquor advertisers could include in their ads references to a host's responsibility to refrain from keeping the glass full for a guest who has to drive home.

The commission noted the relatively low rate of problem drinking in Italian, Chinese and Jewish families where youngsters generally get their introduction of alcoholic beverages "in the home in a relatively routine and unemotional manner."

"People brought up in total abstinent traditions who later take up drinking apparently are more likely to become problem drinkers," the commission commented.

77 Years For Slavery

SUKKUR (Reuters)—Umar Shah, head slaver of the Sind region of West Pakistan, has been sentenced to 77 years' hard labor on charges of running slave labor camps.

Shah and 17 accomplices were found guilty Monday of kidnapping 76 persons—36 of them minors—and using them as slaves in evacuation works in the deserts of Sind region.

The slave camps were discovered last April by police. Some of them now are known to have existed for at least 10 years.

Cases against slavers in other regions are being investigated and some have come to court.

'Farming' Of Oceans Proposed

NEW YORK (AP)—A leading oceanographer warned Wednesday man may be nearing the limit of the amount of fish he can get from the oceans with conventional fishing methods.

"Ninety per cent of the ocean is a biological desert," said Dr. John H. Ryther, "we can forget about it in terms of food production in the future."

Dr. Ryther, chairman of the biology department at the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution, Woods Hole, Mass., said "We should begin to manage the oceans, to farm, to begin the practice of aquaculture."

Estimates of the yield of "food fish" from the sea over the next few years, Dr. Ryther said, range from 55,000,000 metric tons to 56,000,000 tons. In 1965, he said, the recorded catch was 45,000,000 tons.

This is about people who almost bought the other one

They came close to buying that car. Small wonder. It's been popular for a long time.

But then they gave it a little more thought. And figured they'd want a little more room inside. And a little more power for climbing and passing. And a little more all-round comfort. So they looked at Datsun. It had what they wanted. Plus eye-pleasing interior. Plus padded dash. Plus an excellent heating-defrosting system. Plus 2-speed wipers. Plus easy handling and 100,000 mile dependability. So they bought one.

Now they drive around smiling. Next time you're looking at cars, why not see us. Drive a Datsun – then decide.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1967—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Among my friends, I number a super-salesman who, although he is and always has been a legitimate operator, would not thank me to air his name here. He works from the background, and his stock in trade is not goods but ideas.

I'll call him Ed Keith, which is reasonably close to his real name. He is large in every dimension — tall, broad and thick through the middle — and among his assets is an actor's ability to shift convincingly from one role to another as the occasion demands.

But whether playing the sorrowful-and-wounded bit, or turning on a fine dramatic rage, he is unchangeably the same behind his mask of the moment. Very kind, that is, and gifted with a wry, shrewd humor.

In those years, he sold door-to-door in a satellite suburb of Washington, D.C. While he applied his eloquence to potato-peelers, spices, encyclopedias and all the rest, he was mentally filing and noting the manifold quirks of human nature.

When I met him, he had graduated by way of the car lots and dealers' showrooms to selling of a highly specialized sort.

His stock, or rather the stock he undertook to find buyers for, consisted of items that the public emphatically did not want. These waifs, strays and castaways of trade, he dealt with in boxcar lots.

One day he turned up at our place with bulging pockets, from which he produced a fistful of cough candy packages.

"Try a few," he urged us.

"Pretty horrible, eh?" he said. My client is stuck with a load of them."

Ed moved them. It took him about a month to accomplish this impossible-seeming feat; but in the end, he persuaded a manufacturer that the cough candies would help sell his packaged household product if enclosed as premiums.

Ed moved this, he moved that. He moved popcorn into Ontario's rural theatres, along with dispensing machines and blowers to waft the hot-buttered fragrance out of the foyers and into the streets.

The closest this paragon of the pen and the dotted line ever came to disaster was when he undertook to find a market for several thousand cuckoo clocks.

A Toronto importer had ordered a few hundred of these gabled, carved and bird-haunted items from a German supplier for a Christmas gimmick. He advertised them as 'Made by Elves in the Black Forest,' and unloaded them at a speed that encouraged him to place a repeat order for several thousand.

But the season had passed . . . and so, it appeared, had the market. Panic-stricken, he called in Ed the trouble-shooter.

Ed installed one of the clocks in his office. While the yellow bird popped out to salute him on the hour, he toiled to evolve a strategy. Finally, when he had all but abandoned hope, inspiration struck.

"Farmers use alarm clocks to get them up with the cows." he explained to his client, "and they never throw anything away. That means a lot of busted alarm clocks in a lot of barns. So we advertise a cuckoo for the farm kitchen at a reduced price to anyone who sends in an alarm clock with his order."

Ed, these last few years, has spent his days at the black art of teaching salesmen how to sell. But he still remembers what happened when the cuckoo call went out.

"We moved the whole shipment in two months," he says, "and took in enough alarm clocks to fill a dozen trucks. And you know, only one of the lot had a tick left in it!"

City Chinese Given High Praise in Huang Welcome

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The Deputy Vice-President of the Republic of China, Hon. Huang Shao-Ku, said today he is proud of Victoria's Chinese Community.

"When I return to Formosa, I shall tell our president (Chiang Kai-shek) of the high esteem in which the Chinese people are held in this great city."

Mr. Huang was speaking at a reception in the City Hall council chamber at which he met more than 50 representatives of Victoria's 4,000-member Chinese community.

In an address of welcome to Mr. Huang, Mayor Hugh Stephen spoke in glowing terms of that community.

"It is with pride and thankfulness that we testify to the record of our Chinese citizens. They have always been in the forefront of all efforts to make this a better place to live.

"Their example of good citizenship, honesty, industry, respect for the law, love of family and compassion towards the needy and less fortunate have set for all of us a bright standard of honor.

"In these days of faltering values it shines like a beacon light among the clouds of uncertainty."

Mayor Stephen referred to the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association, as "a magnificent example of self-help based on the Chinese philosophy of demeanor, prudence and humility."

Mr. Huang bowed to Mayor Stephen and presented him with an illustrated book on Chinese art. In return, the mayor gave him a replica of Victoria's civic crest and a book of photographs of Vancouver Island.

"Our city is only 105 years old," the mayor replied, "and that is but a fleeting minute in the ancient history of China."

VISITS CENTRE

The mayor then conducted Mr. Huang across rainswept Centennial Square for a visit to Victoria Silver Threads Centre.

Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director, conducted him through the centre's various handicraft classes, including basketweaving, painting and woodwork, and he stopped to admire the work.

"This is a very good way to keep active," he smiled. "We have something like it in Formosa."

Earlier, Mr. Huang and his party were received in Premier Bennett's office at the Legislative Buildings, where they chatted for five or six minutes.

"Our people are well aware of the struggle your people have made in the fight for freedom," the premier said. "China has such a wonderful history we hope peace will come again soon."

Mr. Huang nodded assent and formally invited Mr. Bennett to Formosa.

"I would be delighted," the premier replied.

When signing the visitors' book, Mr. Huang asked if he could sit in the premier's chair.

"I should be honored," the premier replied.

At noon the Chinese party were entertained at a B.C. government luncheon at Oak Bay Marina. In his address, the premier said:

"The Chinese people of British Columbia are among our finest citizens, and we are pleased that during your brief visit you will be able to spend some time among them."

After a scenic tour of Victoria, the visitors were received by the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association at 636 Fisgard Street.

They were greeted by Jack Mee, president, and a guard of honor was formed by Victoria Chinatown Lions Club Drum and Bell Corps, Baton Corps and Chinese public school children.

At 6 p.m. they were to attend a dinner at the Chinese Village Restaurant, 755 Finlayson.

TOURING Victoria Silver Threads Centre at 4 Centennial Square, the Chinese Vice-President stopped to admire the work of Mrs. Grace Goddard in the basket-weaving class, watched by instructors Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Burrows. Mr. Hoang visited several other handicraft classes, escorted by Mrs. Catherine Horne, supervisor, and met Mrs. James Logie, general supervisor.

SEAMAN FINED FOR HIT-RUN

A Danish seaman from the freighter Marie Skou, in Victoria for repairs, was fined $150 and had his driver's licence suspended for two months in central court today.

He was convicted of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Moogens K. Sorensen said, through an interpreter, he was advised by bystanders he could leave the scene of an accident on Douglas Street because there was little damage and no one was hurt.

Sorensen ran the car into the rear of a bus.

Two Foiled In Bogus Bill Pass Attempt

An attempt to pass a phoney $10 bill in the Colwood area failed Thursday when an alert gas station attendant recognized the money as counterfeit.

Two men in a car gave the bill to Savage, 2736 Spencer, while he was on duty at Goldstream Shell station on the Island Highway about 8:30 p.m.

"It didn't feel right," he told the Times, "so I checked for the plate number and there wasn't one.

"I told the men I thought it was a phoney and they grabbed the bill and left. They were heading up-Island when I last saw them."

Mr. Savage said that the bill felt "too thin" as if the bill had been split.

City police have received a number of bills passed at city stores. So far 10 have been sent to Ottawa and reports of more counterfeit bills, usually from banks, are coming in.

Five bills have been passed in Saanich and turned over to police.

Outlook Poor In Ferry Hassle

Union Pessimistic After Conference

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

The dispute on British Columbia ferries took a new and deeper turn today.

An official statement on behalf of more than 700 deck, catering and shore workers said the union committee "cannot see any chance of agreement" on proposals by the ferry authority on 1968 work schedules.

Both sides met Thursday and today's union statement said there is "no change" in the situation.

Certain proposals were made by the authority and they will be discussed at union meetings early next week. No details were given.

On the dues checkoff issue, which led ferry employees to plan a Thanksgiving Day weekend strike before a cabinet committee agreed to talks, the union expressed the hope that the government "will give favorable consideration to the dues checkoff question and thus avoid unnecessary problems."

'INCOMPLETE'

Thursday, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said there was "incomplete discussion" at a cabinet meeting.

He refused to elaborate and would not indicate whether any recommendations were laid before the cabinet, whether it decided on any partial action or even whether it would discuss the matter at the next meeting.

"We do not really know what his meaning is but assume that further cabinet talks will be held early next week and perhaps the union will then hear some concrete answer from the government," said Tom Gooderham of the Canadian Labour Congress, and spokesman for the ferry employees.

"Until then, the union will use utmost restraint and refrain from direct action which would shut down the ferry service."

The union wants dues checkoff of up to $4 a month instead of the $2 a month ceiling set recently by the government for civil servants.

Telephone Numbers To Change

Half of Oak Bay and a small portion of Victoria will have a new telephone number prefix next year as the result of a $1,700,000 project by B.C. Tel.

Dec. 1, 1968, when the new office on Foul Bay Road goes into operation, about 6,000 subscribers will use the prefix 592 instead of the 38-numbers now used.

The area for the 592 exchange is bounded by Cedar Hill Cross Road in the north; the coastline to the east; along a line between Oak Bay Avenue and Cranmore Avenue in the south, and a line from Bay and Shelbourne to Pear Street and Cedar Hill Road in the west.

SAVE MORE

E. L. Mallett, district manager for B.C. Tel. in Victoria, said it is more economical to establish a new office in the Oak Bay area than to continue running cables from downtown.

The move will free sufficient space in the Victoria office to take care of growth for the next 10 years, Mr. Mallett said.

The new building will be completed in February next year. Cost of two-storey concrete structure is $250,000. Automatic switching equipment will cost $1,200,000.

The cables now running from Victoria to the Oak Bay area will be used to carry calls to and from the Victoria and Oak Bay offices.

'IT'S A PROMISE'

Bennett Refuses Medicare Delay

Premier Bennett Thursday said B.C. will apply for federal government subsidies to cover half the cost of the B.C. Medical Plan beginning next July.

He indicated that he won't take federal Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's broad hint that provinces could help fight inflation by acting slowly in taking advantage of the new national health plan.

His announcement means that B.C. likely would send a bill of about $7.5 million to Ottawa for its first subsidy on a nine-month basis. The national plan begins July 1, three months after the start of the BCMP fiscal year.

Current budget for the B.C. government's co-insurance and stabilization grants to the B.C. Medical Plan is $16 million but projections point to a $20 million estimate in Mr. Bennett's next budget.

350,000 COVERED

The plan now covers about 350,000 persons and Mr. Bennett said no increases in the present rates would be made despite boosts in other medical plans recently to cover higher doctor fees and other costs.

Mr. Bennett made the statement to reporters at Patricia Bay airport on his return from a three-week European trip.

He was commenting on Mr. Sharp's recent speech that Ottawa is slashing back expenditures to fight inflation and would not be unhappy if provincial governments were slow in taking advantage of the national health scheme which comes into effect July 1.

"And we certainly will ask Ottawa to share in the cost of the B.C. Medical Plan starting in July next year."

While changing planes in Vancouver, Mr. Bennett told reporters there that his next budget will include "millions more" for municipalities through extra funds for "parks, pollution and police services."

But he said he could not elaborate further on "the three Ps" because it would break budget secrecy.

FIRE COSTS A RECORD; SEASON ENDS TONIGHT

The 1967 forest fire season formally ends at 12 tonight under a B.C. cabinet order issued today.

The prolonged summer drought forced the government to spend a record $6,775,000 in fighting some 3,200 fires since May.

Last year, one of the best in the books, it only had to spend $672,800 on a total of 1,936 blazes.

Massive use of aircraft this summer sent up costs but was credited with preventing many fires from spreading to catastrophic proportions.

We'll Attend Both Parleys, Says Bennett

Premier Bennett today said the B.C. government will send a representative to both Ontario's and the federal government's proposed conferences on the constitution and he hopes it will be him.

He told a press conference that his government definitely will participate in Ontario Premier Robart's "confederation for tomorrow" meeting next month and Prime Minister Pearson's proposed meeting to discuss the current situation early next year.

"I will try to attend both but I may not be able to," he said. "I would like to.

"But we will be represented—our government will—even if I may not be there."

Mr. Bennett would not say what might prevent his personal

MEDICS SPLIT ON DANGERS . . . . . TWO AMENDMENTS MADE

Doctors' Marijuana Report Squeezes Through

By DON VIPOND

About 150 physicians approved a controversial report prepared by seven of their number Thursday which said marijuana is probably no more harmful than liquor.

But not before approving two amendments and then only by a margin of about three to two.

The report of the drug habituation committee, presented at the annual meeting of the B.C. Medical Association at the Empress Hotel, came within a whisker of being shelved.

38-35 VOTE

By a margin of 38 to 35, doctors rejected a move to have the report received for information only and the study continued with possibly a larger committee.

The committee was headed by Vancouver Dr. J. J. Lederman who is also a lawyer.

After a year of study, which included interviews with druggists, psychiatrists, social workers, police and hippies, the committee concluded marijuana ranked as a hazard alongside liquor and distribution might be handled by a government agency such as a Marijuana Control Board.

Doctors Thursday voted to chop such a reference and amended the report to read that a more appropriate legal control than the one presently in force should be sought.

NEW CLASS

The committee has said that ranking marijuana with addictive drugs like heroin was creating a new class of criminal among otherwise law-abiding citizens.

There was general agreement with the report which said LSD is a basically dangerous drug of unpredictable effect.

But here again doctors voted to erase one of the committee's recommendations — that present federal legislation which bans LSD distribution except for research is adequate control.

'POOR REPORT'

Most vocal of the committee's opponents was Dr. Robin Bell-Irving, a Vancouver internist, who said he thought it "an extremely poor report," and "just not related to reality."

The committee was too much concerned with legal aspects instead of "the health of our people."

His patients affected by drugs begin at 14, he said, and their path is from experimentation with marijuana to trying LSD.

"Experimentation is a very popular thing."

He told of one patient, a 22-year-old girl, who shifted from marijuana "and whose brains are now addled by LSD."

Applause greeted his motion that the report be sent back to committee.

Laws affect health, retorted Dr. Lederman, and the two are not so easily separated. The committee's report was not a collection of new ideas but sprang from a research of opinion the world over.

"The social and legal relationship are an integral part of our treatment."

A Vancouver doctor who treats jail patients said he supported and admired the report.

It must hurt doctors studying the problem to see what penalties are being handed down to first offenders, he said.

'COURAGEOUS'

Dr. Murray Cathcart termed the report "courageous" and said it was the type the public had a right to expect.

The association was not ready to make a major statement of informed opinion, said Dr. George Gibson of Chilliwack. He lost by a narrow margin a move to have the report filed for information and the committee encouraged to continue its work.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," said one doctor, asking if any members of the committee had ever tried marijuana or LSD.

He said he could only speak for himself "but I've never tried the stuff and never intend to."

Throughout its report the committee stressed that the laws relating to the two drugs must be obeyed "to the letter."

CELEBRATING her 100th birthday today Sister Mary Geraldine received a Centennial plaque from David Groos, federal MP for Victoria. Now a patient at Mount St. Mary's Hospital, Sister Mary was born at Oswego, N.Y., in 1867. She came to Canada in 1886 and has lived in British Columbia since then. Before taking holy orders, she was Nellie Langevin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Langevin, of Kingston, Ont. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Campfire Rally for Cubs At Goldstream Saturday

More than 250 Cubs in Douglas District will converge on Goldstream Park Saturday evening for a district campfire.

The event will get under way at 7.

Newly appointed District Cubmaster Charles Ryan will be introduced and will take the "Scouter's 5."

District Commissioner Tom Hardisty said the event will be held "regardless of the weather."

DEAR ABBY . . .

'First Class Dope' Ruining Her Life

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I am a reasonably attractive, well-balanced young lady of 24 years, and I'm sure I could make some nice young man a good wife, as well as a good mother to the children I'd love to have. My problem is this. Given a choice between two men with whom to fall in love, a nice, respectable, steadily-employed man, or a good-for-nothing bum, I invariably choose the bum.

Can you tell me why? Is it because deep down I have an unconscious liking for abuse? (The bums take my money and treat me badly.) Or could it be that I deliberately avoid the good prospects because I really dont want to get married yet?

FIRST CLASS DOPE.

DEAR DOPE: I wouldn't presume to tell you why you invariably pick the bums over the respectable men, but if you are interested in finding out, try your local mental health clinic.

You say you can't afford to go to a psychiatrist. I say you can't afford to go on picking bums over the nice guys. You may become disgusted, convince yourself that you don't deserve anything better, and marry one.

DEAR ABBY: After 23 years of marriage I received a birthday greeting card (the first one) from my mother-in-law.

Should I write and thank my mother-in-law for her "thoughtfulness?" Or should I thank my husband for telling her to send the card?

"FLOORED" IN TARZANA.

DEAR FLOORED: Thank them both.

DEAR ABBY: I am probably the dumbest man in the world. After 26 years of a happy marriage, I took a fling with another woman. Then to make matters worse I got a little drunk one day and told my wife I was "in love" and wanted a divorce.

Needless to say, my wife was heartbroken. Came the dawn. I woke up to the fact that I really didn't want the other woman or the divorce, and all I wanted was my wife.

She hasn't left me, and I don't think she will, but things haven't been the same between us since. All this happened a year ago, and when I tell her I love her, that I have changed and will never be unfaithful again, all she says is, "Yes, Dear."

Have you any advice for an old fool, Abby?

OLD FOOL.

DEAR FOOL: What's been done cannot be undone. Try to make it up to your wife by actions—not words. Pray that eventually she will find it in her heart to forgive you. If she does, you're lucky.

Confidential to "Free Again": It wasn't much of a marriage when a man will gladly pay a lawyer $300 for untying the knot he grudgingly paid a minister $25 for tying.

SHOPPING GUIDE

If You Like a Change Try Some Puppodoms

By Penny Saver

Over our coffee cups, a neighbor and I were discussing our favorite dishes. She said that, whenever possible, she liked to try something entirely new to everyone in the family. The fun of this, she says, is that she's often as surprised as the rest of the family at the results. Her current favorite is Indian curry, done in a variety of ways. Her family, like the Savers, are always willing to try something new. The Saver household has a great weakness for oysters and clams and will eat them in nearly any form. All the talk about food reminded me that we hadn't eaten either clams or oysters for months and my mouth watered at the thought of them. Feeling an urge to try something different for supper I decided to do something about it.

If you like oysters and want to try them prepared in a different way you will like the oyster stew I found. It's easy to prepare. Pour the contents of the can into a saucepan and add more milk or cream if it is desired. Heat until simmering, stirring occasionally, being careful not to let it boil. We found it delicious with crackers. The cost is only 59 cents for a can.

Another dish the Savers tried and found delicious was Indian curry cakes or puppodoms. Eaten like potato chips, they are a pleasant change. They come in a small flat can containing 25 biscuits, each paper thin. Preparation is easy. Heat a pan until it is extremely hot. Fry each cake lightly until it swells. This should happen almost immediately if the pan is hot enough, then turn it over and cook the other side the same way. If you are in a hurry they would be the ideal thing for a snack. An entire batch can be cooked in less than 15 minutes. They are priced at 98 cents a can.

For an unusual Christmas present, the box of syrups I found would be perfect. Every box contains three jars, each jar holding two ounces of syrup. A net bag comes in the box making it possible to hang jars on the mantle or Christmas tree. If you like ginger there is a syrup made out of white ginger and, for something truly unusual, there is kona coffee. If you have a yen to try the exotic there is Macadamia syrup. The cost for the package is $1.55.

If you would like to know where I found these items give me a call at 382-3131.

CLUB CALENDAR

Annual bazaar, Princess Alexandra Lodge No. 18, Daughters of England, Thursday, 2 to 4 p.m., The Bay's Douglas Room.

Mr. and Mrs. M. R. Tennent, 3981 Helen Road, announce the forthcoming marriage of their only daughter, Sharon Lyn, to Mr. Raymond Kenneth Smith, younger son of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Smith, 928 Wollaston Street. The wedding will take place on Friday, October 20, at 7:30 p.m., in St. John's Anglican Church. Canon Grahame Baker will officiate. (Jolley photo.)

Women Chosen as Theme

Mrs. C. M. Dowling, as topic mistress, chose "the woman who has had the most influence in my life" as the table topic when the Arbutus Toastmistress Club met recently at the Inn. She was introduced by Mrs. J. A. Miller. Giving short impromptu talks on the subject were Mrs. H. L. Clarkson, Mrs. Laura Miller, Miss Neanie Brown and Mrs. E. R. Ashbridge.

The subject tied in with the evening's theme, "Women of 1967." Mrs. G. Love presided at the meeting, which was also Founder's Night. A former member, Mrs. Olive Kerr, was welcomed as a guest.

Miss Brown gave the inspiration and Mrs. Harry Winstone gave a lesson titled, "Holding the Torch High."

Mrs. L. R. Hammett introduced toastmistress, Mrs. Peter Small. Mrs. D. E. Pite was moderator for a panel discussion on "Equality with men—are we ready for it—do we want it" Panel members were Mrs. G. L. Cook, Mrs. H. Clarkson and Mrs. S. McCulloch.

General evaluator, Mrs. Betty Ashbridge, awarded the spur to Mrs. Small and the oscar to Mrs. Pite.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Q. Can bowlegs be corrected by plastic surgery? If not, what can I do to make them less noticeable?

A. Talk with an orthopedic physician about this. In order to minimize the appearance of bowlegs be sure to wear seamless stockings, and dark shades. You can locate a well-qualified orthopedic surgeon through your local county medical society or perhaps your family physician will recommend one.

Lowman

Q. I am sincere about losing weight. My extra pounds are making my life miserable. However, I have one Waterloo. When my family is having snacks at night, either when sitting around talking or when watching TV, I simply cannot sit there and watch them eat. I can't resist. I know this sounds weak-minded, but it is realistic. Have you an answer?

A. Why not nibble or drink low-calorie foods while your family gorges on the more fattening ones? Some of these slim-Jim foods are really good. Many of the soft drinks have practically no calories, and there are low-calorie milk shakes now available. There are also excellent, low-calorie dips which you can use with celery and carrot sticks.

Q. How can I avoid ingrown hairs when I shave my legs? What causes them? My friends do not have this trouble.

A. In the first place be sure that you use a sharp razor—not leftovers. Be sure to use plenty of soapsuds. Sometimes curly hairs have a tendency to turn back in toward the skin.

Barbara Gordon Weds Dean Holt on Saturday

PARTIES PRECEDE WEDDING VOWS

A round of parties and showers has honored bride-elect Miss Barbara Gordon prior to her marriage to Dean Holt on Saturday.

Miss Gordon was guest of honor at an afternoon tea when Mrs. William Crowe entertained for her niece. Mrs. L. C. Smith and Miss Catherine Gordon assisted the hostess. Corsages were presented to the honor guest, Mrs. R. Gordon, the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. E. Tutte, the groom-elect's grandmother, and Mrs. R. McLean. Guests were Mrs. S. Huta, Mrs. F. Searle, the Misses Linda Parsons, Shirley Holt and Donna Smith.

Paper-craft corsages were presented to the bride-elect, her mother and Miss Catherine Gordon, her sister, when Mrs. Don Landree gave a pantry shower in her Drake Street home. Games were played and refreshments served.

Guests included Mrs. G. Lawrance, Mrs. A. Cummings, Mrs. P. Niedzielski, Mrs. J. Curran, the Misses Linda Parsons, Brenda Ferguson, Karen Logan, Lynne Bexrud, Margaret Chase, Gail Kochems, Theresa and Cindy Lawrance.

A decorated laundry basket held the gifts when Mrs. Howard Waldon surprised Miss Gordon at a shower in her Millgrove Street home. Ribbon corsages were presented to the bride-elect and her mother. Attending were Mrs. K. Burden, Mrs. E. Borgens, Mrs. B. Anderson, Mrs. H. Cattle, Mrs. B. Colegrave, Mrs. M. Holman, Mrs. C. Harris, the Misses Shirley Waldon, Sharon Harris, Shirley Holt and Catherine Gordon.

A pink orchid corsage was presented to the bride-elect when Miss Linda Parsons honored her at a shower. The mother of the bride-elect received red gladioli en corsage, and Mrs. E. Tutte, and Mrs. R. McLean, the bride-elect's aunt, received gold chrysanthemums en corsage.

A basket decorated with pink and white flowers held the gifts from Mrs. K. Parsons, Mrs. J. I. Thompson, Mrs. F. Searle, Mrs. D. Landree, Mrs. A. Searle, Mrs. S. Huta, Mrs. L. Smith, Mrs. H. Cattle, Mrs. W. Crowe, the Misses Ivy Thompson, Cheryl Moyer, Terry Guernsey, Gail Kochems, Penny Searle, Catherine Gordon and Shirley Holt.

Gives Niece in Marriage At Oak Bay United Church

H. J. Wood gave his niece in marriage when Sandra Margaret Gardner exchanged vows with Ralph Edward Merriman in Oak Bay United Church, which was decorated with pink and white gladioli for the occasion.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. M. E. Gardner, 2553 Shakespeare Street. The groom's mother is Mrs. George Lien, 139 Linden Avenue.

Dr. D. B. Sparling officiated and organist was R. W. Kroeger.

The bride was lovely in a full-length gown that had lily point sleeves on the Chantilly lace bodice. A bandeau cinched the empire waistline that opened to a slim skirt. A court train of lace extended from the shoulders. A rosette headpiece held her four-tier silk illusion veil that misted to her shoulders. Pink and white gladioli formed her bouquet. For "something old," she wore her maternal grandmother's gold wedding ring.

Full-length gowns of aquamarine organza, styled with empire bodices and angel sleeves and topped with sleeveless coats were the choice of maid of honor, Miss Carol Woolsey and the bridesmaids, the Misses Diane and Lorraine Gardner, sisters of the bride. Flowers of the same fabric, edged in toning tulle, formed their headpieces. Pink gladioli were in their bouquets.

A friend of the bride's family, A. C. Knudson, proposed the toast to her happiness at the reception, held in the War Amputations Hall. Mrs. Knudson acted as hostess and arranged the decorations. The wedding cake had been made by the groom's mother and decorated by Mr. and Mrs. G. F. Waters. Pink streamers and white heather decorated the head table.

Out-of-town guests included Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Wood and family of West Vancouver, Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Hogan and family of Nanaimo.

A New You

by Emily Wilkens

Why confine the fragrance in your life to periodic daily dabs of perfume? Surround yourself, your home, everything about you in a delightful, sweet-smelling aura. How to achieve it? Let us count the ways.

Your room can be a veritable storehouse of fragrance. Remember that the scent you choose should match or be compatible with your own personal perfume, toilet water or cologne.

Fresh flowers in your room add scent as well as color. They needn't be lavish; simply select fragrant and pleasing blossoms.

If you're having a happening, try this trick before guests arrive: Armed with an atomizer, lightly spray the living room with cologne or toilet water. (Much nicer, it seems to me, than using a deodorizing spray which often adds an unpleasant, conflicting odor of its own.)

Spray the insides of lampshades, too. When you light the lamps, the whole room will smell subtly extra-delicious.

After cleaning your closet and bureau drawers, spray them with toilet water. Spray downward and never aim directly on clothes. Then tuck matching perfume-saturated pads into corners of hat boxes, and around gloves, hankies, scarves and so on.

Pomander balls, or "apples of gold" as the English call them, have a sweetly old-fashioned air. Stud an orange generously with cloves. Wind it in a colorful or gold ribbon until it is completely covered, leaving a long length of ribbon free. Hang in closets (instead of using moth balls). Incidentally, it will whisk away the sad smell of last year's camphor and give off an enticing spicy aroma. A pomander ball is the perfect touch in a guest closet.

No great drawing room of the past was considered complete without a potpourri—a fine china or glass bowl filled with a medley of dried petals, herbs, woods, spices and aromatic oils. These combinations are still available in some apothecary shops, but why not make your own?

Choose some flower petals for color, others for their fragrant qualities. If you grow your own, dry them in the sun. Always gather flowers right after the morning dew.

Place all in a wide-mouthed jar (some beautiful potpourri jars may be found at specialty shops). Finish with a drop or so of aromatic oil (available in drugstores)—wintergreen, tuberose, orris root, oil of rose, rose geranium, sandalwood. Mix well, set on your dresser or desk and wait for rave reviews.

When you are perfectly dressed, you'd hardly feel well "turned out" without your favorite fragrance. In the same vein, your room isn't "complete" without the special, personalized impression a delightful aroma can give. May the "New You" have fragrance wherever she goes.

Lines Around the Mouth

The mouth area comes in for so much attention, the quicker the lines are smoothed out and made to disappear, the younger you will look. A lotion-like substance 2nd Debut applied nightly will make the lines fill in and the skin become smooth once more. You will probably use 2nd Debut on your entire face to banish dryness, but do use a little extra care around your mouth. After applying the 2nd Debut massage very lightly, until it disappears into your skin. Your drug or dept. store has 2nd Debut with CEF 600 or CEF 1200 in double strength and you'll find it a genuine delight to use.

TWO MAYORS RUN FOR ONE CHAIR

PORT ALBERNI—The mayors of the twin cities of Port Alberni and Alberni will compete for the top job when their cities amalgamate later this year.

But it is a friendly rivalry and they have agreed not to let it interfere with the merger of their communities.

Mayor Fred Bishop of Alberni and Mayor Les Hammer of Port Alberni will run Dec. 9 in the mayoralty contest of the amalgamated city which will be called Port Alberni.

The mayor of the amalgamated city will take office Jan. 1 along with a new council. Amalgamation goes into effect Oct. 28 and an interim council will manage affairs until the end of the year.

All six Port Alberni aldermen have indicated they will run for the new council seats and Alberni aldermen Charles Blair, John Williamson and William Anderson are also in the running.

Mayor Bishop, whose grandfather was the first mayor of Alberni, said he and his opponent have agreed they must let nothing "detract from this historic union. I am sure all potential candidates will take a similar approach."

'COCKEYED, UNFAIR'

Swearing-In Rattled By Railroading Claim

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN — Stormy petrel of many local political battles, George Bonner, of Cobble Hill, did it again Thursday evening.

In the sedate atmosphere of Duncan city hall where Magistrate Lance Heard was about to swear-in volunteer members of a regional district board he angrily interrupted proceedings.

Mr. Bonner pointed his finger at the representatives of the unorganized areas and asked, "By what right have these people been appointed?

"They haven't been elected by the people."

OUT OF ORDER

But Magistrate Heard recovered his composure sufficiently to rule Mr. Bonner's question out of order.

He said, "This is a magistrate's court which has duly opened and I intend to swear these men in at this time.

"We are not here to argue this point at this time. You can challenge the appointments at a later date."

After the meeting, Mr. Bonner told reporters petitions are now being circulated in the Cobble Hill, Mill Bay and Shawnigan areas asking the government for a vote.

"A vote will give people a chance to express their feelings regarding formation of a regional district," he said.

"It is being done without a vote and that is cockeyed and unfair. We don't want to be railroaded and it's as simple as that.

"It isn't a question of being for or against a regional district. But I'm against being pushed into something we know little about."

Newly elected regional board chairman John Bateson of Cobble Hill said, "Nominations for the first elected board will take place Monday, Nov. 27. The vote will be Saturday, Dec. 9.

"In the meantime we have volunteered to serve."

APPOINTEES

Unorganized area board members are Frank Martin, Peter McLennan, Glen Spinks, H. J. Wilkinson, Allan Anderson, John. Dobell, Alex. Smith and Jim A. Hunt.

W. Kent Smith of the municipal affairs department gave the formal charge to the new members and said they will also serve as the members of the Cowichan Valley regional hospital board.

GROWING PAINS

R. M. Mawhinney said Thursday the villages of Hilliers and Coombs have already established joint water service co-operation.

But in the regional district setup the two are put in different areas.

Mr. Mawhinney said the arbitrary divisions could also foul up the petition by Errington people to join the Coombs-Hilliers fire protection district.

ARCHDEACON TO SPEAK

DUNCAN — A distinguished cleric will visit Duncan later this month in connection with the Anglican World Mission.

Archdeacon John A. Cable of Chota, Nagpur, India, will speak at a Cowichan deanery rally in St. John's Church Wednesday, Oct. 25 at 7:30.

An Australian Archdeacon Cable has worked in the diocese of Nagpur for 30 years and done a great deal of work on translations of the Bible and prayer book.

Experts Hired To Head Off Rat Invasion

DUNCAN — City council will hire experts in rat extermination to clean out the Koksilah garbage dump.

Ald. Barney Cocks said at the Tuesday evening meeting of council: "We must do something before the rats invade the city."

But Ald. Tommy Kilpatrick asked: "Is the situation so bad we should alarm the people? I've never seen a rat at the dump."

Acting Mayor James Saunders said: "At night you can see the whole place move."

Council agreed to investigate in committee a new policy for garbage disposal.

Cowichan Indian band had written to council agreeing to a ban on the shooting of rats at the dump (a young Indian died as the result of an accidental shooting at the dump earlier this year).

Mothers: Organize a March!

DUNCAN — Promised improvement of Government Street is at least two years away.

This was the news given to city council this week by the highways department.

Ald. Tommy Kilpatrick urged mothers of the district to organize themselves, as the Jinglepot mothers of Nanaimo did, to force a change of mind on Highways Minister Gaglardi.

Ald. Kilpatrick asked: "Is it going to take the death of a child to bring the need home to the department?"

Council received a department letter stating the Government Street improvements are on the survey program.

But as preliminary work is not completed it is unlikley the work can be included in the 1968 estimates.

Ald. Hamish Mutter said the department has not even kept its promise to make temporary improvements.

He said, "We prepared the road for this work in May but it has never been carried out."

MUST BE REBUILT

City clerk Gordon Berry said department officials inspected the road and decided rebuilding is necessary.

Ald. Kilpatrick said, "Apparently the department is broke but won't admit it. Can we not take the road into our own jurisdiction?"

Mr. Berry said the city's engineer Russell Potter is working with the government to establish the necessary levels for a concrete sidewalk.

UP TO CITY

Acting Mayor James Saunders said, "A sidewalk is absolutely essential in this heavily travelled part of the city. It should be one of the first to be built next year."

Council agreed to the building of a sidewalk once the levels have been established.

GULF ISLAND'S ENIGMA

Wood Galore . . . Try and Find It!

By ED GOULD

GANGES — Since the Gulf Islands are covered by trees and surrounded by water, it's hard to believe they are short of both.

The wood shortage is especially apparent if you don't own your own forest. Most islanders are reluctant to cut their own trees and consequently covet what wood they have for their fireplaces.

So, despite warnings that salty beach wood will corrode chimneys and fire boxes, the beach remains a prime source of fuel.

That other abundant commodity, water, is the salty type that drove the Ancient Mariner up the yardarm. Of course, there's no telling where a good salt-free well might spring up, and some people will go to amazing depths to get to it.

Jock McNiven last week told the commercial drillers working at his place to go home and take their two salt holes with them. Unless Jock goes into the salt business the holes are useless.

In fact, they're porous, so they don't even hold dirt very well.

Nevertheless, although Jock doesn't have any wood on his Fruitvale Road property, he now has water to burn.

●

An old 20-foot hand-dug well he has been using to water the garden patch has proved to be an endless supply of good water.

"I always do things like that," he said wryly. "If there's a hard way, I'll work at it until I find it."

Salt Spring Island didn't get its name because it abounds with that fresh, clean taste. There are no thermal baths here (in our house there isn't even a Saturday night bath in summer) but salt water still burbles over the ground at Fernwood.

It's a kind of tourist trap. But a Ganges project to run water in a pipe through a block of salt has been shelved permanently.

Meanwhile, a controversy has arisen over whether to supplement Ganges' water suuply with more water from St. Mary Lake or to break open Maxwell Mountain as a reservoir.

●

Lake residents who own planes say if the water level gets any lower they may have to switch from pontoons to wheels.

Maxwell Mountaineers contend there are powerful foreign substances among the Ganges drinkers which might prove harmful to the bacteria in their water.

On the home front I have taken to Jeeter Lester baths to conserve water. Lester, you may recall, was the Erskine Caldwell character of Tobacco Road fame who maintained the same respect for water as Bathless Groggins and W. C. Fields.

Consequently, my morning ablutions consist of dipping two fingers into a tumbler of water and rubbing them in my eyes. To ensure maximum cleanliness, the fingers are rotated weekly. Afterwards, the same water is used to brush teeth with and then boiled for coffee.

●

Such stringent control of aqua pura may not be necessary if Jack James' grape-growing industry takes root.

A retired department of agriculture expert, Mr. James, who lives at Vesuvius, has government aid to attract a grape-growing industry to the Gulf Islands.

According to statistics, Canadians down a 45-gallon drum of beer and 27 quarts of spirits a year. Only Herb Capozzi knows how much wine they also quaff.

If islanders roll their barrels completely over to beer and wine, they'll soon save enough water to flush the number one problem down the drain.

DEEP-SEA SHIPS IN PORT

17-Year Record

NANAIMO — J. T. Thorpe, engineer for School District 68, said Wednesday the Nanaimo district transportation department has operated for more than 17 years without an accident. The district operates 12 school buses, which transport about 1,650 pupils each day.

TESTS URGED FOR YOUNG BIKE RIDERS

NANAIMO — An RCMP staff sergeant here has come out strongly in favor of testing young bicycle riders.

S-Sgt. Gibb Perry said such examinations have been tried elsewhere and abandoned, mainly because of expense.

But he said they would be valuable as a means of inculcating habits of safety in the young which would pay off both immediately and later when the cyclists started to drive cars.

He said many cyclists falgrantly violate safety precautions even though aware of them. Testing would help to impress on them a respect for proper handling of their bikes and the need for caution.

INCORPORATION MEET AT SOOKE ON TUESDAY

SOOKE—Representatives of major organizations in this area will hold a meeting next Wednesday to discuss whether Sooke should be incorporated as a village.

Reason for the chamber backing is "so that we can get control of the financing, planning and zoning of our own commuity," chamber president John Slemko said.

Wednesday's meeting will be held at 8 p.m., at Broome Hill Golf Club.

A STRONG SUPPORTER of amalgamation, Reeve James B. Cumming will seek re-election whether or not there is amalgamation between North Saanich and Sidney on Nov. 4. If union does take place, he will contest the reeveship for the new municipality. The reeve is North Saanich's first reeve and was largely responsible for its incorporation three years ago.

ELFORD STREET CENTRE

Helping Retarded Children Friendly Affair at School

By TED GASKELL

What's your idea of a retarded child?

Is it one whose brain doesn't function as brightly as that of the so-called normal person?

One who is only capable of sitting idle with a vacant expression?

Or one who can do nothing for himself or for others?

You may be right in the first instance but not in the other two.

But if their mental progress is slow, for those at the Elford Street Centre run by the Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, progress towards a happier life is rapid.

The centre is in good hands.

Director is Mrs. Winnifred Clark who trained for work with retarded children in England. When she first came to Canada in 1935, there was little or no work being done in this field.

She worked, first in Ontario, as a social worker dealing with problems involving children, then, when the centre opened here she became director.

She is no cold administrator, aloof from everything in the centre excepting the books and business organization.

Friendly Air

She bustles about, exuding warmth and friendliness to all her charges and receives as much warmth and friendliness in return. She's also firm and practical. If any of her two supervisors or four assistants want anything it's a case of "put in a written request. We'll see what can be done."

There's no age limit on the people who come to the Elford day care centre of occupation centre. "They can come 'til they are 70," Mrs. Clark says.

Who are these people who come to the centre?

Well, there's a little boy who looks for all the world like an active child of 11 months. But he's three years old and has only just learned to crawl forward on the floor.

There's a pretty little thing, still in her crib. She's five. Her brain hasn't developed, neither has her body.

Who would believe that the little blind boy is seven years old? His development is that of a child of three months.

Here the children are taught to do things for themselves like brushing their teeth, washing and using the bathroom. Here they develop social awareness.

Later they will go to the school board's school on Victor Street.

Older Children

And there are older children, too old for school, in the occupation centre. They do what other adults do after graduation. They go to work.

In the original centre next door to the modern day care quarters, the atmosphere is far from sedate, despite the old Victorian architecture with dark wood panels, leaded windows and a fireplace in every room.

It is here the retarded person is really well served. Not only does he work at a useful occupation but most important of all he earns money and has the satisfaction of being like other working people who receive a cheque every month.

It's a small cheque and everyone gets the same amount. "We know that everyone is doing his or her best and should get the same money," says Mrs. Clark.

They clip price tags to Christmas cards and other greeting cards for department stores; they stuff envelopes with government medical plan brochures; they sand, wax and polish driftwood for sale and make beautiful hooked rugs. They bake and there's a fine array of pickles and preserves in the kitchen which is their work.

Not All Work

It isn't all work, being an occupation centre workers. They have swimming lessons, go bowling—and have a trophy to prove their skill—they have square dancing and social evenings and have a camp in the summer.

But the work is as important as the play and more important to the centre.

Part of the money earned in sales and work contracts goes towards the upkeep of the establishment and last year the workers earned $2,700 or more than 10 per cent of what is needed to keep the Elford Centre open.

That's a lot of money considering that the annual budget was $24,479. Of this only $7,300 comes from the government in its payment for day pupils and from voluntary contributions. The $14,000 deficit is the centre's share of the United Red Feather-Red Cross objective.

But this is one United Appeal agency that doesn't expect startling results. There are no cures; no miracles are expected. The centre simply sets out to provide a place for the retarded and to help them feel that they are doing a useful job and are part of a happy society and not subnormal strangers in a normal world.

Attitude Changing

It achieves this, and more and more parents of children so handicapped are reaching out for help and are no longer inclined to hide their unfortunate children from the rest of the world, says Mrs. Clark.

Parents are appreciating the fact that the centre in taking children is not only relieving the parents of some of the strain of daily life, but also that a child learns more quickly here than it might at home where a mother has to share her time with other children.

POLICE MAY HAVE THAT MISSING BIKE

Eighty persons in Victoria have lost or abandoned a bicycle in the past year.

Eighty bicycles, three tricycles, and miscellaneous other items such as lawnmower, an outboard motor and even a door.

If you have lost your bike, you'd better get down there.

Other items turned into the police department's lost and found include:

One wallet with the name Robert Hamilton; one purse found on Douglas St. near the Bay; one radio; one tan wallet found on Douglas St.; and one lady's wrist watch found on Hillside Ave.

EXPECTED home Monday or Tuesday is Quebec Premier Daniel Johnson who has been in Hawaii for the past month recuperating from a bout of phlebitis. He is accompanied by Dr. Yvan Charest.

CARELESS DRIVERS

Fined in magistrate's court Thursday for careless driving were:

William Bestwick, 50, of 683 Beaconsfield, $35.

William Cassie, 56, 2474 Millstream Rd., $35.

Bastion Slagboom, 64, 8893 Marshall Rd., $35.

Hugh McIsaac, 28, of 708 Princess Ave., sentenced Thursday morning to 20 days for impaired driving, returned to court Thursday afternoon to face a charge of driving while his licence was under suspension.

He was fined $150 on the second charge.

British Unsure Of Lure-MDs Effort Result

VANCOUVER (CP) — A British medical team, in Canada to try to lure British-born doctors back home, said Thursday it is too early to know whether the attempt is meeting with success.

"We just don't know how many may be returning," said Dr. R. H. Barrett, principal medical officer with the British Ministry of Health, London. "We have interviewed 12 here and the response has been quite genuine."

He said a number of steps remained to be completed before doctors in Canada could make a firm commitment.

The five-man medical team plus a health ministry administrator left Thursday night for a brief holiday at Banff, Alta. They expect to hold eight to 12 interviews Monday in Calgary. They will also interview doctors in Winnipeg, Toronto and New York before departing for London Oct. 25.

Visitors From Poland

OTTAWA (CP)—Six members of the Polish parliament are to arrive at Montreal Saturday to begin a 12-day visit to Canada, the first official parliamentary visit from Poland to this country.

PRAYERS will be offered in Sacred Heart Church, Nelthorpe St., on Friday, October 13 at 8:00 p.m.
MASS will be celebrated in the Church on Saturday, October 14 at 10:00 a.m. Interment at Royal Oak Burial Park. McCall Bros. Funeral Directors in charge of arrangements.

9 IN MEMORIAM

MOSSEY—In loving memory of Bill, who passed away on Oct. 13, 1962.
Remembrance is a golden chain
Death tries to break but all in vain;
To have, to love and then to part
Is the greatest sorrow of one's heart.
The years may wipe out many things
But this they wipe out never—
The memory of those happy days
When we were all together.
—Always remembered by your loving wife, June and family.

WARREN, May V.—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother who passed away Oct. 13th, 1966.
I do not know why you have gone,
or why I am left alone?
I tried so hard to keep you here,
my love, my very own.
I see your face, your loving eyes,
They seem to say, do not worry dear,—
You are so near to me.
—Your ever-loving husband Gordon and family.

WARREN — In loving memory of May V. Warren, who passed away Oct. 13, 1966.
The prayers I said were all in vain;
God took you home just the same;
It broke my heart in every way;
The scar gets deeper every day.
I'm told that time will heal the pain.
Though in our hearts you will remain.
—With all our love, daughter Doreen and family.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

CHANNEL CHIT CHAT: The first casualty of this new season is "Dundee And The Culhane" starring veteran actor John Mills. It came as no surprise as the program, even in its first month, was on rocky ground with weak scripts which resulted in bad ratings. It shows again a name alone doesn't guarantee success.

Stephen

Johnathan Winters has been signed to host an hour variety series in the slot to replace Dundee once the 13 already filmed segments are completed come January . . . Would you believe that strongly-promoted Mutiny On The Bounty, the multi-million dollar epic with Marlon Brando, was 10th in the ratings of that week, behind Gomer Pyle, Andy Griffith, Bonanza, Bob Hope, Lucy and three other movie nights? It was.

Insomniacs can have a field day with Tacoma's Channel 13 which programs until at least 5:30 each morning. The only obstacle to hurdle is four hours of monotonous Stu Martin, two dull double-daters, and the longest commercial breaks in television history.

"With Love . . . Sophia," the hour color special starring Sophia Loren, will go the CBC-TV route, Wednesday, Oct. 25. The guests on the program which features Italy's October wine festival will be Marcelle Mastroianni, Jonathan Winters and Peter Sellers.

Don't call me about the first "Festival" offering of the season on CBC-TV Wednesday. All complaints and feelings of the disgust of The Tea Party should be directed to the public corporation, either in Vancouver or direct to the top brass in Toronto.

The NBC I Spy series may suffer a little later in the season. Mort Fine and David Friedkin, co-producers since the program's beginning, have left to go with ABC-TV . . . Country singer Eddy Arnold, who became a smash with his first night club appearance last week and is appearing more frequently on TV of late, may land the lead in a planned series based on the movie Mr. Deeds Goes To Town.

One can pretty well label the level of today's programs by the fact that Quinn Martin is trying to talk ABC-TV into moving The Invaders series from the present 8:30 p.m. Tuesday slot to a 7:30 p.m. time. He feels it would do better with a child's audience.

OAK BAY REALTY LTD.
OAK BAY OFFICE

YES — the market value of 2-bedroom HOUSES has increased considerably in the past 2 years — but —
NO — the asking price of co-operative 2-bedroom SUITES has not kept pace with this trend.
NOW is the time to sell your home, with all the gardening and maintenance chores and worries and take advantage of the price gap so apparent in today's market.
Investment in a co-operative suite may be a new idea for you, but many happy and satisfied owners have purchased similar properties to those shown below through Mears & Whyte Oak Bay Realty Ltd.

1—$14,500

2—$16,800

3—$21,000

4—$45,000
Beach Drive near the Marina — magnificent sea views from very large living room and balcony. Large dining area — 2 large BRs — 2 4-pce bathrooms — one of the finest suites in Oak Bay.

Just telephone D. G. Whyte of J. W. Ritchie at 385-7707 to arrange an appointment and discuss the advantages of owning such suites as those listed above.

GOT A STILL?
NEED A MOUNTAIN?

100 Acres of backwoods seclusion offered to the last of the mountain men. Genuine old log cabin set in a little valley were you can whoop and holler til your hound dawgs run you off. Surrounded by vantage points where you can lay back, squirrel gun in hand and observe the revenooers approaching on horseback, wheels or by schooner. If your taste runs wild toward distilling grapa rather than corn squeezins you may even find a sunny slope to grow dem grapes. If youre just too dogtired to split wood to fire up the still you can hang the worm on your pressure cooker, plug in the hotplate, relax with the hillbillies on T.V. while B.C. Hydro extracts the devils tears from the mash. The young uns will enjoy a new slant on life from the genuine old outhouse. If you've been hoarding a bag of confederate currency and want a spot to hang that coonskin hat then git with it. On terms: $45,000.

'OPTIMIST'

Briton Plans Year 2000 Celebration

LONDON (AP)—Of all the people in the world, John Goodman believes he is the only one seriously planning to celebrate the arrival of the year 2000.

"It's only 33 years away," he said in an interview, "and no one seems to be giving it a thought."

"The world today is being engulfed by great waves of pessimism. The prophets of doom are predicting we'll have blown ourselves to bits by 2000.

"I must be an optimist because I'm convinced a lot of us—including myself—will be around by 2000, and I'm going to celebrate it."

As the self-appointed secretary of the World Association for Celebrating Year 2000, he is sending letters to cities and towns everywhere.

How will they celebrate the year 2000?

"I want them to plant trees —in groups, avenues of them, or just single trees," he explained.

"They're symbolic of life and beauty," he explained. "Take the terrible mushroom image of the nuclear bomb explosion, turn that mushroom upside down, and you've got the image of a tree."

Year 2000 trees have been planted in a number of places, but Goodman, 38, feels he hasn't even scratched the surface yet.

He believes that every country should set aside an area with a 21-mile circumference and turn it into a Year 2000 national park.

But won't it cost a lot of money?

"Of course it will," he answered, "but a nuclear war would cost a great deal more."

. . . HOLDUP

last robbery, said he believed the teller "was purposely stalling."

When the robber ran from the bank, the manager also joined the pursuit, allowing a good lead to the escaper.

PURSUERS UNARMED

"We didn't want to get too much closer. There is not too much point in getting shot. We just wanted to pin him down; see where he went."

The pursuers were unarmed.

"I'm going to have to change jobs," said Mr. Dunfield. "It takes a while to settle down after a thing like this. It's my second and last holdup . . . I hope."

He said everybody in the bank "stood quite still" when the bandit moved in.

The manager said there were about six people in the bank. He was in his office talking to Ken Morrison.

Suddenly Mrs. Dorothy Semple, another teller, entered his office to say the bank was being robbed.

Mr. Morrison, 23, who lives at 641 Goldstream, said, "the robber stood with his back to the far counter (watching the bank staff and customers) until the teller came around and handed him the bag.

"He had a skin-tight toque, the kind skiers wear over their faces, and his hand in his pocket.

"We chased him (when he left), the bank manager and I and one of the young fellows from the bank. He was ahead of us and it appeared he cut in here."

'OPERATION STOPGAP'

Mr. Morrison was referring to the Ida-Coronation intersection. He thought the man may have entered the apartment house at 2211 Ida which once was the Victoria home for wayward girls.

Was Morrison worried about the possibility of getting shot?

The bank manager returned to the bank to notify the police who he had been alerted by the bank alarm. Mr. Morrison stood by the corner until they arrived.

Meanwhile, accountant Henry Quan was touring nearby streets in his car.

There were 15 city police on the scene with Det.-Insp. Bill Andrew in charge and Inspector Brooke Douglas also in attendance.

A carload of Saanich officers also appeared with Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart and two others.

A search of the big house at 2211 Ida was just under way when real estate salesman Tom Duncan reported that a vacant house he had care of at 1706 Denman had been broken into recently.

In checking it today he noticed the front door on a vacant house at 1725 Denman was closed. But when he looked again, it was open. These premises also were searched without result.

A short time later George Russell of 1756 Coronation told police he had left his house in his car to assist them in their patrols. When he returned he noticed the basement door he'd left open now was closed.

HOSTAGE?

And it appeared some spare doors in his basement had been pulled in front of the basement windows. He went for the police fearing his wife was being held hostage.

They found that Mrs. Russell had locked the door and barricaded the windows because she feared for her safety.

At press time the police were still watching the neighborhood and interviewing residents.

A popular theory was that the bandit may have been frustrated in getting to a car by the chase. If he went into hiding it was possible he was now waiting for a chance to move further from the area.

THREE ARRESTS

When the bank was last robbed in 1966 the police made three arrests the following day—although the loot never was recovered.

After two trials (the first was declared a mis-trial) they were convicted and sentenced, Coullrer drawing 16 years, Duck 14 and Braumberger 10.

The trio had used sawed-off rifles to threaten staff and customers and left with the cash within three minutes of entering the bank, just before closing time, also on a Friday.

Air Experts Seeking Crash Clues

ATHENS, Greece (Reuters) —Medical and aviation experts looked to autopsies scheduled for today on victims of a British jetliner crash for clues on why the plane suddenly plunged into the Mediterranean Thursday, killing all 66 persons aboard.

The crash baffled experts because the plane was cruising normally at about 29,000 feet and there was no indication from the pilot of any problem. An airline spokesman said the pilot sent a routine message just a few minutes before the accident.

Theories about the crash ranged from sabotage to a thunderstorm or some unexplained mechanical defect. The sabotage idea was linked to the fact that there were earlier rumors that Gen. George Rivas, Cypriot National Guard commander, was aboard the plane, though in fact he was not.

Peace Bid Planned By Radio

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu said today he will make his peace bid to Ho Chi Minh in mid-November, but "if North Vietnam persists in its aggression then we will continue to defend ourselves."

The chief of state, who will be inaugurated as head of the new constitutional government Oct. 30, spelled out in a talk with Japanese reporters the details of a letter he expects to send to the North Vietnamese president two weeks after he takes office.

Thieu's remarks were distributed by Vietnam Press, the government news agency. A spokesman had outlined the plan Thursday.

Thieu indicated the letter would not be sent directly to Ho but would be broadcast by radio, distributed to the press and addressed to several governments and to world personalitites.

Injunction Sought

QUEBEC (CP)—Acting Premier Paul Dozois announced today the provincial cabinet has deceided to seek a court injunction ordering a return to work by more than 190 radiologists who have withdrawn their services from hospital across the province.

Health Minister Jean-Paul Cloutier reported to the cabinet that the radiologists had not responded to a government order to return to work.

250 Compete Cross-Country

DUNCAN — More than 250 competitors are expected here to take part Oct. 28 in the first cross-country, age-class championships to be held on Vancouver Islands.

The meeting will be held at the Bazzet farm, four miles east of Trans-Canada Highway and Trunk Road intersection.

B.C. championship medals will be awarded to winners in each category. All entries for the races must be made by Oct. 25.

Victoria NDP Pick Candidate On Oct. 30

New Democratic Party members in Victoria constituency will nominate their next federal candidate Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. in Union Centre on Quadra Street, it was announced today.

JETS HIT HAIPHONG SHIPYARDS

SAIGON (CP)—Waves of U.S. Navy jets hit the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong hard Thursday, attacking for the first time in the war two shipyards previously on Washington's list of restricted targets.

One of the shipyards, only 1.6 miles northwest of the centre of the city, was described as an operation with 37 storage and support buildings and a barge manufacturing facility.

The second, smaller shipyard attacked was 1.7 miles southwest of the city's centre. Both yards were reported heavily damaged.

. . . MARKET

Meanwhile, Britain told the six market countries that the time has come for action on her application.

Lord Chalfont, British market negotiator, speaking in London at a meeting of the Western European Union, rejected suggestions that problems in the British economy and balance of payments are insurmountable obstacles to membership.

. . . BENNETT

attendance with the other premiers other than "there are lots of things on my desk and this is not a one-man government."

The premier said he has answered Mr. Pearson's letter regarding a constitutional conference but declined to reveal its contents because the exchange was made on a confidential basis.

Mr. Bennett refused to reveal his feelings about the need for constitutional amendments, nor to say whether he felt there was in fact a Quebec crisis threatening Confederation.

He said he had outlined his views in a CBC television program this week in Montreal and wanted that to be broadcast in B.C. rather than repeat his observations to newspaper journalists.

UNEDITED

He said the matter was so important that he would only discuss it on the basis of an unedited television interview so that all his words would be presented.

"The great advantage of television is that you're right in the person's living room and no one is editing it," he said.

The only comments he would make about the Quebec situation was that it was "delicate" and a time for carefully considered words.

"The situation is one in which there has been too much argument in my opinion—not here but across the country. I made the statement in Montreal because that's the place to say things in the centre and not 4,000 miles away."

Mr. Bennett said he was not suggesting "there has been too much talk (about Quebec), just too much argument, and I don't want to be part of the problem. I want to be part of the solution."

NO MEETING

He said he did not meet Real Caouette or any other Creditiste official during his two-day stopover in Quebec while returning from Europe.

He would make no comment on Creditiste announcements that they may merge with the national Social Credit party again to heal the three-year-old split.

"I'm a provincial leader and all I'm going to say as provincial leader is that I'll campaign only in British Columbia in the next federal election."

He said he expects a national election next autumn.

Mr. Bennett would not reveal whether he plans to call a byelection before the next session to fill a vacancy in the Vancouver South seat created by the recent death of Social Credit MLA Tom Bate.

FEW HOURS

"I've only been back a few hours and I haven't had my mind on that matter while I've been away," he said.

Mr. Bennett would not say whether he renewed his requests to the federal government for a $100 million grant towards hydro-electric construction projects and subsidies for the provincial Pacific Great Eastern Railway and ferry authority while he was in Eastern Canada.

"Let's just say that no answer has been received yet" to his written requests sent last year to federal Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp for the help on grounds of equal treatment to all provinces.

Mr. Bennett repeated his frequent criticism that "I find down east they just don't understand British Columbia" so the province should send a ginger group of Social Credit MPs to the House of Commons.

B.C. IGNORED

He added that while Quebec is given "better treatment than all the other poor provinces put together," Ottawa continues to ignore B.C.'s legitimate demands.

TVs, Cars A-Plenty Bathrooms Scarce

PARIS (Reuters)—One in every two French families owns a television set, a car and a refrigerator. Yet millions of homes have no bathroom.

A series of surveys conducted throughout the country by the National Institute of Statistics showed that France has enjoyed an immense boom in expensive household gadgets and luxuries during the last 10 years, but has been slow to acquire other, more basic amenities of modern living.

Fifty-two per cent of families interviewed by the institute had television sets, compared with one per cent in 1953.

Fifty-one per cent had cars, against 21 per cent 13 years ago. By the start of the vacation season in July, 12 per cent more new cars had been registered in France this year than at the same time in 1966.

The number of refrigerators in France has more than doubled in six years, and three out of every five families now have one. More than 85 per cent of homes can boast at least one radio.

Fewer and fewer wives have to toil over the sink to scrub their husbands' shirts because 55 per cent of households now own washing machines.

But the wave of apparent affluence is deceptive. Many poorer families interviewed in industrial or rural areas had cars and television sets but only a cold running water supply.

One survey made by a responsible market research firm discovered that as many as 43 per cent of French homes still had no bathrooms.

This was a slight improvement on 1962, when an estimated 60 per cent of households did not even have a separate washbasin and members of the family had to use the kitchen sink to wash their faces.

Rites Tuesday For Expert Fisherman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Funeral service will be held Tuesday for Thomas Brayshaw, 81 internationally-known fly-fishing expert and fishing artist.

He died at his home last Tuesday following a two-month illness.

Mr. Brayshaw was renowned among fly-fishermen for his knowledge of the sport and for his carefully-crafted, hand-tied flies. He was a longtime friend of naturalist-writer Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River, and illustrated a number of Mr. Haig-Brown's works on fish.

Mr. Brayshaw also developed a technique of making wood models of game fish that brought anglers to him for replicas of their catches.

He was an honorary member of the Washington and Oregon State fly-fishing associations and was recently given special recognition for his contribution to the sport by the Federation of Fly Fishers, a national organization of U.S. fishermen.

A native of England, Mr. Brayshaw came to Vancouver in 1910. He served with a Yorkshire regiment during the First World War and with the Canadian Army during the Second World War, retiring with the rank of major.

He is survived by his wife, Edith, and a son, Christopher, a forestry specialist at University of B.C.

Arts Council Centre Opening This Sunday

Speaker of the House, W. H. Murray will officially open the new centre of the Greater Victoria Community Arts Council Sunday at 3 p.m.

Dunlop House which is being shared by the Victoria Symphony was made available through the co-operation of the University of Victoria.

It will be used by the Arts Council as a co-ordination centre for community activities and the display and sale of work by local artists.

Mr. Murray will speak on the aims of the newly formed B.C. Government Centennial Cultural Aid Fund, of which he is chairman.

Ralph T. Flitton of Vancouver will also speak on the work of the B.C. Arts Board.

New Attempt By Parksville For Bypass

It has asked the highways department to construct the bypass as a vitally needed safety measure.

Council also decided this week to study further a suggestion from the Chamber of Commerce that "Parksville by the sea" be adopted as a slogan and used on letterheads as a promotional measure.

Some Kind Words Welcome

By Dr. WALTER C. ALVAREZ

The other day I sat at luncheon with a number of eminent teachers of medicine who were bemoaning the fact that the public mental picture of physicians is not as kindly as it used to be.

Alvarez

Some of the men in the group spoke of what they regarded as the foolish efforts once made by the profession to remedy this situation with the help of a public relations firm. As the professors agreed, better public relations will come only when many more physicians treat their patients with kindliness and compassion and good sense.

Naturally, there are thousands of fine, dedicated and idealistic physicians, and we can be very proud of the great efforts of many able doctors like Drs. Enders, Salk and Sabin, who wiped out that once terrible disease, poliomyelitis. This year, so far, there have been in the United States only 2 cases of polio, instead of the thousands we used to have a few years ago.

That is wonderful, but unfortunately, there are a few men who, especially swamped with too big a load of practice, feel that they have no time in which to stop and show feelings of sympathy and compassion for their patients; and it is each one of these who keeps doing harm to the mental picture that the public has of us doctors.

I am moved to write this because I just talked with an unhappy young woman whose mother was operated on yesterday noon. The mother with a lump in one breast, went to the operating room at 1 p.m.; there was a strong suspicion that she had cancer, and so my friend was torn with anxiety. What distressed her terribly was that she could not get any information about what was found and done—until 6 p.m., when she started to raise Cain.

Why couldn't the surgeon or his first assistant have been kind enough and thoughtful enough when the operation was finished perhaps around 2:30, to have asked a nurse or a second assistant to look up the anxious daughter and tell her that a cancer had been found, but no scattered seed growths had been seen; that the patient had stood the operation well, and that, barring accident, she ought to be walking around in ten days. Also, the outlook for a permanent cure was good.

If I were to ask the very able teacher of surgery why he did not take a minute to show the young woman this kindness, he might say, "I was too busy," but I cannot believe that, because in 30 seconds he could have dictated the report that would have so comforted the daughter.

By being thoughtless, we doctors hurt ourselves.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Pam Porter, age 16, of Brighton Centre, Massachusetts, for her question:

How can the earth cause a concave shadow on the moon?

The earth's shadow touches the moon during a lunar eclipse. It must obey the rules of celestial geometry and bisect the lunar landscape along a convex curve. There are times, however, when something that appears to be a shadow bites a concave slice from the golden moon.

The earth is a solid globe and the shadow it casts is shaped like a cone. The dark, tapering finger points about 900,000 miles out into space. Naturally it points away from the night side of the spinning globe. Sometimes this shadowy cone falls on the face of the moon and eclipses all or part of the lunar landscape. This lunar eclipse happens only when the earth is directly between the moon and the sun. It can be seen over a wide area from the night side of the earth.

The geometry of this celestial show is very complex — but the curve of the shadow is always convex. It bulges in the middle and bends gracefully back along its sides. The size and shape of the shadow make this necessary and the shape of the moon also plays a part. If you cut across a cone in slices horizontal with the base, you get a series of circles. The biggest is at the base and the others get smaller one by one with the smallest at the tip.

The shadowy cone starts out with a diameter of about 8,000 miles, equal to the diameter of the earth. It is roughly four times wider than the moon. But it tapers as it goes and 239,000 miles away, at the average distance of the moon's orbit, it is narrower. At this distance, a circle across the cone is about 5,700 miles wide.

Light Glimmers

During a lunar eclipse, the earth's circular shadow may be almost three times wider than the disc of the moon. The edge of the circle must advance across the bright moon along the convex curve of a circle. As it departs, it must show a convex curve at the opposite side of the circle. The bulge of the moon's globe makes little, but not much, difference to the rim of the eclipsing shadow.

Yet sometimes we see what appears to be a concave shadow along the edge of the golden moon. This shadowy sickle is made by the earth, but not by the earth's shadow. The moon and the earth are both lit by the sun and some of their sunlight is reflected back into space. Some of the earth's sunlight falls on the moon and adds a dim glimmer to the lunar night. We call it earthshine. It makes the daylit section of the moon shine extra bright and adds a ghostly glow to the night area, which is usually invisible. If it happens at three-quarter moon, the glimmering earthshine may cause us to see a concave shadow.

At any phase from New Moon to Old Moon, a little earthshine may add a shadowy glow to the unlighted area of the moon. The curve of the shadowy realm depends on the phase of the moon. When the moon is past the half phase, earthshine may cast what seems to be a dim, concave shadow.

Andy sends a 14" World Book Globe to Marie Lockard, age 14, of Eugene, Oregon, for her question:

Is it true that Mercury rotates in 58 days?

The rotation of Mercury seems to have become a tantalizing topic, at least among Andy's penpals. The truth of the matter is that at present no one is sure of Mercury's rotation speed. Nobody can prove how fast it spins on its axis. We know that it takes 88 earth days to revolve once around the sun. For a long time most experts suspected that it turned once on its axis while revolving once around its orbit. The moon does the same thing, and its orbital time equals its rotation of about 27 days. If this applies to Mercury, its daily rotation would equal its orbital revolution of 88 earth days.

At its closest, Mercury is never nearer to us than almost 51 million miles. Its average distance from the sun is 36 million miles and its diameter is estimated to be about 3,100 miles. The surface features of the little planet are hard to study because of its distance from us and its closeness to the dazzling sun. Experts have been peering hard into their instruments, trying to discover its rotation period, and a team of researchers recently suggested that it spins faster than expected. Its day may equal 58½ earth days instead of 88. Others suspect that it may be much shorter. But at present the rotation speed of Mercury is in the land of theory, and nobody can say for certain what it is.

B.C. DOCTORS WARN

Victoria Sewage Disposal 'Hazard'

Sewage disposal in Greater Victoria is primitive, inadequate and a serious health hazard.

The cold water around Victoria is a blessing in disguise, doctors at the annual meeting of the B.C. Medical Association in the Empress Hotel were told Thursday.

PUBLIC APATHY

The association's environmental health committee had this to say about public apathy on the subject:

". . . while people are intensely pre-occupied with the appearance of their individual bowel motions, they develop a complete loss of interest once it is flushed down the toilet.

"This curious dissociation is almost like an hysterical conversion reaction as the same individuals deny to themselves that the peculiar malodorous putrefaction, going on in their open roadside ditches, could in any way be intimately related to themselves.

"The extent of their denial is seen in their allowing their children to play in these murky waters."

It is incomprehensible, said the committee, that a public and government who demand sophisticated medical care on the one hand can look the other way when it comes to the health hazard from an inadequate sewer system.

NOT SEAWEED

One committee member swimming on a beach in Greater Victoria saw that what he at first thought was seaweed was none other than toilet paper.

Concern was expressed over the rapid growth in the Colwood and View Royal areas but "there is gross pollution in many land areas, creeks, lakes and coastal waters in the Greater Victoria area."

Doctors endorsed the report which recommended in part that the association write the Capital Regional Planning Board underlining concern over the "serious health hazard" in Greater Victoria created by inadequate sewage disposal and urging priority be given development of a proper disposal system.

Buttle Lake Tailings Hit By Doctors

B.C.'s Pollution Control Board got a rap on the knuckles from the province's doctors Thursday over controversial mine tailings disposal in Buttle Lake.

The board failed to wait for a review of the health department report before issuing a second permit to run effluent into Myra Creek, said a study read at the annual meeting of the B.C. Medical Association.

The doctors on the association's environmental health committee said they hoped such "errors" would not be repeated. They were also "very critical" of the small-scale bench testing being applied in an operation the size of Western Mines.

OTHER METHODS

There is sufficient doubt about the health hazard involved in disposing of mine residue on the bottom of the lake, said the committee, that it is safer to again consider alternative disposal methods.

Work by Dr. Alan Austin, a Uvic biology professor, shows there is no way of preventing dispersion of the tailings' fine particles because seasonal temperatures create a natural circulation in the lake that is used by Campbell River for a water supply.

"The mixing that can occur . . . may lead to down lake pollution far in excess of that originally envisioned in the disposal plan."

OPERATION EDITH

Plan Your Escape FD Urges Families

The Victoria Fire Department hopes to help Victoria families plan emergency escape routes from their homes with a campaign known as Operation Edith.

Edith stands for "emergency dispersal in the home," Deputy Fire Chief R. J. Coates said.

"Each family should have an understanding of this plan so they will be prepared in the event of an emergency fire."

The purpose of the plan is to get families to plan emergency escape routes from their homes, thereby reducing the number of lives which might otherwise be lost in house fires.

FIRE DRILL

"Plans for an emergency exit could be made at the dinner table and they could then be followed by a drill to see how well the exit works," said the deputy chief.

Suggested escape routes are low windows or even a rope ladder he added.

"Most people tend to exit through the same door they enter, when they are caught in an emergency, even though they might risk severe danger by doing so," he said.

It is not the fire which claims the most lives, but usually the smoke and hot gases which accompany it, he explained.

And since the smoke and gas seek oxygen and travel in the line of least resistance, the main entrance, usually connected to a hallway, is a likely spot for both to accumulate.

Persons rushing into such a dangerous place in the time of an emergency are liable to be asphyxiated, he said.

Medical Men Honor 'Skid Road' Doctor

For 40 years Dr. Maurice Fox has been—in the words of Kipling—"a friend to all the world."

From his office at 208 East Hastings in the heart of Vancouver's skid road he has cared for countless sick and suffering around him.

". . . a friend most especially for those people of the world who may not have many friends," said a citation in a presentation to Dr. Fox Thursday.

7-Day Week For Operating Rooms Urged

Hospital operating rooms and other special facilities should be at work seven days a week, like ferries and food services.

So said the retiring prsident of the B.C. Medical Association Thursday at the association's annual meeting in the Empress Hotel.

"This seems to be one way we could make our hospitals more efficient," said Dr. A. M. Johnson of Vancouver.

The province must find a way to build more chronic care and rehabilitation hospitals to take care of the soaring numbers of these kind of patients now being handled in acute care hospitals, he added.

Doctors must not try to milk the prepaid medical insurance schemes or soaring rates would force people to abandon them for the government-run insurance plans.

The end result could be a monolithic insurance plan, he said.

Former Trustee Tries Comeback

Fred Boulter, 808 Brock, resigned from the board in mid-1965, protesting attacks on trustees by municipal councils.

He then unsuccessfully sought re-election last December. The 58-year-old shipwright said he is running again because he is "not satisfied with the way things are being run on the school board."

INFLAMMABLE MEANS FIRE

A telephone survey of Canadian householders has revealed they do not know the meaning of the word "inflammable," says Deputy Fire Chief R. J. Coates.

The word "infalmmable" is the same as the word "flammable" and both words have the meaning "will burn," say fire officials.

Yet 80 per cent of the persons canvassed in the survey thought "inflammable" meant "won't burn" or "won't burn as fast." The other 20 per cent were aware that both words signify danger.

Lone Bandit Escapes on Foot After Holding Up City Bank

$2,000 Taken; Gunman Chased

By PETE LOUDON and DESMOND BILL

A masked, armed bandit escaped on foot today after robbing a bank at Fort and Richmond of an estimated $2,000.

A platoon of police was searching the Ida-Coronation-Denman area for the robber at press time.

He escaped after a foot race with the bank manager, a teller and a customer, which covered about three blocks.

He is described by police as about 20 to 25 years old, wearing a fawn colored belted raincoat, brown Oxfords and is armed.

WORE TOQUE

He was also wearing a ski toque, pulled down over his face, with eyeholes, when he entered the Bank of Montreal branch at about 10:13 or 10:15 a.m.

He handed a bag to teller Don Renfrew, 19, and said, "Fill it."

The teller put about $2,000 in the bag and handed it to him.

He said a gun barrel was protruding about six inches through the robber's coat.

Then the robber ran out followed closely by manager Dunfield, a customer, Ken Morrison, 23, of the Coast Guard ship Estevan and teller Renfrew.

The four, with the robber leading by 100 yards, went across Fort and north on Ashgrove, across Begbie, on Pembroke and on to Ida.

REFUGE IN HOUSE

At that point, due to his extended lead the bandit was lost to the view of his pursuers. They believe he may have taken refuge in a house in that neighborhood.

It was the second robbery of the bank branch in a year and a half. Three masked men made off with $18,157 Feb. 18, 1966.

Here is how eye-witnesses reconstruct today's robbery.

Teller Renfrew (who started at the bank in July) said he couldn't believe his eyes when the bandit appeared.

Then the teller saw the gun barrel.

"I was sure it was a gun. I could see what looked like the front sight."

SHOPPING BAG

He filled the bag—later described as a small paper shopping bag similar to those used for potatoes. He put in small bills. Then the man fled.

'He didn't say anything about staying where we were standing, or standing still, so when he took off, I gave chase."

GUN BARREL protruding from a trench coat opening threatened bank teller Don Renfrew, 19, when bandit approached and demanded money. He escaped with $2,000 in small bills which he forced the teller to place in a shopping bag.

FIRST PLACE to be searched as police combed Jubilee area for bank bandit was 1211 Ida, former home for wayward girls. Pursuers, who followed the bandit for three blocks from the bank, said they lost him in that area and said that he might have entered the building.

Hong Kong Violence Flares Up

HONG KONG (CP) — Terrorist bombers killed a policeman, wounded five police and at least seven civilians and planted or hurled bombs throughout Hong Kong today as a new wave of Communist violence ripped through this British colony.

The terrorist attacks followed Hong Kong Communist newspaper calls for increased violence against the colony's "British Fascist authorities."

Operating mainly from rooftops, terrorists threw bombs at police and military squad cars, streetcars, and police and army demolition teams baited into position by false bombs planted on street curbs and pedestrian crossings.

At one bomb trap, Communist agitators gathered a crowd of more than 100 Chinese by passing out anti-British leaflets and then, when police arrived, hurled two bombs into the middle of the crowd. One police inspector and six civilians were wounded.

A suspected terrorist, captured in a running fight after the crowd bombing incident, was arrested and charged with attempted murder. He threw a third bomb at pursuing police but it failed to explode.

'Dump Levesque' Move Among Quebec Grits

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP)— Quebec's opposition Liberal party may be asked this weekend to reject former welfare minister Rene Levesque along with his personal brand of separatism.

Several leading Liberals say privately that anti-Levesque forces want the party to dump their outspoken member at the annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation.

In Montreal Thursday night, Liberal Leader Jean Lesage gave force to their contention by saying publicly that the prospect of losing Mr. Levesque threatens a loss "which is gradually becoming less and less significant."

About 2,000 delegates are expected at the federation's meeting, which is expected to endorse Saturday a resolution rejecting "separatism in all its forms."

Mr. Levesque is backing an opposing resolution calling on the Liberals to endorse as party policy a sovereign, independent Quebec state within an economic association.

Thursday, Mr. Lesage said in a television interview that if the convention votes against Mr. Levesque's resolution the former minister will "have to commit, or dismiss himself" from the party.

"His conscience will dictate to him what course he must follow."

Mr. Lesage added that Mr. Levesque's departure would not hurt the party.

The resolution the liberal leader expects his party to endorse originated in the Liberals' 100-man constitutional committee and urges a new federal constitution with greatly increased powers for Quebec.

With the conference opening tonight, talk in Liberal circles centres on the political future of Mr. Levesque, with defeat of his resolution as worded taken for granted.

Mr. Levesque, 45-year-old former minister of natural resources and welfare, has indicated he will remain in the party to fight for his ideas even if the resolution is defeated.

But several Liberals, including some former cabinet colleagues from the 1960-66 Liberal government, have apparently decided that Mr. Levesque must go.

Some Liberals are said to be considering introduction of a resolution demanding resignation of Mr. Levesque and others in the party who advocate separatism.

Among those who want Mr. Levesque to leave is Eric Kierans, president of the federation, who said in an interview the Liberals will become "clear-cut anti-separatists."

Mr. Kierans said he cannot see how the party can keep Mr. Levesque if it adopts a strong anti-separatist stand.

SOME DISAGREE

But others within the party disagree. Among those who think Mr. Levesque can stay is former education minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie, who says wide differences of opinion are commonplace in politics.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said he would not like to see a resolution asking Mr. Levesque to leave the party, if in fact Mr. Levesque chooses to stay on.

He said such a resolution would amount to a personal attack, but some sources say this is exactly what some Liberals want.

Market Gang-Up Warned

BONN (Reuters)—West German Chancellor Kurt George Kiesinger told the West German Bundestag (lower house) today Britain will never get into the Common Market if her five market supporters gang up on France.

He said: "If we behaved in a way which gave the French partner the impression that we, the five, want this goal and are not interested in what you say . . . then the British application will again fail."

Kiesinger spoke after Foreign Minister Willy Brandt said: "We make no bones to anybody that the entry of Britain and other EFTA (European Free Trade Association) countries is in the German interest, both economically and politically."

ANSWERS OPPOSITION

Kiesinger responded during a major foreign policy debate after a speaker from the opposition Free Democratic Party charged that Bonn was not being tough enough toward French President de Gaulle in pressing Britain's case.

"What is needed is a patient and cautious policy," the chancellor said.

Kiesinger added West Germany would do everything—everything—in our power to bring about this unity."

Brandt said in reference to French reservations: "We have not shrugged off the arguments of the French government but are ready with our good offices to contribute to reconciling viewpoints which still diverge strongly."

BRANDT APPLAUDED

There was applause when Brandt said the West German government wanted talks on Britain's entry "to start soon."

The speech came little more than a week before a crucial meeting of the Common Market ministerial council on applications by Britain, Denmark, Norway and Ireland to join the market.

It was carefullly watched as an indication of West Germany's determination to back the British bid in face of French opposition.

The French position will be discussed by President de Gaulle and his top ministers in Paris Monday, it was reported Thursday night. That position will be put to other market members when they meet in Luxembourg Oct. 23-24.

LET HANOI GIVE PROOF OF PEACE AIMS—AUSSIE

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Australia said today that United States bombing of North Vietnam should be stopped only when Hanoi gives "convincing proof" that such a step would lead toward a peaceful settlement of the war.

"The one authority that can say with certainty what would happen when bombing stopped is the government of North Vietnam," Australia's External Affairs Minister Paul M. C. Hasluck told the 122-nation UN General Assembly.

Hasluck noted that the United States has already offered to halt the bombing as a first step toward negotiations.

"The regrettable fact is that every effort to start negotiations has been rejected with scorn by Hanoi."

OTTAWA (CP)—External Affairs Minister Martin said today he is willing to accept any procedure that would expedite committee hearings on claims that some Canadian medical equipment sent to South Vietnam was unsuitable.

Missile Facts Known

OTTAWA (CP)—All aspects of the United States' new anti-ballistic missile system were discussed with Canada in advance, Prime Minister Pearson said today. He was replying in the Commons to New Democrat Leader T. C. Douglas.

Nigerian Battle

LAGOS (AP)—Nigerian federal forces hold most of the river town of Onitsha after a five-day fight starting with the after-dark crossing of the Niger River by nearly 1,000 troops, army sources here said today.

LAST BID SATURDAY

Bus Snarl Forces Special Session

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government announced today it plans to call a special session of the legislature to deal with the strike of 6,000 Montreal bus and subway workers, now in its 23rd day.

The action was announced in Quebec City following a cabinet meeting.

The cabinet scheduled another session Saturday and if strikers had not returned to work by then arrangements would be made to convene the legislature.

Court injunctions ordering the men back to work for at least 80 days have been rejected by the unions involved.

The Montreal Transportation Commission had expected to have the city's buses and subways operating on a full schedule by early Saturday if the workers had obeyed the court injunction.

However, only about 350 maintenance employees and mechanics reported for work today. No drivers showed up.

Now there is a threat that Expo Express, the free surface train linking Expo's islands, may be shut down by Saturday. Expo management met Thursday night, but no statement was issued.

The government's back-to-work ultimatum was issued by Acting Premier Paul Dozois, but it was solidly turned down by the strikers at a mass meeting Thursday night.

16 Planes Lost

SAIGON (UPI) — A U.S. military communique today said 16 American planes have been lost over North and South Vietnam in the past eight days. Only four of the aircraft losses had previously been announced.

BUT HE GOT MUCH MORE THAN $13

At 10:13 this morning, Friday the 13th there were 13 people serving customers in the Bank of Montreal at Fort and Richmond.

And that, according to manager T. B. Dunfield, is when the bank robber appeared and made off with an estimated $2,000.

After the fruitless chase of the robber, Mr. Dunfield returned to the bank and locked the door until everything was sorted out.

After an interval — it may have been 13 minutes — the manager decided to re-open. But the door lock was stuck. On top of everything else he had to call for a locksmith.

Accord Hopes Dim

BONN (Reuters) — West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt today put a damper on hopes that an improvement in relations between Bonn and Moscow is at last under way.

He told the Bundestag (parliament) during a foreign policy debate that a dialogue with Russia has started on certain topics.

But he added, "unfortunately there are no indications yet that we are approaching basic improvement in relations."

Brandt had an hours-long talk Thursday with Russian Ambassador Semyon Tsarapkin.

DON'T BE A TRISKAIDEKAPHOBE

If You Can't Avoid It, Wear Low-Heeled Shoes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Avoid walking under cats" is the tongue-in-cheek advice of one man but triskaidekaphobes are sometimes reduced to shy stay-at-homes on Friday the 13th.

Today is the 13th and triskaidekaphobia—fear of the number 13—combines with other traditional bad luck signs to make life truly miserable for the superstitious.

"I always stay home," says Phil Edwards, a reporter for radio station KTYM in Inglewood, Calif. "I'd stay in bed but there's always the chance that I'll fall out so I usually go to sleep on the floor."

Helen Matusiak, a Chicago cleaning woman, says she was once told that if the first person you see on opening your window drapes in the morning on the 13th is a woman you'll have bad luck all day.

It happened to her once and she went to the store and lost $10, she said. Today, "I'm not going to open the curtains all day."

Marcia Ashley, 23, a high school teacher from Lynnfield, Mass., takes every precaution to avoid black cats. And with some reason.

"One night I was driving home when I saw a black cat walking across the road. Thinking quickly I pulled into a driveway to avoid it. I did—but I also hit the car that was parked there."

"I have no superstitions and take no precautions because I always know exactly what I'm doing," said Dr. Jack Harper, a Helena, Mont., surgeon.

Donald R. Dehon, researcher for a Boulder, Colo., engineering firm, said a company engineer once gave him the terse advice: "Avoid walking under cats."

Allen (Black Cat) LaJombe, self-styled "unluckiest man in New Orleans," holds the grand opening of a new bar today on the theory tha "maybe Friday the 13th will give me luck for a change."

In New York City a group calling itself "The 13 Against Triskaidekaphobia" holds forth at the 13th minute of the 13th hour—1:13 p.m.—outside a Manhattan restaurant.

Any passerby brave enough to break a mirror, pass under a ladder or pitch his good luck charm into a trash can gets a free movie pass, the group said.

Doubts Growing Che Dead As Body Quickly Cremated

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Conflicting reports, rumor and the skepticism of Ernesto (Che) Guevara's family cast doubt today on the Bolivian army's claim that it had killed the Latin American revolutionary.

Government and army accounts clashed on whether the guerrilla said to be Guevara was buried or cremated, how he met his death and whether he identified himself before dying.

Guevara's brother, Roberto, arrived from Argentina Thursday to claim the body, but after conferring with Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia, commander of the army, he said Ovando told him the body had been cremated.

Wednesday the army said Gueiara's body had been buried in a secret place, and coincident with Roberto Guevara's arrival a government source said President Rene Barrientos was "of the opinion that the body should be turned over to the Guevara family."

REPORTS CREMATION

After Roberto Guevara told reporters about the cremation, a government spokesman said he knew nothing of it.

"It would surprise us a lot," he said. "It would have been something done at the last minute by the armed forces which the president wasn't informed about, which is difficult to believe."

ROBERTO GUEVARA
. . . came to claim body

Roberto refused to say if he believed the man shot in Bolivia's jungles was his brother, but cousins and nephews in Buenos Aires said they doubt he was Che.

Radiophotos of the dead man showed a likeness, they said, but not enough to convince them of Guevara's death. One cousin said Che had written his father from Paris.

Further skepticism involved a military communique that said Guevara was wounded in a battle with government troops Sunday and died Monday.

Death Tale Challenged

MADRID, Spain (Reuters)—Rosendo Canto Hernandez, a former Cuban diplomat, Thursday challenged Bolivian reports of the death of Ernesto (Che) Guevara.

He doubted whether the body shown to correspondents was that of the famed revolutionary.

Canto, a former Cuban ambassador to Costa Rica and Formosa, who now lives in exile here, said when he visited Havana in May, 1966, he heard discreet talk that Guevara was executed by Premier Fidel Castro.

Newcomers to Add Zest to Sunday Races

By SHIRLEY HEWETT

Much of the recent activity around Oak Bay Marina involved readying boats for Sunday's opening races of the Turkey Head Sailing Association.

Some 60 sailing boats of over 13 feet are registered with the association, along with over 20 non-boat - owning members.

Hewett

Racing for the first time out of Oak Bay will be Rod McBride's 'Lemolo,' Gerry Carter's 'Caprice,' Russell Potter's 'Sunbeam,' Peter Clark's 'Halcyion' Sharon Taylor's 'El Frijolito Salton,' Tony Rose's 'Rabble Rouser,' and Dr. Ross Henry's 'Heidi.'

The will be joined by most of last year's enthusiasts which include Ken Low's 'Bris,' Dr. Ron Scott-Moncrief's 'Tsonoqua,' Charle Pash's 'Chasmoy' Peter Chesshire's 'Calomine' and Peter Ferguson's 'Rebel.'

Rick modified the lines of a new design by New Zealand's John Spencer, adapting her for local conditions. The hard chine 24 footer is built of heavily-glassed plywood, and was completed in only five months by her industrious owner.

She carries 300 square feet of sail in mast head rig, but can also be converted to a cutter rig.

First Sunday race starts at 10 a.m.

SHORT TACKS: Sunshine and very light winds launched the Frostbite opener last Sunday at R.C.N.S.A. Ed and Frank Cushing shared top honors in the three-race O.K. dinghy event . . . Four races were completed by 12 El Toros. Elizabeth 'Bis' Whitby, with only one year of racing, captured three firsts, with Greg Hemphill taking the other race. Versatile Bis is one of those athletic naturals who does well in any sport. She plays a championship game of grass hockey, and last year was on the executive of the Victoria Grass Hockey Association.

CANOEISTS ORGANIZED

Canoe and kayak enthusiasts Thursday agreed to form a canoe club.

About 30 persons — men and women— attended the meeting chaired by Anthony Wilkins.

Pending the drafting of a constitution, canoeists will meet at Thetis Lake on Sunday, Oct. 22, at 11 a.m. for a "get-acquainted" day's outing.

The main object of the club will be to plan canoe trips on Vancouver Island and the mainland. Canoe races will also be held in Victoria next year.

The meeting elected a protem executive composed of Mr. Wilkins, Pat Townsend, David Thompson, Arthur Kemis and Bill Chapman. It will prepare a constitution.

Poodle Chews Up Man's Dentures

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. — A California man needed a fast denture repair after his poodle chewed his false teeth. He stated a new product, PLATE-WELD, repaired the break and replaced a tooth on the spot. He said it held like new. Company reports PLATE-WELD is available at all drug counters. Advt.

Good Fruit And Sweet Memories

By ELIZABETH FORBES

It's the golden season in the south Okanagan, around Penticton, Summerland and Naramata.

Forbes

Windfalls carpet the ground. And pickers are busy from the first morning light until the sun goes down behind the tawny brown hills.

Nearly every orchard has its own roadside stand. Last weekend they were all busy. People had motored long distances to load their cars with fruit and vegetables. And especially with apples—the misty red-skinned Macs, golden and red Delicious, winter Bananas and the newer, long-keeping Spartans.

Not only were they buying apples, they were eating them. Crunching loudly and with obvious enjoyment into the crisp skins and down into the juicy pulp.

"There's nothing like an apple picked fresh from a tree," one man said to me as he took the side out of one with a hefty bite.

"Takes me back to my childhood when every home in our block had an apple tree in the back garden and we were never without fruit to eat."

He took another hefty bite and added that "in cities today very few people have fruit trees in their gardens."

★ ★ ★

When he had gone his way and we were back in the car and headed for the Naramata orchards, his words set us to reminiscing.

We remembered that in our childhood, there were gnarled and climb-inviting apple trees in most city gardens. That the fruit was carefully picked in the golden season and stored in attics. And that these same attics were warm and sweet with the apple smell.

We thought of the bowls of apples that stood on most dining room sideboards within easy reach of young hands whenever there was an urge to crunch and to eat.

And we remembered how day after day our mothers sent us off to school with an apple in our hands or in our coat pockets. This, they would say, "in case you get hungry."

We recalled how children, in those days, were never without one apple a day and we chanted the singsong formula about an apple keeping the doctor away.

★ ★ ★

From this it was easy to make the jump to those occasions when families went en masse to autumn fairs. "Toffee apples!" drooled the one in the back seat of the car. "The glorious, all-pervading stickiness of them and the tang of juicy fruit under the goo."

There were apples at Christmas, polished until they shone deep red under candlelight and piled high in baskets and bowls with walnuts and ferns for anyone to take as they passed.

And at Halloween! We remembered ducking for the elusive fruit, which bobbed away just when we were sure we had it. We giggled and splashed and our long braids and curls got soaked every year until at last we grew too old for braids and curls.

Then we had a new game. We peeled our apples round and round, trying to get the longest possible piece of skin. This we threw over a shoulder and the initial it formed on the floor was that of the man we would someday marry. The event seemed remote but the prophecy was very important.

Small wonder that we were willing to give apples such magic power for throughout our school years the ones we found in legend and story were far from ordinary.

We did remember starting with a nice sensible statement, chanted in unison—"A is for Apple." But from that jumping-off place we also remembered moving on to William Tell, Johnny Appleseed, the treacherous fruit that poisoned Show White, the apple that tempted Eve, the golden apples of the Hesperides and the apple of discord given by Paris to a beautiful goddess and that brought the wrath of the jealous down on Troy.

At this stage in our reminiscing we discovered it was time to return to Penticton. Which we did fully believing that there could be nothing more rewarding in the golden season than to take an apple in hand and savor the good fruit and good memories together.

ULTRA-MODERN replacement for small, old, wooden ship is the new $2,500,000 Vector built by Yarrow's for the department of energy, mines and resources. Vector will be used for research in oceanography in British Columbia waters. It replaces the Ehkoli, which is being returned to the navy after being on loan to the federal government.

Coroner Rules Football Death An Accident

A coroner's inquiry has ruled the death of a young football player here Tuesday was an accident.

The games in which he played were properly supervised and no blame was attached to anyone in the findings of coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

RESULT OF BLOW

In releasing his findings, based on a city police and post mortem investigation, the coroner noted that the fatal head injuries were the result of a blow or blows to the head.

These might have occurred in a fall after the youth was tackled in a practice football game Sept. 22 or as a result of a tackle in the Oct. 1 game.

If the injury happened at the practice the game might have increased the effect of the brain swelling. The boy was taken out of the game by coach Frank Hindle when he appeared tired and collapsed on the players' bench.

Admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital immediately, the boy died nine days after surgery. Funeral services were held today.

NAMING CEREMONY for new oceanographic research vessel Vector was carried out Thursday by Mrs. Cameron, wife of Dr. William Cameron, director of marine services for the federal department of energy, mines and resources. The ship, with a complement of 26, including seven scientists, will go into operation November 1 after shakedown tests.

QUADRA-TOPAZ APARTMENT

'Eyesore' Decision Soon by Courts?

The courts of British Columbia could decide the fate of the Quadra-Topaz Garden Apartments within the next three months.

Lawyer Jack Cowan told city council Thursday that as the spokesman for a group of businesses with registered judgments totalling $42,000 against the property they would shortly be seeking settlement via a court-ordered property sale.

Mr. Cowan made the statement during a public hearing called to provide the owners of the partially finished apartment block to show cause why a demolition order should not be issued.

'PREMATURE'

Cecil Branson, representing Island Construction, said he felt the call for demolition premature and asked for more time to permit his clients to find a purchaser for what he termed a property valued at $300,000.

He said his clients were prepared to negotiate for a sale price of $200,000 even though such a price would lose them $100,000.

Construction of the block started in December, 1964, but ceased in August, 1965, when mortgage companies refused to advance further monies.

Since then it has been the target of bitter complaints from neighbors and city aldermen who at various times have termed it an eyesore and a fire hazard.

Mr. Branson told council there are a number of alternative solutions to the problem of finishing the building.

He suggested it could be purchased by the municipality and converted into low-rental housing units or that it could be completed as a privately-owned apartment project.

"My client should not be subject to a sword of Damocles over his head," Mr. Branson said.

He felt newspaper publicity in recent months had caused potential purchasers of the property to shy away from completing a deal.

'A DISGRACE'

"The building is a disgrace to the city," said Ald. Cecil Parrott. "And it has been for the past two years."

He asked how much longer the owners wanted before doing something positive about the situation.

Mr. Branson answered, "As much time as possible."

Mayor Hugh Stephen said he felt Mr. Branson was asking for "an extension of the extreme tolerance extended to the owners these past two years."

Mr. Cowan, specifically representing Ocean Cement Ltd. but speaking for other companies with registered judgments against the owners, backed the plea for more time but for a different purpose.

"We have been instructed to proceed with court action which will probably see the next step a court directive ordering the sale of the property by the sheriff," he said.

"I cannot be sure just how long the formal procedures will take but I would think between two and three months."

Council agreed to table the demolition decision for three months during which time the owners may find a purchaser or the courts will order the property sold to the highest bidder offering more than $42,000 required to satisfy already established court judgments.

Companies with registered judgments against the property are Ocean Cement, over $11,000; Imperial Bank of Commerce, over $16,000, and the wholesale plumbing and heating firm Alcock Downing and Wright, over $15,000.

Georgia Straight Editor Remanded

VANCOUVER (CP)—Dan McLeod, 23, editor of the Vancouver hippie newspaper Georgia Straight was remanded Thursday without plea to Oct. 17 when he appeared in magistrate's court on a charge of creating a disturbance.

McLeod was arrested Wednesday after an incident last Sunday in front of a downtown Vancouver restaurant.

He is free on $35 bail.

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1967—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Among my friends, I number a super-salesman who, although he is and always has been a legitimate operator, would not thank me to air his name here. He works from the background, and his stock in trade is not goods but ideas.

I'll call him Ed Keith, which is reasonably close to his real name. He is large in every dimension — tall, broad and thick through the middle — and among his assets is an actor's ability to shift convincingly from one role to another as the occasion demands.

But whether playing the sorrowful-and-wounded bit, or turning on a fine dramatic rage, he is unchangeably the same behind his mask of the moment. Very kind, that is, and gifted with a wry, shrewd humor.

In those years, he sold door-to-door in a satellite suburb of Washington, D.C. While he applied his eloquence to potato-peelers, spices, encyclopedias and all the rest, he was mentally filing and noting the manifold quirks of human nature.

When I met him, he had graduated by way of the car lots and dealers' showrooms to selling of a highly specialized sort.

His stock, or rather the stock he undertook to find buyers for, consisted of items that the public emphatically did not want. These waifs, strays and castaways of trade, he dealt with in boxcar lots.

One day he turned up at our place with bulging pockets, from which he produced a fistful of cough candy packages.

"Try a few," he urged us.

The candies reeked of eucalyptus in which fish-oil had apparently been blended. Ed, grinning, observed our reaction.

"Pretty horrible, eh?" he said. My client is stuck with a load of them."

Ed moved them. It took him about a month to accomplish this impossible-seeming feat; but in the end, he persuaded a manufacturer that the cough candies would help sell his packaged household product if enclosed as premiums.

Ed moved this, he moved that. He moved popcorn into Ontario's rural theatres, along with dispensing machines and blowers to waft the hot-buttered fragrance out of the foyers and into the streets.

★

The closest this paragon of the pen and the dotted line ever came to disaster was when he undertook to find a market for several thousand cuckoo clocks.

A Toronto importer had ordered a few hundred of these gabled, carved and bird-haunted items from a German supplier for a Christmas gimmick. He advertised them as 'Made by Elves in the Black Forest,' and unloaded them at a speed that encouraged him to place a repeat order for several thousand.

But the season had passed . . . and so, it appeared, had the market. Panic-stricken, he called in Ed the trouble-shooter.

Ed installed one of the clocks in his office. While the yellow bird popped out to salute him on the hour, he toiled to evolve a strategy. Finally, when he had all but abandoned hope, inspiration struck.

"Farmers use alarm clocks to get them up with the cows." he explained to his client, "and they never throw anything away. That means a lot of busted alarm clocks in a lot of barns. So we advertise a cuckoo for the farm kitchen at a reduced price to anyone who sends in an alarm clock with his order."

Ed, these last few years, has spent his days at the black art of teaching salesmen how to sell. But he still remembers what happened when the cuckoo call went out.

"We moved the whole shipment in two months," he says, "and took in enough alarm clocks to fill a dozen trucks. And you know, only one of the lot had a tick left in it!"

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The Deputy Vice-President of the Republic of China, Hon. Huang Shao-Ku, said today he is proud of Victoria's Chinese Community.

"When I return to Formosa, I shall tell our president (Chiang Kai-shek) of the high esteem in which the Chinese people are held in this great city."

Mr. Huang was speaking at a reception in the City Hall council chamber at which he met more than 50 representatives of Victoria's 4,000-member Chinese community.

In an address of welcome to Mr. Huang, Mayor Hugh Stephen spoke in glowing terms of that community.

"It is with pride and thankfulness that we testify to the record of our Chinese citizens. They have always been in the forefront of all efforts to make this a better place to live.

"Their example of good citizenship, honesty, industry, respect for the law, love of family and compassion towards the needy and less fortunate have set for all of us a bright standard of honor.

Mayor Stephen referred to the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association, as "a magnificent example of self-help based on the Chinese philosophy of demeanor, prudence and humility."

Mr. Huang bowed to Mayor Stephen and presented him with an illustrated book on Chinese art. In return, the mayor gave him a replica of Victoria's civic crest and a book of photographs of Vancouver Island.

"Our city is only 105 years old," the mayor replied, "and that is but a fleeting minute in the ancient history of China."

VISITS CENTRE

The mayor then conducted Mr. Huang across rainswept Centennial Square for a visit to Victoria Silver Threads Centre.

Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director, conducted him through the centre's various handicraft classes, including basketweaving, painting and woodwork, and he stopped to admire the work.

"This is a very good way to keep active," he smiled. "We have something like it in Formosa."

Earlier, Mr. Huang and his party were received in Premier Bennett's office at the Legislative Buildings, where they chatted for five or six minutes.

"Our people are well aware of the struggle your people have made in the figgt for freedom," the premier said. "China has such a wonderful history we hope peace will come again soon."

Mr. Huang nodded assent and formally invited Mr. Bennett to Formosa.

"I would be delighted," the premier replied.

When signing the visitors' book, Mr. Huang asked if he could sit in the premier's chair.

"I should be honored," the premier replied.

At noon the Chinese party were entertained at a B.C. government luncheon at Oak Bay Marina. In his address, the premier said:

"The Chinese people of British Columbia are among our finest citizens, and we are pleased that during your brief visit you will be able to spend some time among them."

After a scenic tour of Victoria, the visitors were received by the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association at 636 Fisgard Street.

They were greeted by Jack Mee, president, and a guard of honor was formed by Victoria Chinatown Lions Club Drum and Bell Corps, Baton Corps and Chinese public school children.

At 6 p.m. they were to attend a dinner at the Chinese Village Restaurant, 755 Finlayson.

TOURING Victoria Silver Threads Centre at 4 Centennial Square, the Chinese Vice-President stopped to admire the work of Mrs. Grace Goddard in the basket-weaving class, watched by instructors Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Burrows. Mr. Hoang visited several other handicraft classes, escorted by Mrs. Catherine Horne, supervisor, and met Mrs. James Logie, general supervisor.

SEAMAN FINED FOR HIT-RUN

A Danish seaman from the freighter Marie Skou, in Victoria for repairs, was fined $150 and had his driver's licence suspended for two months in central court today.

He was convicted of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Moogens K. Sorensen said, through an interpreter, he was advised by bystanders he could leave the scene of an accident on Douglas Street because there was little damage and no one was hurt.

Sorensen ran the car into the rear of a bus.

Two Foiled In Bogus Bill Pass Attempt

An attempt to pass a phoney $10 bill in the Colwood area failed Thursday when an alert gas station attendant recognized the money as counterfeit.

Two men in a car gave the bill to Savage, 2736 Spencer, while he was on duty at Goldstream Shell station on the Island Highway about 8:30 p.m.

"It didn't feel right," he told the Times, "so I checked for the plate number and there wasn't one.

"I told the men I thought it was a phoney and they grabbed the bill and left. They were heading up-Island when I last saw them."

Mr. Savage said that the bill felt "too thin" as if the bill had been split.

City police have received a number of bills passed at city stores. So far 10 have been sent to Ottawa and reports of more counterfeit bills, usually from banks, are coming in.

Five bills have been passed in Saanich and turned over to police.

Outlook Poor In Ferry Hassle

Union Pessimistic After Conference

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

The dispute on British Columbia ferries took a new and deeper turn today.

An official statement on behalf of more than 700 deck, catering and shore workers said the union committee "cannot see any chance of agreement" on proposals by the ferry authority on 1968 work schedules.

Both sides met Thursday and today's union statement said there is "no change" in the situation.

Certain proposals were made by the authority and they will be discussed at union meetings early next week. No details were given.

On the dues checkoff issue, which led ferry employees to plan a Thanksgiving Day weekend strike before a cabinet committee agreed to talks, the union expressed the hope that the government "will give favorable consideration to the dues checkoff question and thus avoid unnecessary problems."

'INCOMPLETE'

Thursday, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said there was "incomplete discussion" at a cabinet meeting.

He refused to elaborate and would not indicate whether any recommendations were laid before the cabinet, whether it decided on any partial action or even whether it would discuss the matter at the next meeting.

"We do not really know what his meaning is but assume that further cabinet talks will be held early next week and perhaps the union will then hear some concrete answer from the government," said Tom Gooderham of the Canadian Labour Congress, and spokesman for the ferry employees.

"Until then, the union will use utmost restraint and refrain from direct action which would shut down the ferry service."

The union wants dues checkoff of up to $4 a month instead of the $2 a month ceiling set recently by the government for civil servants.

'IT'S A PROMISE'

Bennett Refuses Medicare Delay

Premier Bennett Thursday said B.C. will apply for federal government subsidies to cover half the cost of the B.C. Medical Plan beginning next July.

He indicated that he won't take federal Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's broad hint that provinces could help fight inflation by acting slowly in taking advantage of the new national health plan.

His announcement means that B.C. likely would send a bill of about $7.5 million to Ottawa for its first subsidy on a nine-month basis. The national plan begins July 1, three months after the start of the BCMP fiscal year.

Current budget for the B.C. government's co-insurance and stabilization grants to the B.C. Medical Plan is $16 million but projections point to a $20 million estimate in Mr. Bennett's next budget.

350,000 COVERED

The plan now covers about 350,000 persons and Mr. Bennett said no increases in the present rates would be made despite boosts in other medical plans recently to cover higher doctor fees and other costs.

Mr. Bennett made the statement to reporters at Patricia Bay airport on his return from a three-week European trip.

He was commenting on Mr. Sharp's recent speech that Ottawa is slashing back expenditures to fight inflation and would not be unhappy if provincial governments were slow in taking advantage of the national health scheme which comes into effect July 1.

"And we certainly will ask Ottawa to share in the cost of the B.C. Medical Plan starting in July next year."

While changing planes in Vancouver, Mr. Bennett told reporters there that his next budget will include "millions more" for municipalities through extra funds for "parks, pollution and police services."

But he said he could not elaborate further on "the three P's" because it would break budget secrecy.

FIRE COSTS A RECORD; SEASON ENDS TONIGHT

The 1967 forest fire season formally ends at 12 tonight under a B.C. cabinet order issued today.

The prolonged summer drought forced the government to spend a record $6,775,000 in fighting some 3,200 fires since May.

Last year, one of the best in the books, it only had to spend $672,800 on a total of 1,936 blazes.

Massive use of aircraft this summer sent up costs but was credited with preventing many fires from spreading to catastrophic proportions.

We'll Attend Both Parleys, Says Bennett

Premier Bennett today said the B.C. government will send a representative to both Ontario's and the federal government's proposed conferences on the constitution and he hopes it will be him.

He told a press conference that his government definitely will participate in Ontario Premier Robart's "confederation for tomorrow" meeting next month and Prime Minister Pearson's proposed meeting to discuss the current situation early next year.

"I will try to attend both but I may not be able to," he said. "I would like to.

"But we will be represented—our government will—even if I may not be there."

Mr. Bennett would not say what might prevent his personal

MEDICS SPLIT ON DANGERS . . .

. . . TWO AMENDMENTS MADE

Doctors' Marijuana Report Squeezes Through

By DON VIPOND

About 150 physicians approved a controversial report prepared by seven of their number Thursday which said marijuana is probably no more harmful than liquor.

But not before approving two amendments and then only by a margin of about three to two.

The report of the drug habituation committee, presented at the annual meeting of the B.C. Medical Association at the Empress Hotel, came within a whisker of being shelved.

38-35 VOTE

By a margin of 38 to 35, doctors rejected a move to have the report received for information only and the study continued with possibly a larger committee.

The committee was headed by Vancouver Dr. J. J. Lederman who is also a lawyer.

After a year of study, which included interviews with druggists, psychiatrists, social workers, police and hippies, the committee concluded marijuana ranked as a hazard alongside liquor and distribution might be handled by a government agency such as a Marijuana Control Board.

Doctors Thursday voted to chop such a reference and amended the report to read that a more appropriate legal control than the one presently in force should be sought.

NEW CLASS

The committee has said that ranking marijuana with addictive drugs like heroin was creating a new class of criminal among otherwise law-abiding citizens.

There was general agreement with the report which said LSD is a basically dangerous drug of unpredictable effect.

But here again doctors voted to erase one of the committee's recommendations — that present federal legislation which bans LSD distribution except for research is adequate control.

'POOR REPORT'

Most vocal of the committee's opponents was Dr. Robin Bell-Irving, a Vancouver internist, who said he thought it "an extremely poor report," and "just not related to reality."

The committee was too much concerned with legal aspects instead of "the health of our people."

His patients affected by drugs begin at 14, he said, and their path is from experimentation with marijuana to trying LSD.

"Experimentation is a very popular thing."

He told of one patient, a 22-year-old girl, who shifted from marijuana "and whose brains are now addled by LSD."

Applause greeted his motion that the report be sent back to committee.

Laws affect health, retorted Dr. Lederman, and the two are not so easily separated. The committee's report was not a collection of new ideas but sprang from a research of opinion the world over.

"The social and legal relationship are an integral part of our treatment."

A Vancouver doctor who treats jail patients said he supported and admired the report.

It must hurt doctors studying the problem to see what penalties are being handed down to first offenders, he said.

'COURAGEOUS'

Dr. Murray Cathcart termed the report "courageous" and said it was the type the public had a right to expect.

The association was not ready to make a major statement, of informed opinion, said Dr. George Gibson of Chilliwack. He lost by a narrow margin a move to have the report filed for information and the committee encouraged to continue its work.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," said one doctor, asking if any members of the committee had ever tried marijuana or LSD.

He said he could only speak for himself "but I've never tried the stuff and never intend to."

Throughout its report the committee stressed that the laws relating to the two drugs must be obeyed "to the letter."

CELEBRATING her 100th birthday today Sister Mary Geraldine received a Centennial plaque from David Groos, federal MP for Victoria. Now a patient at Mount St. Mary's Hospital, Sister Mary was born at Oswego, N.Y., in 1867. She came to Canada in 1886 and has lived in British Columbia since then. Before taking holy orders, she was Nellie Langevin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Langevin, of Kingston, Ont. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

Telephone Numbers To Change

Half of Oak Bay and a small portion of Victoria will have a new telephone number prefix next year as the result of a $1,700,000 project by B.C. Tel.

Dec. 1, 1968, when the new office on Foul Bay Road goes into operation, about 6,000 subscribers will use the prefix 592 instead of the 38-numbers now used.

The area for the 592 exchange is bounded by Cedar Hill Cross Road in the north; the coastline to the east; along a line between Oak Bay Avenue and Cranmore Avenue in the south, and a line from Bay and Shelbourne to Pear Street and Cedar Hill Road in the west.

SAVE MORE

E. L. Mallett, district manager for B.C. Tel. in Victoria, said it is more economical to establish a new office in the Oak Bay area than to continue running cables from downtown.

The move will free sufficient space in the Victoria office to take care of growth for the next 10 years, Mr. Mallett said.

The new building will be completed in February next year. Cost of two-storey concrete structure is $250,000. Automatic switching equipment will cost $1,200,000.

The cables now running from Victoria to the Oak Bay area will be used to carry calls to and from the Victoria and Oak Bay offices.

Campfire Rally for Cubs At Goldstream Saturday

More than 250 Cubs in Douglas District will converge on Goldstream Park Saturday evening for a district campfire.

The event will get under way at 7.

Newly appointed District Cubmaster Charles Ryan will be introduced and will take the "Scouter's 5."

District Commissioner Tom Hardisty said the event will be held "regardless of the weather."

'OPTIMIST'

Briton Plans Year 2000 Celebration

LONDON (AP)—Of all the people in the world, John Goodman believes he is the only one seriously planning to celebrate the arrival of the year 2000.

"It's only 33 years away," he said in an interview, "and no one seems to be giving it a thought."

"The world today is being engulfed by great waves of pessimism. The prophets of doom are predicting we'll have blown ourselves to bits by 2000.

"I must be an optimist because I'm convinced a lot of us—including myself—will be around by 2000, and I'm going to celebrate it."

As the self-appointed secretary of the World Association for Celebrating Year 2000, he is sending letters to cities and towns everywhere.

How will they celebrate the year 2000?

"I want them to plant trees—in groups, avenues of them, or just single trees," he explained.

"They're symbolic of life and beauty," he explained. "Take the terrible mushroom image of the nuclear bomb explosion, turn that mushroom upside down, and you've got the image of a tree."

Year 2000 trees have been planted in a number of places, but Goodman, 38, feels he hasn't even scratched the surface yet.

He believes that every country should set aside an area with a 21-mile circumference and turn it into a Year 2000 national park.

But won't it cost a lot of money?

"Of course it will," he answered, "but a nuclear war would cost a great deal more."

. . . HOLDUP

last robvery, said he believed the teller "was purposely stalling."

When the robber ran from the bank, the manager also joined the pursuit, allowing a good lead to the escaper.

PURSUERS UNARMED

"We didn't want to get too much closer. There is not too much point in getting shot. We just wanted to pin him down; see where he went."

The pursuers were unarmed.

"I'm going to have to change jobs," said Mr. Dunfield. "It takes a while to settle down after a thing like this. It's my second and last holdup . . . I hope."

He said everybody in the bank "stood quite still" when the bandit moved in.

The manager saiddddddddddT about six people in the bank. He was in his office talking to Ken Morrison.

Suddenly Mrs. Dorothy Semple, another teller, entered his offict to say the bank was being robbed.

Mr. Morrison, 23, who lives at 641 Goldstream, said, "the robber stood with his back to the far counter (watching the bank staff and customers) until the teller came around and handed him the bag.

"He had a skin-tight toque, the kind skiers wear over thie faces, and his hand in his pocket.

h "We chased him (when he left), the bank manager and I an one of the young fellows from the bank. He was ahead of uan and it appeared he cut in here."

'OPERATION STOPGAP'

Mr. Morrison was referring to the Ida-Coronation intersection. He thought the man may have evntered the apartment house at 2211 Ida which once was the Victoria home for wayward girls.

Was Morrison worried about the possibility of getting shot?

The bank manager returned to the bank to notify the police who he had been alerted by the bank alarm. Mr. Morrison stood by the corner until they arrived.

Meanwhile, accountant Henry Quan was touring nearby streets in his car.

There were 15 city police on the scene with Det.-Insp. Bill Andrew in charge and Inspector Brooke Douglasfalso in attendance.

A carload of Saanich officers also appeared with Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart and two others.

A search of the big house at 2211 Denman was just under way when real estate salesman Tom Duncan reported that a vacant house he had care of at 1706 Denman had been broken into recently.

In checking it today he noticed the front door on a vacant house at 1725 Denman was closed. But when he looked again, it was open. These premises also were searched without result.

A short time later George Russell of 1756 Coronation told police he had left his house in his car to assist them in their patrols. When he returned he noticed the basement door he'd left open now was closed.

HOSTAGE?

And it appeared some spare doors in his basement had been pulled in front of the basement windows. He went for the police fearing hiw wife was being held hostage.

They found that Mrs. Russell had locked the door and barricaded the windows because she feared for her safety.

At press time the police were still watching the neighborhood and interviewing residents.

A popular theory was that the bandit may have been frustrated in getting to a car by the chase. If he went into hiding it was possible he was now waiting for a chance to move further from the area.

THREE ARRESTS

When the bank was last robbed in 1966 the police made three arrests the following day—although the loot never was recovered.

After two trials (the first was declared a mis-trial) they were convicted and sentenced, Coullrer drawing 16 years, Duck 14 and Braumberger 10.

The trio had used sawed-off rifles to threaten staff and customers and left with the cash within three minutes of entering the bank, just before closing time, also on a Friday.

Meetings Calendar

Air Experts Seeking Crash Clues

ATHENS, Greece (Reuters)—Medical and aviation experts looked to autopsies scheduled for today on victims of a British jetliner crash for clues on why the plane suddenly plunged into the Mediterranean Thursday, killing all 66 persons aboard.

The crash baffled experts because the plane was cruising normally at about 29,000 feet and there was no indication from the pilot of any problem. An airline spokesman said the pilot sent a routine message just a few minutes before the accident.

Theories about the crash ranged from sabotage to a thunderstorm or some unexplained mechanical defect. The sabotage idea was linked to the fact that there were earlier rumors that Gen. George Rivas, Cypriot National Guard commander, was aboard the plane, though in fact he was not.

Peace Bid Planned By Radio

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu said today he will make his peace bid to Ho Chi Minh in mid-November, but "if North Vietnam persists in its aggression then we will continue to defend ourselves."

The chief of state, who will be inaugurated as head of the new constitutional government Oct. 30, spelled out in a talk with Japanese reporters the details of a letter he expects to send to the North Vietnamese president two weeks after he takes office.

Thieu's remarks were distributed by Vietnam Press, the government news agency. A spokesman had outlined the plan Thursday.

Thieu indicated the letter would not be sent directly to Ho but would be broadcast by radio, distributed to the press and addressed to several governments and to world personalitites.

Injunction Sought

QUEBEC (CP)—Acting Premier Paul Dozois announced today the provincial cabinet has deceided to seek a court injunction ordering a return to work by more than 190 radiologists who have withdrawn their services from hospital across the province.

Health Minisfer Jean-Paul Cloutier reported to the cabinet that the radiologists had not responded to a government order to return to work.

250 Compete Cross-Country

DUNCAN — More than 250 competitors are expected here to take part Oct. 28 in the first cross-country, age-class championships to be held on Vancouver Islands.

The meeting will be held at the Bazzet farm, four miles east of Trans-Canada Highway and Trunk Road intersection.

B.C. championship medals will be awarded to winners in each category. All entries for the races must be made by Oct. 25.

Victoria NDP Pick Candidate On Oct. 30

New Democratic Party members in Victoria constituency will nominate their next federal candidate Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. in Union Centre on Quadra Street, it was announced today.

JETS HIT HAIPHONG SHIPYARDS

SAIGON (CP)—Waves of U.S. Navy jets hit the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong hard Thursday, attacking for the first time in the war two shipyards previously on Washington's list of restricted targets.

One of the shipyards, only 1.6 miles northwest of the centre of the city, was described as an operation with 37 storage and support buildings and a barge manufacturing facility.

The second, smaller shipyard attacked was 1.7 miles southwest of the city's centre. Both yards were reported heavily damaged.

. . . MARKET

Meanwhile, Britain told the six-market countries that the time has come for action on her application.

Lord Chalfont, British market negotiator, speaking in London at a meeting of the Western European Union, rejected suggestions that problems in the British economy and balance of payments are insurmountable obstacles to membership.

. . . BENNETT

The premier said he has answered Mr. Pearson's letter regarding a constitutional conference but declined to reveal its contents because the exchange was made on a confidential basis.

Mr. Bennett refused to reveal his feelings about the need for constitutional amendments nor to say whether he felt there was in fact a Quebec crisis threatening Confederation.

He said he had outlined his views in a CBC television program this week in Montreal and wanted that to be broadcast in B.C. rather than repeat his observations to newspaper journalists.

UNEDITED

He said the matter was so important that he would only discuss it on the basis of an unedited television interview so that all his words would be presented.

"The great advantage of television is that you're right in the person's living room and no one is editing it," he said.

The only comments he would make about the Quebec situation was that it was "delicate" and a time for carefully considered words.

"The situation is one in which there has been too much argument in my opinion—not here but across the country. I made the statement in Montreal because that's the place to say things in the centre and not 4,000 miles away."

Mr. Bennett said he was not suggesting "there has been too much talk (about Quebec), just too much argument, and I don't want to be part of the problem, I want to be part of the solution."

NO MEETING

He said he did not meet Real Caouette or any other Creditiste official during his two-day stopover in Quebec while returning from Europe.

He would make no comment on Creditiste announcements that they may merge with the national Social Credit party again to heal the three-year-old split.

"I'm a provincial leader and all I'm going to say as provincial leader is that I'll campaign only in British Columbia in the next federal election."

He said he expects a national election next autumn.

Mr. Bennett would not reveal whether he plans to call a byelection before the next session to fill a vacancy in the Vancouver South seat created by the recent death of Social Credit MLA Tom Bate.

FEW HOURS

"I've only been back a few hours and I haven't had my mind on that matter while I've been away," he said.

Mr. Bennett would not say whether he renewed his requests to the federal government for a $100 million grant towards hydro-electric construction projects and subsidies for the provincial Pacific Great Eastern Railway and ferry authority while he was in Eastern Canada.

"Let's just say that no answer has been received yet" to his written requests sent last year to federal Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp for the help on grounds of equal treatment to all provinces.

Mr. Bennett repeated his frequent criticism that "I find down east they just don't understand British Columbia" so the province should send a ginger group of Social Credit MPs to the House of Commons.

B.C. IGNORED

He added that while Quebec is given "better treatment than all the other poor provinces put together," Ottawa continues to ignore B.C.'s legitimate demands.

TVs, Cars A-Plenty Bathrooms Scarce

PARIS (Reuters)—One in every two French families owns a television set, a car and a refrigerator. Yet millions of homes have no bathroom.

A series of surveys conducted throughout the country by the National Institute of Statistics showed that France has enjoyed an immense boom in expensive household gadgets and luxuries during the last 10 years, but has been slow to acquire other, more basic amenities of modern living.

Fifty-two per cent of families interviewed by the institute had television sets, compared with one per cent in 1953.

Fifty-one per cent had cars, against 21 per cent 13 years ago. By the start of the vacation season in July, 12 per cent more new cars had been registered in France this year than at the same time in 1966.

The number of refrigerators in France has more than doubled in six years, and three out of every five families now have one. More than 85 per cent of homes can boast at least one radio.

Fewer and fewer wives have to toil over the sink to scrub their husbands' shirts because 55 per cent of households now own washing machines.

But the wave of apparent affluence is deceptive. Many poorer families interviewed in industrial or rural areas had cars and television sets but only a cold running water supply.

One survey made by a responsible market research firm discovered that as many as 43 per cent of French homes still had no bathrooms.

This was a slight improvement on 1962, when an estimated 60 per cent of households did not even have a separate washbasin and members of the family had to use the kitchen sink to wash their faces.

Rites Tuesday For Expert Fisherman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Funeral service will be held Tuesday for Thomas Brayshaw, 81, internationally-known fly-fishing expert and fishing artist.

He died at his home last Tuesday following a two-month illness.

Mr. Brayshaw was renowned among fly-fishermen for his knowledge of the sport and for his carefully-crafted, hand-tied flies. He was a longtime friend of naturalist-writer Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River, and illustrated a number of Mr. Haig-Brown's works on fish.

Mr. Brayshaw also developed a technique of making wood models of game fish that brought anglers to him for replicas of their catches.

He was an honorary member of the Washington and Oregon State fly-fishing associations and was recently given special recognition for his contribution to the sport by the Federation of Fly Fishers, a national organization of U.S. fishermen.

A native of England, Mr. Brayshaw came to Vancouver in 1910. He served with a Yorkshire regiment during the First World War and with the Canadian Army during the Second World War, retiring with the rank of major.

He is survived by his wife, Edith, and a son, Christopher, a forestry specialist at University of B.C.

Arts Council Centre Opening This Sunday

Speaker of the House, W. H. Murray will officially open the new centre of the Greater Victoria Community Arts Council Sunday at 3 p.m.

Dunlop House which is being shared by the Victoria Symphony was made available through the co-operation of the University of Victoria.

It will be used by the Arts Council as a co-ordination centre for community activities and the display and sale of work by local artists.

Mr. Murray will speak on the aims of the newly formed B.C. Government Centennial Cultural Aid Fund, of which he is chairman.

Ralph T. Flitton of Vancouver will also speak on the work of the B.C. Arts Board.

New Attempt By Parksville For Bypass

It has asked the highways department to construct the bypass as a vitally needed safety measure.

Council also decided this week to study further a suggestion from the Chamber of Commerce that "Parksville by the sea" be adopted as a slogan and used on letterheads as a promotional measure.

SANDOWN PARK

Analyst's Comments — Saturday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE—Davianna does a lot of running on heart; she has a big one and if Frazier can get her clear this could be the day. Mercilynn has fair early speed but from the outside they can get shuffled out of it at the first turn. Seven L is the main danger from behind. Sam should save ground early; he finishes well. Bally Bounce was in a little trouble Wednesday and seems to be improving. Rondocal is better than shown. Sentimentally Sir Lea would be a popular choice; it's his last race and he might lower the boom with that late, late charge. Souzem and Malheur Kitten would be ineligible if they won Friday; either has a shot here . . . DAVIANNA, Seven L, Sir Lea.

SECOND RACE — Can Hola Fire make it five in a row at Sandown? If so he will be the second horse to do it (Hrynfaxe was the first). He has speed inside and outside in Spree's Fancy and Who's Haydn. The way Hola Fire is going their roles might be reduced to "spoilers." If a speed duel materializes Pidge's Pride and Hasty Hug will benefit. Both come on well; the former drops two pounds and gets Frazier. The latter hits hard and goes well for the boy. In a race where ground saved might make the marginal difference . . . PIDGE'S PRIDE, Hola Fire, Hasty Hug.

THIRD RACE—This one will make the handicappers lose a few tufts of haid. Most of these like to "gung-ho." Whiskers can fly and drops two pounds; Star Pal can hum and sheds seven; Murrayville likes the front end and drops 10. Basket Carrier can also hum but seems a shade below her best. Keno Kid ran Friday (as did Murrayville) but he relishes mud (as do most of these in varying degrees). If they take Wild Bruce just off the pace as they did Sept. 29 he could have a royal chance. Punters Joy didn't take to the route; with her style she's a danger too. In a sizzler . . . WILD BRUCE, Whiskers, Keno Kid.

FOURTH RACE—Frazier goes back to Heather W; they formed a winning combination coming off the lead and could be the pair to beat. Jayie has shown she can stay close and come on; she goes to the outside here and will need Arnold's most skillful navigating. Ready Freddy has considerable speed; if he isn't pushed early they could have trouble collaring him. Fleet Brother switches to Andrews and has been all around the money. Bo Jester and Chase are late possibilities . . . HEATHER W., Jayie, Fleet Brother.

FIFTH RACE — We look for Easy Joe to lead them away. He's looked sharp in sprints; whether he can handle the trip depends on his chance to get a breather along the way. Pils Friday likes to ramble early and Hi-Ma-Dan is never far away from the first flight although he didn't have much pace with him in his last. Shadows Sake, Jayleen (who drops six and is obviously a superior mudder) and Easy Duchess all move resolutely and certainly would be no surprise. Bucs Brother hits hard but these may be a little rough for him. We've always thought of Arigato as being primarily a sprinter but he's at his peak and his style suggests he might be running when a lot of others aren't. In a cluster . . . ARIGATO, Jayleen, Dainty Duchess.

SIXTH RACE — This is the day Seemingly may show how seemingly good he appeared to be. Never Charge will ask the question early; if the former can go head-and-head with the latter and then draw clear the rest could be in for a battle. Bouncy Belle is no slouch but in an early dogfight she may have to use up a lot of petrol. Uncle Roddy gets Frazier and was running hard in the stretch. He tends to give the rider trouble and would need clear sailing. In Solid is a tough tiger; he doesn't believe horses can whip him and he could be right. Woody Nite hasn't beaten this kind and loses Phillips but it's hard to rap her record. Short Circuit is better than shown and with a pull in weights is an interesting possibility at a price. Speed Command picks up five pounds off his brilliant win, is in good hands and should benefit from a pace duel. . . SEEMINGLY, Speed Command, Uncle Roddy.

SEVENTH RACE — Without the likes of This Is True and Princess Vega to contend with Big Cheese might roll out from the pole and dare the others to catch him. He can come off the lead too. He may not be overwhelmingly in favor of a holding track but he's a powerful runner. War Top is a tough horse who runs on anything and well. Sefton Park can stay close to the pace and under a well-timed move looms as one to fear. Gladys Ann is perhaps the key. She will be much tighter today and the youngster hustles hard. Kenos Boy is hard to figure; his style suggests he should appreciate the route but these don't give up easily. Handsome Chief could knock them for a loop. His mud credentials are impressive and he looked like he had something left in both recent victories. . . . BIG CHEESE, Handsome Chief, Gladys Ann.

EIGHTH RACE — Picalad could lead these home. He came to life under the rider and was narrowly whipped on the money. My Imagination is about ready to put up an argument. At the weights Miss Electric might barrel out but she hasn't been sticking. If Famous Bayboy gets rolling in time he's a danger. . . . PICALAD, My Imagination, Famous Bayboy.

Blast Destroys Terminal As Voting Held on Pact

PITTSBURGH (AP)—An explosion and fire destroyed a terminal owned by the head of the National Steel Carriers Association today, and rocks, bullets and firebombs showered trucks in three states.

The renewed violence reinforced a view that hopes for a quick settlement of the two-month-old strike by thousands of steel haulers were sputtering out.

The trucking company executives have split into two groups. A spokesman for one said it was opposed to a peace plan drawn in Pittsburgh. The strikers are voting on it anyway.

Spokesmen for the second group said they also are opposed to the original recommendations and have offered a compromise. The strikers said they will not vote on the substitute.

The explosion rocked a small terminal of B and P Motor Express Inc. at Fallston north of Pittsburgh just before dawn. Firemen said the building was a total loss. B and P is headed by Howard Miller, president of the National Steel Carriers Association.

At Greensburg, east of Pittsburgh, state police reported that windshields on 10 trucks were smashed by rocks. No one was hurt. A bullet ripped open a tire on a truck near Gibsonia on the Pennsylvania Turnpike.

Snipers fired on two strike-breaking trucks and a car near Middletown, Ohio. Three firebombs were thrown at a parked truck near Youngstown. Two of the bombs did not explode. No one was hurt.

One More Channel to Cross...

THE GENERAL BRITISH ATTITude on the country's entry into the European Common Market exhibits a not un-British paradox: The country seems to be increasingly united on the desirability of becoming a member of the European Community, but at the same time the likelihood of an early admittance is seen as becoming more remote. How these conflicting trends will be reconciled may depend on forthcoming talks, but the situation has not been demonstrably improved by the recent report of the European Commission.

This report notes Britain's economic problems and the weakness of the pound sterling and it is apparent that these conditions will have to be rectified before the British application will receive support. As the Economist of London says: "the Commission is worried that the (Market) would be absorbing a Britain that has had an awful lot of balance of payments crises within the past few years, and which the Commission believes . . . has not done anything sufficiently fundamental since 1964 to remove the probability that it is going to have more balance of payments crises in future".

One thing Britain can now claim is that all its political segments are in agreement on the matter of the application. Last week's endorsement by the Labor Party prompted the Daily Telegraph to observe that "President de Gaulle will not be able to say that any representative section of British public opinion is now opposed to a sincere and determined effort to join Europe".

But that, of course, is far from enough. Prime Minister Wilson has frequently emphasized that Britain "must enter the Common Market on a wave of prosperity, not as a hunted debtor seeking any port in a storm". And a wave of prosperity is something Britain cannot confidently predict at the moment.

The position of the British pound, not only as a reserve currency for the sterling bloc, but also as a future component of the continental financial structure is one of the main causes of European delay. Even West Germany is now reported to be reluctant to lead a parade for Britain's early entry, particularly in view of General de Gaulle's continuing opposition.

The best that can be said for the present situation is that the door has not been banged shut. It is still ajar, inviting further negotiations. The deepening of Britain's economic predicament spurs London's desire to join the Market, but it also cools Europe's desire to accept the new partner. That is a precarious balance, and at the moment it is not tipping in the direction of Britain's membership of the group. Mr. Wilson is in somewhat the position of a man who needs a suit to wear to the tailor's. His Party's recorded support is gratifying but not decisive.

Inner Turmoil

AN IDEA OF THE EXTENT TO which opposition to President Johnson's Vietnam policy has grown in his own Democratic Party can be gained from a defensive move now contemplated by the Democratic National Committee. A "loyalty oath" has been proposed which would have to be signed by all delegates to the party nominating convention in Chicago next August before they would be recognized and allowed to vote.

Such a move would be unprecedented in American political party history and could bar delegates from such key states as New York and California where "Dump Johnson" groups threaten to dominate the Democratic slates. It is a reflection, however, of the low standing of the President in the political popularity polls.

By no means all (or perhaps even most) of the opposition to the Johnson candidacy from the professional politicians is on high moral grounds. A number of the pros are simply worried that with the President's Vietnam policy under strong attack from all sides, his continued leadership of the party will almost guarantee a Republican majority in Congress even if Mr. Johnson can retain his position. The stronger-than-expected showing of Republicans in the off-year Congressional race last year, when the President's personal popularity was still high, has a lot of Democratic leaders worried.

Mr. Johnson's chief weapon against the dissidents is that he controls the party at the national level and with this goes control of the bulk of party funds. Given the heavy expense of winning a nomination and the even greater expense of campaigning, a threat from the national committee to withhold election funds is potent.

With almost a year to go before campaigning begins in earnest, a lot could happen to change the present American political picture. But if Mr. Johnson is unable to bring the Vietnam war to a satisfactory conclusion, or to win wider public support for his war policy, and if it is necessary to raise taxes and to cut even more deeply into federal welfare and other programs, the Democratic Party may be badly split by election time.

Mr. Thatcher Moves Ahead

RECOUNTS MAY SLIGHTLY alter the 11-seat margin of victory for Premier Ross Thatcher in Saskatchewan, but his Liberal government clearly has retained office with increased strength. Mr. Thatcher may take full satisfaction from that, although the percentage increase in the Liberals' popular vote was paralleled by the CCF, which is only one percentage point behind.

On the basis of the arithmetic of the polls, 46 per cent of the electors approved the administration's record and Mr. Thatcher's attack on the "stagnation of socialism," 45 per cent supported the CCF promise to include drugs under medicare and the attack on the Liberals as the friends of "big business."

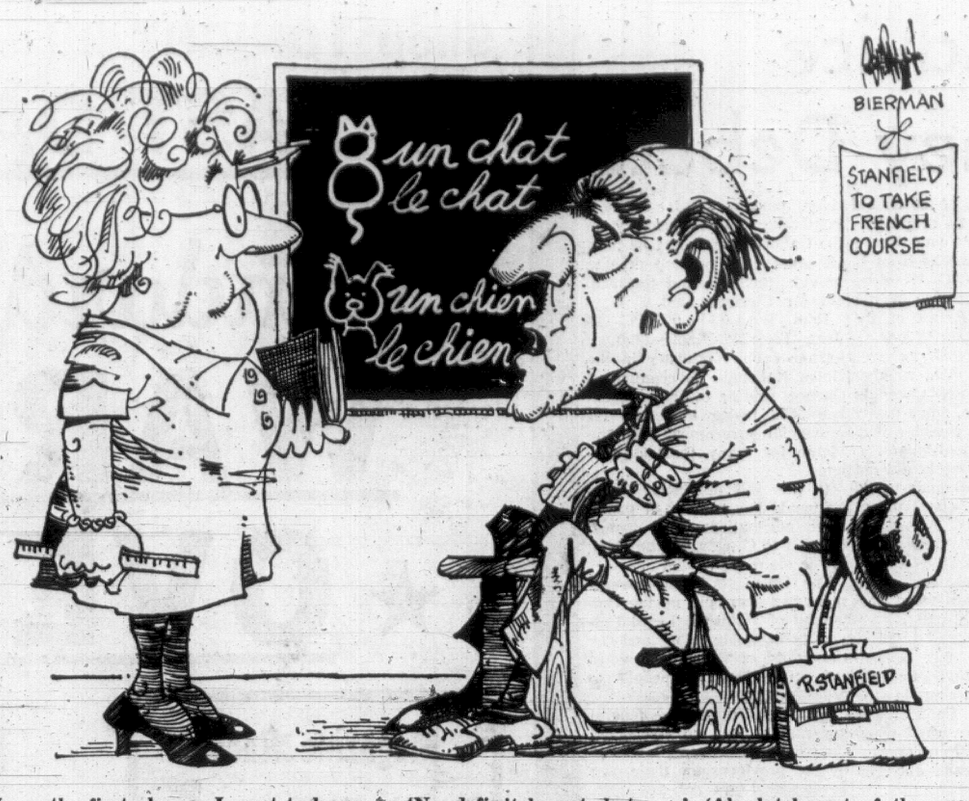
Social Credit candidates came nowhere and the Conservatives lost their lone member in a slide that cut their total vote to one-third of the figure in the 1964 provincial election.

The latter result is surprising in view of the Conservative sweep in the last federal election, when Saskatchewan sent a solid 17 Tory members to Ottawa. The separation of provincial and federal political loyalties, observable in most of the provinces, is particularly striking in this instance.

Mr. Thatcher's victory, therefore, can carry no implications for the federal scene. But it does indicate that the long popularity of socialism in Saskatchewan is definitely on the wane. The emergence there of a straight two-party political situation, however, might be the precursor of a trend in federal politics which was recently urged by Alberta's Premier Manning and approved—in principle—by many other politicians.

Question and Answer

THE VICTORIA YOUTH COUNcil requests that voters be asked at the next election if they favor placing two youth representatives on city council and five on the school board. That question requires no referendum. The answer to it should be clear: "Certainly, provided they meet the requirements of any candidate for those offices and are elected in accordance with the regulations laid down for anyone else."



"... the first phrases I want to learn are 'No, definitely not, but . . .', 'Absolutely out of the question, however . . .', 'Preposterous, although . . .', 'Never, but on the other hand . . .', 'Impossible, with reservations . . .' and so on . . ."

Realism In Quebec

Toronto Telegram

Editor Claude Ryan of Le Devoir (Montreal), pointing out the need for outside investment funds, comments, "These investments will . . . only come if we know how to attract them by a combination of conditions, among which economic competence of the Quebec government and political stability figure prominently, whether we like it or not."

Mr. Ryan goes on to warn that unless the provincial government clearly defines its economic and political goals, and accepts the fact that the two are indissolubly linked, the result will be stagnation or collapse.

The Levesques and Tremblays are becoming more and more isolated. But responsible Canadians everywhere must support the Johnsons and Kierans for this is a matter that cuts across party lines.

Mr. Johnson himself holds great hopes for Premier Robarts' Confederation for Tomorrow conference to be held next month in Toronto. He is also heartened by the increasing awareness in other provinces of French Canada's aspirations, as indicated by recent school legislation in Ontario and Manitoba.

Moderate Quebeckers will be heartened by the knowledge that the rest of Canada wants to keep Quebec in Confederation too.

Protection for Juvenile Delinquents—or Otherwise?

A DECISION of the Supreme Court of Canada has cleared the way for the government to proceed with revised legislation on the subject of juvenile delinquency. Mr. Pennell, the solicitor-general, intends to consult first with the provinces on the substance of the new proposals since the enforcement responsibility rests with them.

Western

The British Columbia case in question arose in 1964 when David Smith, a juvenile accused of driving beyond the speed limit, was tried in the ordinary courts and fined $400 by a Prince George magistrate. In proceeding in this fashion, the magistrate held that he was exercising a power under the Summary Convictions Act to deal with an offence against a provincial statute, the Motor Vehicle Act. He also took into consideration a record of prior convictions.

Smith appealed to the Supreme Court of British Columbia, seeking an order to quash the conviction on the ground that the magistrate had exceeded his jurisdiction by dealing with the case in this manner. He was successful. The Attorney-General then intervened but the Appeal Court upheld the order on a split decision.

Joint Attack

The case then went to the Supreme Court of Canada, with Quebec and Ontario joining British Columbia in the attack on the Juvenile Delinquents' Act and the federal government defending its validity.

While the case was, of course, decided on legal grounds, the controversy in British Columbia seems also to have involved a moral argument. The Federal act sets out an offence, namely juvenile delinquency, of an umbrella character. While it may involve some minor infraction, such as riding a bicycle on the sidewalk, it may equally apply to any punishable breach of the public law, whether defined by parliament or the legislatures.

Thus it is alleged to carry a stigma; perhaps conveying to outsiders a notion that the offender may have committed theft or rape when in fact he was disciplined for nothing more than an unimportant misdemeanor.

As applied to the actual case, the argument is a little curious since British Columbia was allegedly attempting to protect a youth who evidently wanted none of the protection. Eminent lawyers on both sides of politics also note that the argument is two-edged. Since the offence is not specified, the boy who falls into serious trouble is obviously far less handicapped in after life than he would otherwise be.

In any case the B.C. contention is considered to be greatly exaggerated. These matters are dealt with in comparative secrecy and the question which may afterwards arise is generally: have there been any convictions under the Criminal Code? — to which the answer in the case of a juvenile is no.

It is assumed in Ottawa that the true motivation of the three provinces is the usual sensitivity about jurisdiction, particularly where provincial statutes are involved. There is, however, sympathy with the view that the age limit for juveniles, which now varies across the country, ought to be made uniform by agreement among the governments concerned.

Validity Questioned

There were two questions before the Supreme Court. The first and basic one was whether the Juvenile Delinquents Act, originally passed in 1908, is valid legislation in relation to the criminal law . . . including the procedure in criminal matters (article 91, head 27 of the BNA Act). It was the provincial contention that it was instead legislation relating to the welfare of children, as clarified by the Adoption Act case of 1938 or, generally, an infringement of the right of the province to impose fines or penalties to enforce provincial laws. (Section 92, head 15).

Manifestly, if this argument had been upheld the Act would fall to the ground and there would be no special protection for juveniles anywhere in Canada until, presumably, remedial action had been taken by the various legislatures. Thus the whole business of revision by the federal authority was at a standstill until the B.C. case had been settled in one fashion or another.

There was a second line of attack. British Columbia maintained that the Act, even if valid, should not operate to prevent a juvenile from being prosecuted for an offence under the B.C. Motor Vehicles Act in accordance with provisions of the Summary Convictions Act.

The Supreme Court found unanimously that criminal law, as used in our Constitutional Act, means criminal law in its widest sense. The power assigned to parliament includes the power to make new crimes as well as power to enact legislation designed for the prevention of crimes. It is the function of parliament, not of the courts, to decide what legislation is necessary to the efficient exercise of this plenary jurisdiction.

Even if such legislation does indirectly affect provincial jurisdiction, the question is whether, in its true nature and character, it is legislation genuinely enacted in relation to criminal law and not legislation which used this guise to encroach on provincial fields.

Intent Sought

To ascertain the true intent of the act, the court looked at the preamble, the interpretation section and the operative provisions.

The preamble declares, in somewhat old-fashioned language: "Whereas it is inexpedient that youthful offenders should be classed or dealt with as ordinary criminals, the welfare of the community demanding that they should on the contrary be guarded against association with crime and criminals, and should be subjected to such wise care, treatment and control as will tend to check their evil tendencies and to strengthen their better instincts . . ."

The interpretation section states that care and discipline is to approximate as nearly as possible that which should be given by parents and that the juvenile should be treated not as criminal but as a misdirected and misguided child.

To this end various sections provide for complete separation from adults at any stage during the enforcement process, prohibit confinement at gaols in which adults may be imprisoned, require trials without publicity, in privacy and, if possible, in the judge's private office, and prohibit the publication of a report likely to disclose the identity of the juvenile.

Preventive

The court had no doubt that such provisions were essentially intended to prevent juveniles from becoming criminals and that the objectives fell clearly within the field of criminal law. It was for this reason that parliament had created the offence of delinquency. While the legislation, by granting a special sort of protection, should enhance welfare, the interest of the child was not the sole question since there was also involved the interest of the community in the administration of justices.

As to the fall-back position of the provincial lawyers, it was based on an argument of grammatical construction which the judges threw out because it would have defeated the whole purpose of the Juvenile Delinquents Act.

The decision, by no means unexpected in Ottawa, is welcomed here because the general effect is to strengthen the federal jurisdiction in matters pertaining to criminal law and procedure.

Manpower Costs Change Hanoi War Plans

UNLESS the most expert analysts are sadly mistaken, the end of the present phase of the Vietnamese war is announced, and the opening of a quite different phase is described, in a leviathan article by Gen. Vo Nguyen Giap, the North Vietnamese commander - in-chief and a leading politburo member.

Alsop

Correctly interpreted — and careful interpretation is needed, as usual — the Giap article means that the Hanoi leaders have been forced to abandon the immensely costly effort to sustain the kind of big unit war that has gone on in South Vietnam ever since the major U.S. intervention in July, 1965.

Seen against the background of the Giap article, the siege of Con Thien was the coda, as it were, of this long and bloody phase of the fighting. Thus this phase actually ended when the siege was broken off under the heavy pressure applied by Gen. William C. Westmoreland to relieve the Con Thien garrison.

In the new phase that the Giap article blueprints, there will still be some enemy big units. But they will be both fewer and smaller — battalions at most, probably, instead of regiments and divisions. For "quality" is now the watchword rather than "quantity." Giap stresses this point strongly.

The blueprint calls, in other words, for a halfway or even three-quarters of the way retreat into Phase II of the Chinese and North Vietnamese rulebooks. But complete retreat into classical, small unit guerrilla war in early Phase II style is not called for, almost certainly because the Viet Cong military and political infrastructure could not withstand the shock of total deprivation of support from the "big brothers," as the enemy's big units are sometimes called in the captured documents.

Nonetheless, the change in the war's pattern should be very great indeed. And the failure that the Giap article admits by implication, is again very great indeed.

Hysterical Exaggeration

Failure, it must be stressed, is admitted by implication only. For thousands upon thousands of words, with almost hysterical exaggeration, the Giap article claims all sorts of "surging successes" but no general whose every move has been "a surging success" radically changes the orders to the troops. And that is what Gen. Giap has basically done.

This change is indicated by a revision in the old formula for the big unit war. This formula was "preparing for protracted war while seeking victory in the shortest possible time." 'Victory in the shortest possible time" was defined as a Dienbienphu-like success, resulting from the "annihilation of an entire American brigade or even an American battalion."

As can be seen, military common sense has long called for a change in this over-ambitious troop structure which North Vietnam could no longer support. The troop structure was put in place to "seek victory in the shortest possible time." But that phrase, so endlessly repeated in the past, is conspicuously absent from the Giap articles. Instead, the article, while claiming all sorts of victories except the one kind of victory the old formla demanded, speaks only and often of "protracted war" lasting "up to 20 years." A virtue is made of this grim necessity, as follows:

"The longer the fight, the more mature our forces."

The key role of the manpower difficulty is indicated again and again by the repeated remark that "our country is small and not very populous." The theme is stressed again and again that "to defeat the enemy, the armed forces must have a certain number of troops and at the same time be of high quality. (But) of these two aspects, special emphasis must be laid upon quality."

Significant

Other solid points of great significance can be extracted from the vast morass of verbiage in the Giap article. For example, besides laying far more emphasis than the earlier documents on classical guerrilla fighting and the "political struggle," the article places very special emphasis on the kind of operations conducted by the small but troublesome enemy sapper units. This means, in effect, much more strenuous efforts to put rockets and mortars on Danang and other vulnerable points.

But the essence of the article, nonetheless, is the message that the big unit war can no longer be continued on the former scale. There is speculation that Gen. Giap began to take this view rather early, but was only able to carry the day in the central committee when the terrible increase in the manpower bill converged with the death of the chief proponent of the big war, the former North Vietnamese commander in the South, Gen. Nguyen Chi Thanh.

As Gen. Westmoreland's strategy has always been aimed at the enemy's big units, he must now be credited with a major, perhaps decisive success. But the question remains: What will be the effect of the war's new pause?

VICTORIA, B.C., FRIDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1967—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Among my friends, I number a super-salesman who, although he is and always has been a legitimate operator, would not thank me to air his name here. He works from the background, and his stock in trade is not goods but ideas.

I'll call him Ed Keith, which is reasonably close to his real name. He is large in every dimension — tall, broad and thick through the middle — and among his assets is an actor's ability to shift convincingly from one role to another as the occasion demands.

But whether playing the sorrowful-and-wounded bit, or turning on a fine dramatic rage, he is unchangeably the same behind his mask of the moment. Very kind, that is, and gifted with a wry, shrewd humor.

In those years, he sold door-to-door in a satellite suburb of Washington, D.C. While he applied his eloquence to potato-peelers, spices, encyclopedias and all the rest, he was mentally filing and noting the manifold quirks of human nature.

★

When I met him, he had graduated by way of the car lots and dealers' showrooms to selling of a highly specialized sort.

His stock, or rather the stock he undertook to find buyers for, consisted of items that the public emphatically did not want. These waifs, strays and castaways of trade, he dealt with in boxcar lots.

One day he turned up at our place with bulging pockets, from which he produced a fistful of cough candy packages.

"Try a few," he urged us.

The candies reeked of eucalyptus in which fish-oil had apparently been blended. Ed, grinning, observed our reaction.

"Pretty horrible, eh?" he said. My client is stuck with a load of them."

Ed moved them. It took him about a month to accomplish this impossible-seeming feat; but in the end, he persuaded a manufacturer that the cough candies would help sell his packaged household product if enclosed as premiums.

Ed moved this, he moved that. He moved popcorn into Ontario's rural theatres, along with dispensing machines and blowers to waft the hot-buttered fragrance out of the foyers and into the streets.

★

The closest this paragon of the pen and the dotted line ever came to disaster was when he undertook to find a market for several thousand cuckoo clocks.

A Toronto importer had ordered a few hundred of these gabled, carved and bird-haunted items from a German supplier for a Christmas gimmick. He advertised them as 'Made by Elves in the Black Forest,' and unloaded them at a speed that encouraged him to place a repeat order for several thousand.

But the season had passed . . . and so, it appeared, had the market. Panic-stricken, he called in Ed the trouble-shooter.

Ed installed one of the clocks in his office. While the yellow bird popped out to salute him on the hour, he toiled to evolve a strategy. Finally, when he had all but abandoned hope, inspiration struck.

"Farmers use alarm clocks to get them up with the cows." he explained to his client, "and they never throw anything away. That means a lot of busted alarm clocks in a lot of barns. So we advertise a cuckoo for the farm kitchen at a reduced price to anyone who sends in an alarm clock with his order."

Ed, these last few years, has spent his days at the black art of teaching salesmen how to sell. But he still remembers what happened when the cuckoo call went out.

"We moved the whole shipment in two months," he says, "and took in enough alarm clocks to fill a dozen trucks. And you know, only one of the lot had a tick left in it!"

By NORMAN CRIBBENS

The Deputy Vice-President of the Republic of China, Hon. Huang Shao-Ku, said today he is proud of Victoria's Chinese Community.

"When I return to Formosa, I shall tell our president (Chiang Kai-shek) of the high esteem in which the Chinese people are held in this great city."

Mr. Huang was speaking at a reception in the City Hall council chamber at which he met more than 50 representatives of Victoria's 4,000-member Chinese community.

In an address of welcome to Mr. Huang, Mayor Hugh Stephen spoke in glowing terms of that community.

"It is with pride and thankfulness that we testify to the record of our Chinese citizens. They have always been in the forefront of all efforts to make this a better place to live.

"Their example of good citizenship, honesty, industry, respect for the law, love of family and compassion towards the needy and less fortunate have set for all of us a bright standard of honor.

Mayor Stephen referred to the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association, as "a magnificent example of self-help based on the Chinese philosophy of demeanor, prudence and humility."

Mr. Huang bowed to Mayor Stephen and presented him with an illustrated book on Chinese art. In return, the mayor gave him a replica of Victoria's civic crest and a book of photographs of Vancouver Island.

"Our city is only 105 years old," the mayor replied, "and that is but a fleeting minute in the ancient history of China."

VISITS CENTRE

The mayor then conducted Mr. Huang across rainswept Centennial Square for a visit to Victoria Silver Threads Centre.

Mrs. Catherine Horne, executive director, conducted him through the centre's various handicraft classes, including basketweaving, painting and woodwork, and he stopped to admire the work.

"This is a very good way to keep active," he smiled. "We have something like it in Formosa."

Earlier, Mr. Huang and his party were received in Premier Bennett's office at the Legislative Buildings, where they chatted for five or six minutes.

"Our people are well aware of the struggle your people have made in the fight for freedom," the premier said. "China has such a wonderful history we hope peace will come again soon."

When signing the visitors' book, Mr. Huang asked if he could sit in the premier's chair.

"I should be honored," the premier replied.

At noon the Chinese party were entertained at a B.C. government luncheon at Oak Bay Marina. In his address, the premier said:

"The Chinese people of British Columbia are among our finest citizens, and we are pleased that during your brief visit you will be able to spend some time among them."

After a scenic tour of Victoria, the visitors were received by the Chinese Consolidated Benevolent Association at 636 Fisgard Street.

They were greeted by Jack Mee, president, and a guard of honor was formed by Victoria Chinatown Lions Club Drum and Bell Corps, Baton Corps and Chinese public school children.

At 6 p.m. they were to attend a dinner at the Chinese Village Restaurant, 755 Finlayson.

TOURING Victoria Silver Threads Centre at 4 Centennial Square, the Chinese Vice-President stopped to admire the work of Mrs. Grace Goddard in the basket-weaving class, watched by instructors Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Burrows. Mr. Hoang visited several other handicraft classes, escorted by Mrs. Catherine Horne, supervisor, and met Mrs. James Logie, general supervisor.

SEAMAN FINED FOR HIT-RUN

A Danish seaman from the freighter Marie Skou, in Victoria for repairs, was fined $150 and had his driver's licence suspended for two months in central court today.

He was convicted of failing to remain at the scene of an accident.

Moogens K. Sorensen said, through an interpreter, he was advised by bystanders he could leave the scene of an accident on Douglas Street because there was little damage and no one was hurt.

Sorensen ran the car into the rear of a bus.

'IT'S A PROMISE'

Bennett Refuses Medicare Delay

Premier Bennett Thursday said B.C. will apply for federal government subsidies to cover half the cost of the B.C. Medical Plan beginning next July.

He indicated that he won't take federal Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp's broad hint that provinces could help fight inflation by acting slowly in taking advantage of the new national health plan.

His announcement means that B.C. likely would send a bill of about $7.5 million to Ottawa for its first subsidy on a nine-month basis. The national plan begins July 1, three months after the start of the BCMP fiscal year.

Current budget for the B.C. government's co-insurance and stabilization grants to the B.C. Medical Plan is $16 million but projections point to a $20 million estimate in Mr. Bennett's next budget.

350,000 COVERED

The plan now covers about 350,000 persons and Mr. Bennett said no increases in the present rates would be made despite boosts in other medical plans recently to cover higher doctor fees and other costs.

Mr. Bennett made the statement to reporters at Patricia Bay airport on his return from a three-week European trip.

He was commenting on Mr. Sharp's recent speech that Ottawa is slashing back expenditures to fight inflation and would not be unhappy if provincial governments were slow in taking advantage of the national health scheme which comes into effect July 1.

"And we certainly will ask Ottawa to share in the cost of the B.C. Medical Plan starting in July next year."

While changing planes in Vancouver, Mr. Bennett told reporters there that his next budget will include "millions more" for municipalities through extra funds for "parks, pollution and police services."

But he said he could not elaborate further on "the three Ps" because it would break budget secrecy.

Two Foiled In Bogus Bill Pass Attempt

An attempt to pass a phoney $10 bill in the Colwood area failed Thursday when an alert gas station attendant recognized the money as counterfeit.

Two men in a car gave the bill to Savage, 2736 Spencer, while he was on duty at Goldstream Shell station on the Island Highway about 8:30 p.m.

"It didn't feel right," he told the Times, "so I checked for the plate number and there wasn't one.

"I told the men I thought it was a phoney and they grabbed the bill and left. They were heading up-Island when I last saw them."

Mr. Savage said that the bill felt "too thin" as if the bill had been split.

City police have received a number of bills passed at city stores. So far 10 have been sent to Ottawa and reports of more counterfeit bills, usually from banks, are coming in.

Five bills have been passed in Saanich and turned over to police.

Outlook Poor In Ferry Hassle

Union Pessimistic After Conference

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

The dispute on British Columbia ferries took a new and deeper turn today.

An official statement on behalf of more than 700 deck, catering and shore workers said the union committee "cannot see any chance of agreement" on proposals by the ferry authority on 1968 work schedules.

Both sides met Thursday and today's union statement said there is "no change" in the situation.

Certain proposals were made by the authority and they will be discussed at union meetings early next week. No details were given.

On the dues checkoff issue, which led ferry employees to plan a Thanksgiving Day weekend strike before a cabinet committee agreed to talks, the union expressed the hope that the government "will give favorable consideration to the dues checkoff question and thus avoid unnecessary problems."

'INCOMPLETE'

Thursday, Attorney-General Robert Bonner said there was "incomplete discussion" at a cabinet meeting.

He refused to elaborate and would not indicate whether any recommendations were laid before the cabinet, whether it decided on any partial action or even whether it would discuss the matter at the next meeting.

"We do not really know what his meaning is but assume that further cabinet talks will be held early next week and perhaps the union will then hear some concrete answer from the government," said Tom Gooderham of the Canadian Labour Congress, and spokesman for the ferry employees.

"Until then, the union will use utmost restraint and refrain from direct action which would shut down the ferry service."

The union wants dues checkoff of up to $4 a month instead of the $2 a month ceiling set recently by the government for civil servants.

Telephone Numbers To Change

Half of Oak Bay and a small portion of Victoria will have a new telephone number prefix next year as the result of a $1,700,000 project by B.C. Tel.

Dec. 1, 1968, when the new office on Foul Bay Road goes into operation, about 6,000 subscribers will use the prefix 592 instead of the 38-numbers now used.

The area for the 592 exchange is bounded by Cedar Hill Cross Road in the north; the coastline to the east; along a line between Oak Bay Avenue and Cranmore Avenue in the south, and a line from Bay and Shelbourne to Pear Street and Cedar Hill Road in the west.

SAVE MORE

E. L. Mallett, district manager for B.C. Tel. in Victoria, said it is more economical to establish a new office in the Oak Bay area than to continue running cables from downtown.

The move will free sufficient space in the Victoria office to take care of growth for the next 10 years, Mr. Mallett said.

The new building will be completed in February next year. Cost of two-storey concrete structure, is $250,000. Automatic switching equipment will cost $1,200,000.

The cables now running from Victoria to the Oak Bay area will be used to carry calls to and from the Victoria and Oak Bay offices.

FIRE COSTS A RECORD; SEASON ENDS TONIGHT

The 1967 forest fire season formally ends at 12 tonight under a B.C. cabinet order issued today.

The prolonged summer drought forced the government to spend a record $6,775,000 in fighting some 3,200 fires since May.

Last year, one of the best in the books, it only had to spend $672,800 on a total of 1,936 blazes.

Massive use of aircraft this summer sent up costs but was credited with preventing many fires from spreading to catastrophic proportions.

MEDICS SPLIT ON DANGERS . . . . . TWO AMENDMENTS MADE

Doctors' Marijuana Report Squeezes Through

By DON VIPOND

About 150 physicians approved a controversial report prepared by seven of their number Thursday which said marijuana is probably no more harmful than liquor.

But not before approving two amendments and then only by a margin of about three to two.

The report of the drug habituation committee, presented at the annual meeting of the B.C. Medical Association at the Empress Hotel, came within a whisker of being shelved.

38-35 VOTE

By a margin of 38 to 35, doctors rejected a move to have the report received for information only and the study continued with possibly a larger committee.

The committee was headed by Vancouver Dr. J. J. Lederman who is also a lawyer.

After a year of study, which included interviews with druggists, psychiatrists, social workers, police and hippies, the committee concluded marijuana ranked as a hazard alongside liquor and distribution might be handled by a government agency such as a Marijuana Control Board.

Doctors Thursday voted to chop such a reference and amended the report to read that a more appropriate legal control than the one presently in force should be sought.

NEW CLASS

The committee has said that ranking marijuana with addictive drugs like heroin was creating a new class of criminal among otherwise law-abiding citizens.

There was general agreement with the report which said LSD is a basically dangerous drug of unpredictable effect.

But here again doctors voted to erase one of the committee's recommendations — that present federal legislation which bans LSD distribution except for research is adequate control.

'POOR REPORT'

Most vocal of the committee's opponents was Dr. Robin Bell-Irving, a Vancouver internist, who said he thought it "an extremely poor report," and "just not related to reality."

The committee was too much concerned with legal aspects instead of "the health of our people."

His patients affected by drugs begin at 14, he said, and their path is from experimentation with marijuana to trying LSD.

He told of one patient, a 22-year-old girl, who shifted from marijuana "and whose brains are now addled by LSD."

Applause greeted his motion that the report be sent back to committee.

Laws affect health, retorted Dr. Lederman, and the two are not so easily separated. The committee's report was not a collection of new ideas but sprang from a research of opinion the world over.

"The social and legal relationship are an integral part of our treatment."

A Vancouver doctor who treats jail patients said he supported and admired the report.

It must hurt doctors studying the problem to see what penalties are being handed down to first offenders, he said.

'COURAGEOUS'

Dr. Murray Cathcart termed the report "courageous" and said it was the type the public had a right to expect.

The association was not ready to make a major statement of informed opinion, said Dr. George Gibson of Chilliwack. He lost by a narrow margin a move to have the report filed for information and the committee encouraged to continue its work.

"The proof of the pudding is in the eating," said one doctor, asking if any members of the committee had ever tried marijuana or LSD.

He said he could only speak for himself "but I've never tried the stuff and never intend to."

Throughout its report the committee stressed that the laws relating to the two drugs must be obeyed "to the letter."

CELEBRATING her 100th birthday today Sister Mary Geraldine received a Centennial plaque from David Groos, federal MP for Victoria. Now a patient at Mount St. Mary's Hospital, Sister Mary was born at Oswego, N.Y., in 1867. She came to Canada in 1886 and has lived in British Columbia since then. Before taking holy orders, she was Nellie Langevin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Langevin, of Kingston, Ont. (Times photo by Bill Halkett.)

We'll Attend Both Parleys, Says Bennett

Premier Bennett today said the B.C. government will send a representative to both Ontario's and the federal government's proposed conferences on the constitution and he hopes it will be him.

He told a press conference that his government definitely will participate in Ontario Premier Robart's "confederation for tomorrow" meeting next month and Prime Minister Pearson's proposed meeting to discuss the current situation early next year.

"I will try to attend both but I may not be able to," he said. "I would like to.

"But we will be represented—our government will—even if I may not be there."

Mr. Bennett would not say what might prevent his personal

Analyst's Comments — Saturday Entries

By HAL MALONE

FIRST RACE—Davianna does a lot of running on heart; she has a big one and if Frazier can get her clear this could be the day. Mercilynn has fair early speed but from the outside they can get shuffled out of it at the first turn. Seven L is the main danger from behind. Sam should save ground early; he finishes well. Bally Bounce was in a little trouble Wednesday and seems to be improving. Rondocal is better than shown. Sentimentally Sir Lea would be a popular choice; it's his last race and he might lower the boom with that late, late charge. Souzem and Malheur Kitten would be ineligible if they won Friday; either has a shot here . . . DAVIANNA, Seven L, Sir Lea.

SECOND RACE — Can Hola Fire make it five in a row at Sandown? If so he will be the second horse to do it (Hrynfaxe was the first). He has speed inside and outside in Spree's Fancy and Who's Haydn. The way Hola Fire is going their roles might be reduced to "spoilers." If a speed duel materializes Pidge's Pride and Hasty Hug will benefit. Both come on well; the former drops two pounds and gets Frazier. The latter hits hard and goes well for the boy. In a race where ground saved might make the marginal difference . . . PIDGE'S PRIDE, Hola Fire, Hasty Hug.

THIRD RACE—This one will make the handicappers lose a few tufts of haid. Most of these like to "gung-ho." Whiskers can fly and drops two pounds; Star Pal can hum and sheds seven; Murrayville likes the front end and drops 10. Basket Carrier can also hum but seems a shade below her best. Keno Kid ran Friday (as did Murrayville) but he relishes mud (as do most of these in varying degrees). If they take Wild Bruce just off the pace as they did Sept. 29 he could have a royal chance. Punters Joy didn't take to the route; with her style she's a danger too. In a sizzler . . . WILD BRUCE, Whiskers, Keno Kid.

FOURTH RACE—Frazier goes back to Heather W; they formed a winning combination coming off the lead and could be the pair to beat. Jayie has shown she can stay close and come on; she goes to the outside here and will need Arnold's most skillful navigating. Ready Freddy has considerable speed; if he isn't pushed early they could have trouble collaring him. Fleet Brother switches to Andrews and has been all around the money. Bo Jester and Chase are late possibilities . . . HEATHER W., Jayie, Fleet Brother.

FIFTH RACE — We look for Easy Joe to lead them away. He's looked sharp in sprints; whether he can handle the trip depends on his chance to get a breather along the way. Pils Friday likes to ramble early and Hi-Ma-Dan is never far away from the first flight although he didn't have much pace with him in his last. Shadows Sake, Jayleen (who drops six and is obviously a superior mudder) and Easy Duchess all move resolutely and certainly would be no surprise. Bucs Brother hits hard but these may be a little rough for him. We've always thought of Arigato as being primarily a sprinter but he's at his peak and his style suggests he might be running when a lot of others aren't. In a cluster . . . ARIGATO, Jayleen, Dainty Duchess.

SIXTH RACE — This is the day Seemingly may show how seemingly good he appeared to be. Never Charge will ask the question early; if the former can go head-and-head with the latter and then draw clear the rest could be in for a battle. Bouncy Belle is no slouch but in an early dogfight she may have to use up a lot of petrol. Uncle Roddy gets Frazier and was running hard in the stretch. He tends to give the rider trouble and would need clear sailing. In Solid is a tough tiger; he doesn't believe horses can whip him and he could be right. Woody Nite hasn't beaten this kind and loses Phillips but it's hard to rap her record. Short Circuit is better than shown and with a pull in weights is an interesting possibility at a price. Speed Command picks up five pounds off his brilliant win, is in good hands and should benefit from a pace duel. . . SEEMINGLY, Speed Command, Uncle Roddy.

SEVENTH RACE — Without the likes of This Is True and Princess Vega to contend with Big Cheese might roll out from the pole and dare the others to catch him. He can come off the lead too. He may not be overwhelmingly in favor of a holding track but he's a powerful runner. War Top is a tough horse who runs on anything and well. Sefton Park can stay close to the pace and under a well-timed move looms as one to fear. Gladys Ann is perhaps the key. She will be much tighter today and the youngster hustles hard. Kenos Boy is hard to figure; his style suggests he should appreciate the route but these don't give up easily. Handsome Chief could knock them for a loop. His mud credentials are impressive and he looked like he had something left in both recent victories. . . . BIG CHEESE, Handsome Chief, Gladys Ann.

EIGHTH RACE — Picalad could lead these home. He came to life under the rider and was narrowly whipped on the money. My Imagination is about ready to put up an argument. At the weights Miss Electric might barrel out but she hasn't been sticking. If Famous Bayboy gets rolling in time he's a danger. . . . PICALAD, My Imagination, Famous Bayboy.

Police Hold Suspect In City Bank Holdup

REFUGE of bank robbery suspect for possibly three hours was this old apartment house at 2211 Ida. It was in a crawl space under the house, a former home for wayward girls, that police located the suspect, a sawed-off shotgun and $2,655 in cash, in a paper shopping bag.

$2,655 Taken In Robbery

By PETE LOUDON and DESMOND BILL

An Ontario man will be charged Saturday with armed robbery of a bank at Richmond and Fort.

He was arrested by city police about three hours after the holdup of the Bank of Montreal branch this morning.

Det.-Insp. Bill Andrews said the suspect was found hiding in a crawl space at 2211 Ida.

A shopping bag containing $2,655 and a sawed-off single-barrelled shotgun also were seized. No shells were found.

Police said the suspect is 22 years old, married and had come here two months ago with his wife from Ontario. They have no children. He is a painter and decorator, at present unemployed.

The speedy arrest culminated a dramatic series of evenis which began at about 10:13 a.m. when a masked bandit entered the bank, demanded a bag be filled with bills and ran out pursued by the manager, a teller and a customer.

They said the man was about 20 to 25 years old, wearing a fawn-colored belted raincoat and brown oxfords.

WORE TOQUE

He was also wearing a ski toque, pulled down over his face, with eyeholes, when he entered the Bank of Montreal branch at about 10:13 or 10:15 a.m.

He handed a bag to teller Don Renfrew, 19, and said, "Fill it."

The teller put the money in the bag and handed it to him.

He said a gun barrel was protruding about six inches through the robber's coat.

Then the robber ran out followed closely by manager Dunfield, a customer, Ken Morrison, 23, of the Coast Guard ship Estevan and teller Renfrew.

The four, with the robber leading by 100 yards, went across Fort and north on Ashgrove, across Begbie, on Pembroke and on to Ida.

REFUGE IN HOUSE

At that point, due to his extended lead the bandit was lost to the view of his pursuers. They believe he may have taken refuge in a house in that neighborhood.

It was the second robbery of the bank branch in a year and a half. Three masked men made off with $18,157 Feb. 18, 1966.

Here is how eye-witnesses reconstruct today's robbery.

Teller Renfrew (who started at the bank in July) said he couldn't believe his eyes when the bandit appeared.

Then the teller saw the gun barrel.

"I was sure it was a gun. I could see what looked like the front sight."

SHOPPING BAG

He filled the bag—later described as a small paper shopping bag similar to those used for potatoes. He put in small bills. Then the man fled.

'He didn't say anything about staying where we were standing, or standing still, so when he took off, I gave chase."

Manager Dunfield, who was also manager at the time of the . . . second holdup

BUT HE GOT MUCH MORE THAN $13

At 10:13 this morning, Friday the 13th there were 13 people serving customers in the Bank of Montreal at Fort and Richmond.

And that, according to manager T. B. Dunfield, is when the bank robber appeared and made off with an estimated $2,000.

After the fruitless chase of the robber, Mr. Dunfield returned to the bank and locked the door until everything was sorted out.

After an interval — it may have been 13 minutes — the manager decided to re-open. But the door lock was stuck. On top of everything else he had to call for a locksmith.

Hong Kong Violence Flares Up

HONG KONG (CP) — Terrorist bombers killed a policeman, wounded five police and at least seven civilians and planted or hurled bombs throughout Hong Kong today as a new wave of Communist violence ripped through this British colony.

The terrorist attacks followed Hong Kong Communist newspaper calls for increased violence against the colony's "British Fascist authorities."

Operating mainly from rooftops, terrorists threw bombs at police and military squad cars, streetcars, and police and army demolition teams baited into position by false bombs planted on street curbs and pedestrian crossings.

At one bomb trap, Communist agitators gathered a crowd of more than 100 Chinese by passing out anti-British leaflets and then, when police arrived, hurled two bombs into the middle of the crowd. One police inspector and six civilians were wounded.

A suspected terrorist, captured in a running fight after the crowd bombing incident, was arrested and charged with attempted murder. He threw a third bomb at pursuing police but it failed to explode.

Card Chief Honored

NEW YORK (AP) — Red Schoendienst, the quiet leader who lifted the St. Louis Cardinals from a sixth-place finish in 1966 to an explosive, runaway victory in the National League pennant race this year, was named the circuit's manager-of-the-year today.

Probe Asked

OTTAWA (CP)—A royal commission would not be the best means of studying organized crime in Canada, Prime Minister Pearson told the Commons today.

Eldon Woolliams (PC — Bow River) called for such an inquiry after quoting former RCMP commissioner C. W. Harvison as saying that organized crime in the United States is taking over organized crime in Canada.

LAST BID SATURDAY

Bus Snarl Forces Special Session

MONTREAL (CP) — The Quebec government announced today it plans to call a special session of the legislature to deal with the strike of 6,000 Montreal bus and subway workers, now in its 23rd day.

The action was announced in Quebec City following a cabinet meeting.

The cabinet scheduled another session Saturday and if strikers had not returned to work by then arrangements would be made to convene the legislature.

Court injunctions ordering the men back to work for at least 80 days have been rejected by the unions involved.

The Montreal Transportation Commission had expected to have the city's buses and subways operating on a full schedule by early Saturday if the workers had obeyed the court injunction.

However, only about 350 maintenance employees and mechanics reported for work today. No drivers showed up.

Now there is a threat that Expo Express, the free surface train linking Expo's islands, may be shut down by Saturday. Expo management met Thursday night, but no statement was issued.

The government's back-to-work ultimatum was issued by Acting Premier Paul Dozois, but it was solidly turned down by the strikers at a mass meeting Thursday night.

Ellabhai Wins Sandown Opener

And close behind were Rosalito and Centennial Su.

The winner paid $6.10, $2.90 and $2.60; Rosalito paid $3.90 and $2.80; and Centennial Su $3.30.

DON'T BE A TRISKAIDEKAPHOBE

If You Can't Avoid It, Wear Low-Heeled Shoes

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"Avoid walking under cats" is the tongue-in-cheek advice of one man but triskaidekaphobes are sometimes reduced to shy stay-at-homes on Friday the 13th.

Today is the 13th and triskaidekaphobia—fear of the number 13—combines with other traditional bad luck signs to make life truly miserable for the superstitious.

"I always stay home," says Phil Edwards, a reporter for radio station KTYM in Inglewood, Calif. "I'd stay in bed but there's always the chance that I'll fall out so I usually go to sleep on the floor."

Helen Matusiak, a Chicago cleaning woman, says she was once told that if the first person you see on opening your window drapes in the morning on the 13th is a woman you'll have bad luck all day.

It happened to her once and she went to the store and lost $10, she said. Today, "I'm not going to open the curtains all day."

Marcia Ashley, 23, a high school teacher from Lynnfield, Mass., takes every precaution to avoid black cats. And with some reason.

"One night I was driving home when I saw a black cat walking across the road. Thinking quickly I pulled into a driveway to avoid it. I did —but I also hit the car that was parked there."

"I have no superstitions and take no precautions because I always know exactly what I'm doing,' said Dr. Jack Harper, a Helena, Mont., surgeon.

Donald R. Dehon, researcher for a Boulder, Colo., engineering firm, said a company engineer once gave him the terse advice: "Avoid walking under cats."

Allen (Black Cat) LaJombe, self-styled "unluckiest man in New Orleans," holds the grand opening of a new bar today on the theory tha "maybe Friday the 13th will give me luck for a change."

In New York City a group calling itself "The 13 Against Triskaidekaphobia" holds forth at the 13th minute of the 13th hour—1:13 p.m.—outside a Manhattan restaurant.

Any passerby brave enough to break a mirror, pass under a ladder or pitch his good luck charm into a trash can gets a free movie pass, the group said.

Accord Hopes Dim

BONN (Reuters) — West German Foreign Minister Willy Brandt today put a damper on hopes that an improvement in relations between Bonn and Moscow is at last under way.

He told the Bundestag (parliament) during a foreign policy debate that a dialogue with Russia has started on certain topics.

But he added, "unfortunately there are no indications yet that we are approaching basic improvement in relations."

Brandt had an hours-long talk Thursday with Russian Ambassador Semyon Tsarapkin.

'Dump Levesque' Move Among Quebec Grits

By DAVE BAZAY

QUEBEC (CP)— Quebec's opposition Liberal party may be asked this weekend to reject former welfare minister Rene Levesque along with his personal brand of separatism.

Several leading Liberals say privately that anti-Levesque forces want the party to dump their outspoken member at the annual meeting of the Quebec Liberal Federation.

In Montreal Thursday night, Liberal Leader Jean Lesage gave force to their contention by saying publicly that the prospect of losing Mr. Levesque threatens a loss "which is gradually becoming less and less significant."

About 2,000 delegates are expected at the federation's meeting, which is expected to endorse Saturday a resolution rejecting "separatism in all its forms."

Mr. Levesque is backing an opposing resolution calling on the Liberals to endorse as party policy a sovereign, independent Quebec state within an economic association.

Thursday, Mr. Lesage said in a television interview that if the convertion votes against Mr. Levesque's resolution the former minister will "have to commit or dismiss himself" from the party.

"His conscience will dictate to him what course he must follow."

Mr. Lesage added that Mr. Levesque's departure would not hurt the party.

The resolution the Liberal leader expects his party to endorse originated in the Liberals' 100-man constitutional committee and urges a new federal constitution with greatly increased powers for Quebec.

With the conference opening tonight, talk in Liberal circles centres on the political future of Mr. Levesque, with defeat of his resolution as worded taken for granted.

Mr. Levesque, 45-year-old former minister of natural resources and welfare, has indicated he will remain in the party to fight for his ideas even if the resolution is defeated.

But several Liberals, including some former cabinet colleagues from the 1960-66 Liberal government, have apparently decided that Mr. Levesque must go.

Some Liberals are said to be considering introduction of a resolution demanding resignation of Mr. Levesque and others in the party who advocate separatism

Among those who want Mr. Levesque to leave is Eric Kierans, president of the federation, who said in an interview the Liberals will become "clear-cut anti-separatists."

Mr. Kierans said he cannot see how the party can keep Mr. Levesque if it adopts a strong anti-separatist stand.

SOME DISAGREE

But others within the party disagree. Among those who think Mr. Levesque can stay is former education minister Paul Gerin-Lajoie, who says wide differences of opinion are commonplace in politics.

Mr. Gerin-Lajoie said he would not like to see a resolution asking Mr. Levesque to leave the party, if in fact Mr. Levesque chooses to stay on.

He said such a resolution would amount to a personal attack, but some sources say this is exactly what some Liberals want.

Blast Destroys Terminal As Voting Held on Pact

PITTSBURGH (AP)—An explosion and fire destroyed a terminal owned by the head of the National Steel Carriers Association today, and rocks, bullets and firebombs showered trucks in three states.

The renewed violence reinforced a view that hopes for a quick settlement of the two-month-old strike by thousands of steel haulers were sputtering out.

The trucking company executives have split into two groups. A spokesman for one said it was opposed to a peace plan drawn in Pittsburgh. The strikers are voting on it anyway.

Spokesmen for the second group said they also are opposed to the original recommendations and have offered a compromise. The strikers said they will not vote on the substitute.

The explosion rocked a small terminal of B and P Motor Express Inc. at Fallston north of Pittsburgh just before dawn. Firemen said the building was a total loss. B and P is headed by Howard Miller, president of the National Steel Carriers Association.

At Greensburg, east of Pittsburgh, state police reported that windshields on 10 trucks were smashed by rocks. No one was hurt. A bullet ripped open a tire on a truck near Gibsonia on the Pennsylvania Turnpike. Snipers fired on two strike-breaking trucks and a car near Middletown, Ohio. Three firebombs were thrown at a parked truck near Youngstown. Two of the bombs did not explode. No one was hurt.

LET HANOI GIVE PROOF OF PEACE AIMS—AUSSIE

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—Australia said today that United States bombing of North Vietnam should be stopped only when Hanoi gives "convincing proof" that such a step would lead toward a peaceful settlement of the war.

"The one authority that can say with certainty what would happen when bombing stopped is the government of North Vietnam," Australia's External Affairs Minister Paul M. C. Hasluck told the 122-nation UN General Assembly.

Hasluck noted that the United States has already offered to halt the bombing as a first step toward negotiations.

"The regrettable fact is that every effort to start negotiations has been rejected with scorn by Hanoi."

Doubts Growing Che Dead As Body Quickly Cremated

LA PAZ, Bolivia (AP)—Conflicting reports, rumor and the skepticism of Ernesto (Che) Guevara's family cast doubt today on the Bolivian army's claim that it had killed the Latin American revolutionary.

Government and army accounts clashed on whether the guerrilla said to be Guevara was buried or cremated, how he met his death and whether he identified himself before dying.

Guevara's brother, Roberto, arrived from Argentina Thursday to claim the body, but after conferring with Gen. Alfredo Ovando Candia, commander of the army, he said Ovando told him the body had been cremated.

Wednesday the army said Guelara's body had been buried in a secret place, and coincident with Roberto Guevara's arrival a government source said President Rene Barrientos was "of the opinion that the body should be turned over to the Guevara family."

After Roberto Guevara told reporters about the cremation, a government spokesman said he knew nothing of it.

"It would surprise us a lot," he said. "It would have been something done at the last minute by the armed forces which the president wasn't informed about, which is difficult to believe."

Roberto refused to say if he believed the man shot in Bolivia's jungles was his brother, but cousins and nephews in Buenos Aires said they doubt he was Che.

Radiophotos of the dead man showed a likeness, they said, but not enough to convince them of Guevara's death. One cousin said Che had written his father from Paris.

Further skepticism involved a military communique that said Guevara was wounded in a battle with government troops Sunday and died Monday.

Rusk Answered

MOSCOW (AP)—A Soviet news analyst said today that United States Secretary Dean Rusk's defence of the war in Vietnam "turns the facts upside down".

Referring to the U.S. position that the Vietnam confrontation has helped avert total war, commentator Vasily Kharkov said the threat of total war "is brought exactly by escalation of U.S. aggression in Vietnam."

'OPTIMIST'

Briton Plans Year 2000 Celebration

LONDON (AP)—Of all the people in the world, John Goodman believes he is the only one seriously planning to celebrate the arrival of the year 2000.

"It's only 33 years away," he said in an interview, "and no one seems to be giving it a thought."

"The world today is being engulfed by great waves of pessimism. The prophets of doom are predicting we'll have blown ourselves to bits by 2000.

"I must be an optimist because I'm convinced a lot of us—including myself—will be around by 2000, and I'm going to celebrate it."

As the self-appointed secretary of the World Association for Celebrating Year 2000, he is sending letters to cities and towns everywhere.

How will they celebrate the year 2000?

"I want them to plant trees—in groups, avenues of them, or just single trees," he explained.

"They're symbolic of life and beauty," he explained. "Take the terrible mushroom image of the nuclear bomb explosion, turn that mushroom upside down, and you've got the image of a tree."

Year 2000 trees have been planted in a number of places, but Goodman, 38, feels he hasn't even scratched the surface yet.

He believes that every country should set aside an area with a 21-mile circumference and turn it into a Year 2000 national park.

But won't it cost a lot of money?

"Of course it will," he answered, "but a nuclear war would cost a great deal more."

last robbery, said he believed the teller "was purposely stalling."

When the robber ran from the bank, the manager also joined the pursuit, allowing a good lead to the escaper.

PURSUERS UNARMED

"We didn't want to get too much closer. There is not too much point in getting shot. We just wanted to pin him down; see where he went."

The pursuers were unarmed.

"I'm going to have to change jobs," said Mr. Dunfield. "It takes a while to settle down after a thing like this. It's my second and last holdup . . . I hope."

He said everybody in the bank

Air Experts Seeking Crash Clues

ATHENS, Greece (Reuters)—Medical and aviation experts looked to autopsies scheduled for today on victims of a British jetliner crash for clues on why the plane suddenly plunged into the Mediterranean Thursday, killing all 66 persons aboard.

The crash baffled experts because the plane was cruising normally at about 29,000 feet and there was no indication from the pilot of any problem. An airline spokesman said the pilot sent a routine message just a few minutes before the accident.

Theories about the crash ranged from sabotage to a thunderstorm or some unexplained mechanical defect. The sabotage idea was linked to the fact that there were earlier rumors that Gen. George Rivas, Cypriot National Guard commander, was aboard the plane, though in fact he was not.

Peace Bid Planned By Radio

SAIGON (AP) — South Vietnam's President-elect Nguyen Van Thieu said today he will make his peace bid to Ho Chi Minh in mid-November, but "if North Vietnam persists in its aggression then we will continue to defend ourselves."

The chief of state, who will be inaugurated as head of the new constitutional government Oct. 30, spelled out in a talk with Japanese reporters the details of a letter he expects to send to the North Vietnamese president two weeks after he takes office.

Thieu's remarks were distributed by Vietnam Press, the government news agency. A spokesman had outlined the plan Thursday.

Thieu indicated the letter would not be sent directly to Ho but would be broadcast by radio, distributed to the press and addressed to several governments and to world personalitites.

Injunction Sought

QUEBEC (CP)—Acting Premier Paul Dozois announced today the provincial cabinet has deceided to seek a court injunction ordering a return to work by more than 190 radiologists who have withdrawn their services from hospital across the province.

Health Minister Jean-Paul Cloutier reported to the cabinet that the radiologists had not responded to a government order to return to work.

250 Compete Cross-Country

DUNCAN — More than 250 competitors are expected here to take part Oct. 28 in the first cross-country, age-class championships to be held on Vancouver Islands.

The meeting will be held at the Bazzet farm, four miles east of Trans-Canada Highway and Trunk Road intersection.

B.C. championship medals will be awarded to winners in each category. All entries for the races must be made by Oct. 25.

. . . HOLDUP

"stood quite still" when the bandit moved in.

The manager said there were about six people in the bank. He was in his office talking to Ken Morrison.

Suddenly Mrs. Dorothy Semple, another teller, entered his offiet to say the bank was being robbed.

Mr. Morrison, 23, who lives at 641 Goldstream, said, "the robber stood with his back to the far counter (watching the bank staff and customers) until the teller came around and handed him the bag.

"He had a skin-tight toque, the kind skiers wear over their faces, and his hand in his pocket.

"We chased him (when he left), the bank manager and I and one of the young fellows from the bank. He was ahead of us and it appeared he cut in here."

'OPERATION STOPGAP'

Mr. Morrison was referring to the Ida-Coronation intersection. He thought the man may have entered the apartment house at 2211 Ida which once was the Victoria home for wayward girls.

Was Morrison worried about the possibility of getting shot?

The bank manager returned to the bank to notify the police who he had been alerted by the bank alarm. Mr. Morrison stood by the corner until they arrived.

Meanwhile, accountant Henry Quan was touring nearby streets in his car.

There were 15 city police on the scene with Det.-Insp. Bill Andrew in charge and Inspector Brooke Douglas also in attendance.

A carload of Saanich officers also appeared with Det.-Sgt. Robin Stewart and two others.

A search of the big house at 2211 Ida was just under way when real estate salesman Tom Duncan reported that a vacant house he had care of at 1706 Denman had been broken into recently.

In checking it today he noticed the front door on a vacant house at 1725 Denman was closed. But when he looked again, it was open. These premises also were searched without result.

A short time later George Russell of 1756 Coronation told police he had left his house in his car to assist them in their patrols. When he returned he noticed the basement door he'd left open now was closed.

HOSTAGE?

And it appeared some spare doors in his basement had been pulled in front of the basement windows. He went for the police fearing his wife was being held hostage.

They found that Mrs. Russell had locked the door and barricaded the windows because she feared for her safety.

THREE ARRESTS

When the bank was last robbed in 1966 the police made three arrests the following day—although the loot never was recovered.

After two trials (the first was declared a mis-trial) they were convicted and sentenced, Coullrer drawing 16 years, Duck 14 and Braumberger 10.

The trio had used sawed-off rifles to threaten staff and customers and left with the cash within three minutes of entering the bank, just before closing time, also on a Friday.

JETS HIT HAIPHONG SHIPYARDS

SAIGON (CP)—Waves of U.S. Navy jets hit the North Vietnamese port of Haiphong hard Thursday, attacking for the first time in the war two shipyards previously on Washington's list of restricted targets.

One of the shipyards, only 1.6 miles northwest of the centre of the city, was described as an operation with 37 storage and support buildings and a barge manufacturing facility.

The second, smaller shipyard attacked was 1.7 miles southwest of the city's centre. Both yards were reported heavily damaged.

16 Planes Lost

SAIGON (UPI) — A U.S. military communique today said 16 American planes have been lost over North and South Vietnam in the past eight days. Only four of the aircraft losses had previously been announced.

Bride's Kiss Real Cool

LONDON (Reuters) — The best man at Bruce Lacey's wedding performed his duties with mechanical precision—he was a robot.

Operated by the bridegroom, a 40-year-old actor and inventor, the robot handed over the ring, threw confetti and even kissed the bride, actress Jill Bruce, with foam rubber lips.

attendance with the other premiers other than "there are lots of things on my desk and this is not a one-man government."

The premier said he has answered Mr. Pearson's letter regarding a constitutional conference but declined to reveal its contents because the exchange was made on a confidential basis.

Mr. Bennett refused to reveal his feelings about the need for constitutional amendments nor to say whether he felt there was in fact a Quebec crisis threatening Confederation.

He said he had outlined his views in a CBC television program this week in Montreal and wanted that to be broadcast in B.C. rather than repeat his observations to newspaper journalists.

UNEDITED

He said the matter was so important that he would only discuss it on the basis of an unedited television interview so that all his words would be presented.

"The great advantage of television is that you're right in the person's living room and no one is editing it," he said.

The only comments he would make about the Quebec situation was that it was "delicate" and a time for carefully considered words.

"The situation is one in which there has been too much argument in my opinion not here but across the country. I made the statement in Montreal because that's the place to say things in the centre and not 4,000 miles away."

Mr. Bennett said he was not suggesting "there has been too much talk (about Quebec), just too much argument, and I don't want to be part of the problem. I want to be part of the solution."

NO MEETING

He said he did not meet Real Caouette or any other Creditiste official during his two-day stopover in Quebec while returning from Europe.

He would make no comment on Creditiste announcements that they may merge with the national Social Credit party again to heal the three-year-old split.

"I'm a provincial leader and all I'm going to say as provincial leader is that I'll campaign only in British Columbia in the next federal election."

He said he expects a national election next autumn.

Mr. Bennett would not reveal whether he plans to call a byelection before the next session to fill a vacancy in the Vancouver South seat created by the recent death of Social Credit MLA Tom Bate.

FEW HOURS

"I've only been back a few hours and I haven't had my mind on that matter while I've been away," he said.

Mr. Bennett would not say whether he renewed his requests to the federal government for a $100 million grant towards hydro-electric construction projects and subsidies for the provincial Pacific Great Eastern Railway and ferry authority while he was in Eastern Canada.

"Let's just say that no answer has been received yet" to his written requests sent last year to federal Finance Minister Mitchell Sharp for the help on grounds of equal treatment to all provinces.

Mr. Bennett repeated his frequent criticism that "I find down east they just don't understand British Columbia" so the province should send a ginger group of Social Credit MPs to the House of Commons.

B.C. IGNORED

He added that while Quebec is given "better treatment than all the other poor provinces put together," Ottawa continues to ignore B.C.'s legitimate demands.

Victoria NDP Pick Candidate On Oct. 30

New Democratic Party members in Victoria constituency will nominate their next federal candidate Oct. 30 at 8 p.m. in Union Centre on Quadra Street, it was announced today.

TVs, Cars A-Plenty Bathrooms Scarce

PARIS (Reuters)—One in every two French families owns a television set, a car and a refrigerator. Yet millions of homes have no bathroom.

A series of surveys conducted throughout the country by the National Institute of Statistics showed that France has enjoyed an immense boom in expensive household gadgets and luxuries during the last 10 years, but has been slow to acquire other, more basic amenities of modern living.

Fifty-two per cent of families interviewed by the institute had television sets, compared with one per cent in 1953.

Fifty-one per cent had cars, against 21 per cent 13 years ago. By the start of the vacation season in July, 12 per cent more new cars had been registered in France this year than at the same time in 1966.

The number of refrigerators in France has more than doubled in six years, and three out of every five families now have one. More than 85 per cent of homes can boast at least one radio.

Fewer and fewer wives have to toil over the sink to scrub their husbands' shirts because 55 per cent of households now own washing machines.

But the wave of apparent affluence is deceptive. Many poorer families interviewed in industrial or rural areas had cars and television sets but only a cold running water supply.

One survey made by a responsible market research firm discovered that as many as 43 per cent of French homes still had no bathrooms.

This was a slight improvement on 1962, when an estimated 60 per cent of households did not even have a separate washbasin and members of the family had to use the kitchen sink to wash their faces.

Rites Tuesday For Expert Fisherman

VANCOUVER (CP) — Funeral service will be held Tuesday for Thomas Brayshaw, 81, internationally-known fly-fishing expert and fishing artist.

He died at his home last Tuesday following a two-month illness.

Mr. Brayshaw was renowned among fly-fishermen for his knowledge of the sport and for his carefully-crafted, hand-tied flies. He was a longtime friend of naturalist-writer Roderick Haig-Brown of Campbell River, and illustrated a number of Mr. Haig-Brown's works on fish.

Mr. Brayshaw also developed a technique of making wood models of game fish that brought anglers to him for replicas of their catches.

He was an honorary member of the Washington and Oregon State fly-fishing associations and was recently given special recognition for his contribution to the sport by the Federation of Fly Fishers, a national organization of U.S. fishermen.

A native of England, Mr. Brayshaw came to Vancouver in 1910. He served with a Yorkshire regiment during the First World War and with the Canadian Army during the Second World War, retiring with the rank of major.

He is survived by his wife, Edith, and a son, Christopher, a forestry specialist at University of B.C.

Arts Council Centre Opening This Sunday

Speaker of the House, W. H. Murray, will officially open the new centre of the Greater Victoria Community Arts Council Sunday at 3 p.m.

Dunlop House which is being shared by the Victoria Symphony was made available through the co-operation of the University of Victoria.

It will be used by the Arts Council as a co-ordination centre for community activities and the display and sale of work by local artists.

Mr. Murray will speak on the aims of the newly formed B.C. Government Centennial-Cultural Aid Fund, of which he is chairman.

Ralph T. Flitton of Vancouver will also speak on the work of the B.C. Arts Board.

New Attempt By Parksville For Bypass

It has asked the highways department to construct the bypass as a vitally needed safety measure.

Council also decided this week to study further a suggestion from the Chamber of Commerce that "Parksville by the sea" be adopted as a slogan and used on letterheads as a promotional measure.
